CANADIAN SEA CAPTAIN SLAIN BY COAST GUARD IN $300,000 RUM HAUL

15 Arrested in Running Battle as Shell Hits Pilot House.

FATAL SHOT FIRED OFF AMBROSE LIGHT

Three Boats Yield Cargoes of 1,000 Cases After Thrilling Pursuit.

New York Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A 1-pound shell from a Coast Guard gun shattered the pilot house of the liquor-laden Canadian schooner Josephine K. last night, killing her captain, William P. Cluett, of Lunenberg, Nova Scotia.

The schooner, her $300,000 liquor cargo and 15 men were seized. The Coast Guard also took charge of the garbage scow Brooklyn and the tug Dauntless No. 6, which were alongside the Canadian vessel when the coast guardsmen appeared.

The firing and subsequent seizures occurred within the 12-mile limit, the Coast Guard reported—about 4½ miles southeast of Ambrose Lightship and 10 miles off the beach at Sandy Hook.

Speedboat Makes Escape.

A speedboat which apparently had served to maintain contact between the schooner and the short slipped away in the darkness as the Coast Guard Cutter 145 opened fire on the Josephine K.

The garbage scow Brooklyn, towed by the Dauntless No. 6, apparently had been placed alongside the Josephine K. to receive the schooner's cargo of liquor. About 1,500 cases had been transferred to the scow when the Coast Guard cutter's searchlight gave warning that the operations had been observed.

The Josephine K. slashed her lines and put to sea at top speed of about 14 knots an hour. The best speed of the Government boat is about 12 knots. The Josephine K. is a two-masted auxiliary schooner, about 110 feet long.

Shooting Held Warranted.

A Coast Guard official, who declined to permit his name to be used, said:

"The shooting was fully warranted under the law and Coast Guard regulations. The patrol boat is armed with a one-pounder and a machine gun. The machine gun, however, was not used.

"It was necessary to fire to halt the rumrunner. After three blank shots were fired without any effect, the Coast Guard cutter put three solid shots across the bow of the fleeing ship. They also were ignored. Then the Josephine K. was fired upon directly."

The shell shattered the pilot house and Capt. Cluett collapsed. The Josephine K. was quickly overhauled. Her crew submitted to arrest without resistance. None was armed.

A doctor was summoned by wireless to treat Capt. Cluett, but the ship's master was beyond help. He died early today in a hospital.

No Garbage Aboard Scow.

The garbage scow has been used to carry refuse of the Passaic Valley, N. J., sewage commission to sea. The scow had no garbage aboard when seized. Officials of the sewage commission said that the scow was not owned by it; that the contract for sewage disposal was held by the A. & S. Transportation Co. of Newark, N. J.

Coast Guard officials said the Josephine K had been engaged in liquor smuggling for several years, but had evaded capture. The schooner is registered out of Digby, Nova Scotia.

A board of inquiry hearing will be held tomorrow, and the prisoners will be arraigned on charges of violating the liquor law.

Son's Bath Costs 6 Lives in Family

He, Parents and 3 Others Found Dead in Home Void of Oxygen.

New York, Jan. 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Jacob Cohen and five members of his family died from carbon monoxide poisoning in the Cohen's six-room flat at Brooklyn today. The bodies of the parents and four sons were found by Samuel Leavy, Mrs. Cohen's brother, when he came to pay a visit this afternoon.

All windows in the apartment were tightly shut and a gas hot-water heater was burning in the kitchen, leading the police to believe the heater had consumed all the oxygen in the home.

Since Isaac Cohen, 19, was the only member of the family not clad in night clothes, it is assumed he was the last one to come home Saturday night, and, deciding to take a bath, had lighted the heater. The father, a Syrian Jew, had worked as a dry goods peddler. Lotifa, his wife; Joseph, 17; Abraham, 15, and David, 12, were the others to die.

Wets Agree to Delay Liquor Fight for Year

Skirmishes Over Howell Bill Will Be Continued in Senate, but Leaders Plan Real Battle at Next Session of Congress.

(Associated Press.)

Congressional leaders are agreed that any decisive clash on prohibition will go over to the next session to be thrashed out with the 1932 presidential conventions just ahead.

The Senate will resume its wet-and-dry skirmishing this week over the Howell bill providing a drastic enforcement act for the Capital, but the wets, who must do the challenging, determined yesterday to make their real drive next year.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, author of the resolution for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, declared for a showdown next session and for "a smoking out in the new Congress of every one." Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, another repealist, concurred.

Rallying around the eighteenth amendment as their fort in the approaching battle, the dry leaders declared themselves ready.

Senators Borah, Republican, Idaho, and Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, prohibition champions, have discarded suggestions of the law enforcement commission for a substitute amendment or for a referendum and have accepted the challenge for a contest only on the eighteenth amendment.

With prohibition heading toward the 1932 presidential race, party leaders were anxiously scanning the reaction to the Wickersham report and the stands of their prospective standard bearers.

In this connection, the position of President Hoover was questioned again yesterday by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee.

BANDITS ROB GAMING CLUB, TAKING $9,000

Miami Beach Police Busy Raiding Another Place During Holdup.

CLEAN-UP DRIVE BEGINS

Miami, Fla., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—While Miami Beach police were raiding the exclusive Palm Island Club early today two bandits armed with sawed-off shotguns invaded an alleged gambling house in Miami and escaped with $9,000.

Police said they were advised of the holdup by a newsboy who was in the house selling papers at the time. They reported the bandits entered shortly after 3 a. m., when play was high at all of the games, and lined between 70 and 80 players against the walls.

The bandits calmly made the round of the tables, taking all the money in sight and escaped. The patrons were not robbed.

At the Miami Beach Club police, armed with warrants charging gambling, started to clamp down the city's recent ban on games of chance. The place was crowded with wealthy winter residents, but none was arrested.

Fred Aubeck, who told police he was the proprietor, was booked on charges of operating a gambling establishment.

Officers said they hauled away four

Scotland Neck, N. C., Jan. 25 (A. P.).—Deputy Sheriff J. E. Perry, of Halifax County, and Grandille Sanders, Negro, were shot to death near here late today when Sanders resisted a search of his home for whisky.

Sanders, who killed Perry, was shot by R. E. Allsbrooks, a special deputy.

FARO RACKET LINKS SENATOR IN CHICAGO

$250,000 Reported Lost by Prominent Persons in Last Six Months.

THREE MOBS ACCUSED

Chicago, Jan. 25 A.P.).—It was learned tonight that a big confidence ring, concentrating its attentions on political and business figures, has realized more than a quarter of a million dollars during the last six months.

Myrtle Tanner Blackridge, former collector of internal revenue at Chicago, who said she lost $50,000 at fargo, was just one of the many "taken" by the swindlers, it was learned. Further information was to the effect that a United States senator, not identified, lost $68,000 on a racing racket.

A Chicago business leader two months ago was tricked out of $90,000 at faro, but regained $82,000 by a compromise after "squawking," police were told.

David Tinkham, an Englishman, was fleeced of $33,000 in a stock tip swindle.

All this, it was said, was perpetrated by three separate "mobs" with interchangeable personnel adapted to any situation involving special talent.

Police planned to question the business leader and his operatives concerning the identity of the swindlers in the belief they are members of the same gang that bilked the former internal revenue collector of $50,000 she obtained from Edward Litsinger.

Litzsinger accused Mrs. Blackridge of complicity in the fraud, and the latter stoutly denied the implication.

Seaplane DO-X to Hop For Brazil Thursday

Lisbon, Portugal, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Tentative arrangements have been made for the German seaplane DO-X to begin its South Atlantic flight toward Brazil Thursday. It is understood Admiral Gago Coutinho, of Portugal, will be the only passenger.

The big ship, which recently was repaired after it had been damaged by fire, made further trial flights this afternoon, but no officials nor guests were carried.

DISTRICT GIRL DIES IN TRIPLE CAR COLLISION

Stenographer in Federal Bureau Hurled From Auto in Crash.

COMPANIONS SUFFER MINOR CUTS, BRUISES

Death-Machine Driver Jailed on Technical Charges in Baltimore.

Miss Irene Reese, 25 years old, of 1414 Kennedy street northwest, a stenographer of the White House Conference on Child Health, was killed instantly and several other persons were hurt in a crash involving three automobiles early yesterday morning on the Baltimore Boulevard at Waterloo, three miles north of Laurel, Md.

At the University Hospital, in Baltimore, where the four other companions of Miss Reese and the three occupants of another machine in the accident were treated and dismissed, Baltimore police arrested the driver of the death car, James Owens, 27 years old, of K street near Sixteenth street northwest.

Owens, an assistant engineer of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. here, was held at the Western Police Station in Baltimore on technical charges of assaulting and causing the death of Miss Reese as driver of the machine in which she was killed.

Owens Suffers Minor Hurts.

Owens suffered minor cuts over the eyes and lacerations about the face. Companions of Owens and Miss Rees in the machine were Ronald Orr, 25 years old, also of K street northwest, near Sixteenth street, a clerk of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. here, who suffered cuts about the head; Gordon Willis, 29 years old, of Essex, Md., who suffered a fractured rib, and a young woman whose name was not available, who was reported to have received minor hurts.

The three other occupants of another machine in the accident included Dennis Lady, 18 years old, of St. Petersburg, Fla., the driver, who was hurt about the head and face; his father, Byrd G. Lady, 44 years old, who suffered lacerations about the head and Mrs. Agnes Lindsay, 50 years old, of Hartford, Conn., who received minor lacerations about the face and scalp.

Returning to Washington after the party of five had enjoyed a leisurely trip to Baltimore, the Owens ma-

Senator Smoot Put on Flu List

Veteran Legislator Ordered to Remain in Bed Until Cured.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, who was 59 this month, has been added to the congressional list of sufferers from influenza.

The veteran legislator, who becomes dean of the Senate after March 4 with the retirement of Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, was stricken Saturday, and yesterday was under strict orders of his physician to remain in bed until cured.

Senator Smoot went to his office Saturday but soon found it necessary to return home. He has been working doggedly this session with other Republican leaders to get the necessary appropriation bills through to avoid an extra session.

His most recent assignment was the steering of the supply bill for the Interior Department through the Senate.

GIGANTIC RALLY TO OPEN CHEST DRIVE TONIGHT

Pershing Will Be Among Speakers to Inspire 7,500 Workers.

ARCHBISHOP CURLEY URGES LIBERALITY

Pastors Devote Sermons to Cause, Goal of Which Is $1,950,154.

A gigantic rally to be held at Constitution Hall tonight will mark the official opening of the 1931 Community Chest campaign. The 7,500 workers for the Chest who will attend will hear final words of advice before they begin the task of soliciting for the $1,950,154.40 goal tomorrow.

The mass meeting signifies the opening of the Chest drive for the metropolitan, group solicitation, governmental and school units. The special gifts committee, which has been conducting a campaign for a week, will make its final report at the Willard earlier in the day. It is hoped the unit will have met its goal of $1,000,000.

An elaborate but brief pageant, "The Heart of Washington," will be on the program for the Chest workers' rally. A march of Chest organization workers, each in a uniform typifying a branch of the service, and a mass tableau, with music, on the stage has been arranged.

Marine Band to Play.

A program of music will be given by the United States Marine Band. The speakers will be Gen. John J. Pershing, chairman of the governmental unit; Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross; the Right Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Washington; Dr. Joseph R. Sizooo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church; Rabbi J. T. Loeb, of the Temple Chev Shoiom, and Dr. Kelly Miller, of Howard University.

The final instructions and last-minute information essential to the campaign will be given by Edward F. Colladay, chairman of the campaign committee.

To call attention to the opening of the Community Chest campaign, 32 store windows today and throughout the drive will contain new and original exhibits showing what the various member agencies of the organization are doing.

To stimulate greater interest in these displays, a silver loving cup donated by Charles Schwartz & Co., awarded annually to the store which makes the best showing in the contest, will be presented again. The cup was awarded at the end of the last campaign to the Hecht Co.

A trophy will be awarded to the agency displaying the most effective exhibition of its work.

Pulpit Praises Cause.

The churches yesterday observed Community Chest Sunday as an inspiration to their congregations. Most of the ministers devoted their sermons to the work of the Chest and the Red Cross. In some of the churches lay speakers presented the message of the organization.

Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore, sent a letter of appeal which was read in every Catholic church in the city. The letter was as follows:

"For the third time, I am asking our Catholic people in Washington to come to the support of the Community Chest with all of the zeal and sacrifice of which they are capable. The present is a critical year—never was there so much suffering abroad

LEGION URGES CASHING OF BONUS CERTIFICATES AT ONCE TO AID NEEDY

Unconditional Release Of Gandhi Is Ordered

Members of Nationalist Congress Also Gain Full Freedom.

New Delhi, India, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The unconditional release from prison of Mahatma Gandhi and other members of the Nationalist congress working committee was ordered today by the viceroy, Lord Irwin.

Although no time was set in the release order, it is expected to take effect by tomorrow evening. Gandhi, leader of the Nationalist movement, has been in jail at Poona since May 5.

The viceroy also issued an order establishing the lawfulness of the congress working committee.

In his statement the viceroy said:

"In order to provide an opportunity for consideration of the statement made by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald on January 19, my government, in consultation with the local government, have thought it right that members of the congress working committee of the All-India Congress should enjoy full liberty of discussion between themselves and with those who have acted as members of the committee since January 1, 1930.

Executive Board Acts on Veterans' Increasing Demands.

SPECIFICALLY OMITS CHOOSING ANY BILL

Hearings Open Today on Red Cross $25,000,000 Relief Fund Plan.

Indianapolis, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The national executive committee of the American Legion, meeting in special session here today, gave its indorsement to the principle of immediate cash retirement, on application, of veterans' compensation certificates.

The legion's national convention at Boston last year tabled a resolution which favored payment of 80 per cent of the compensation certificates. A growing demand among veterans for cashing the certificates prompted the calling of the executive committee to settle the dispute over the organization's position taken at the Boston convention.

Before adopting a resolution on the cash payments of the certificates, the executive committee adopted a subcommittee report declaring the policy of the executive committee as to its right to interpret action of a national convention. This report held that in tabling the resolution at Boston for payment on the certificates, the convention had declared itself "unwilling to consider, discuss or initiate action in that direction."

Takes Definite Stand.

It added, however, that "since such question has been initiated elsewhere, and has been broadly discussed, and has become an insistent question, it is now appropriate and necessary for the executive committee to state plainly the opinion of the American Legion on this subject."

The resolution calling for the cash payments said the national committee "indorses the principle of immediate cash retirement on application of the adjusted service certificates, without choosing as between any of the specific bills now pending before Congress."

It was added the committee is of the opinion that such legislation would benefit not only the veterans themselves, but also the citizenship of the entire country.

Convention Action Explained.

A preamble to the resolution declared that the action at the Boston convention was taken "because the American Legion was firmly opposed to initiating such legislation within itself, and because the first and major activity of the American Legion has been and always will be the care of the disabled and his dependents, whose welfare has been and must, of necessity, remain our first obligation."

The resolution said that immediate payment will bring immediate relief to hundreds of thousands of veterans and their dependents who are now in sore distress and dire need.

Declaring as the first and major objective legislation for further relief of disabled veterans and their dependents, the committee added: "The legion will take definite exception to any interference with, or delay in, the passage of such legislation."

Two issues—Red Cross relief and cash payments bonus insurance certificates—loom as obstacles to be hurdled by administration leaders before they turn into the home stretch in the race to avoid an extra session.

Although none of the big annual supply bills has become law, congressional circles were optimistic yesterday over their progress last week. Seven have been passed by the House and four by the Senate.

There are eleven to be passed by both branches to avert a special assembly.

Hearings are to open today before the House appropriations committee on the Senate's $25,000,000 Red Cross relief fund. Secretary Hyde and other Government officials have been

RITCHIE SAYS REPORT ADMITS DRY DEFEAT

TYDINGS DELIVERS TALK

Interpreting the Wickersham Commission report as advocacy of an annihilation of the whole system of national prohibition, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, in a radio speech read last night over Station WRC and a National Broadcasting Co. hookup, issued a stirring appeal for return of the liquor question to the States.

The address was read by Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, after Gov. Ritchie had been forced to cancel his own appearance because of his mother's death Saturday.

Summarizing the highlights of the report as a frank admission by the commission that national prohibition has failed, Gov. Ritchie maintained that "the only way out is for the Federal Government to turn the problem back again to the States from which it should never have been taken, so that the people of the States may settle it in accordance with their own needs, conditions and convictions."

"I believe they can be trusted to settle it right," he continued. "I believe you can trust the moral value of human ideals and the average honesty of the average man.

"The Nation had every right to expect something real from the Wickersham commission. For ten years the Government and the country had struggled with national prohibition, and however noble the experiment was in motive or in principle, there was clearly something the matter with it in practice. It was causing an extensive disregard of law and order. It was creating new kinds of crime and criminals, and new kinds of illicit profits and corruption. It was overcrowding the court dockets and the jails and bringing temptation and bodily ills to both young and old.

"President Hoover says that 'the commission by a large majority does not favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment as a method of cure for the inherent abuses of the liquor

WOMAN KILLS SELF IN MOOD OF DESPAIR

Matron Leaves Note Saying Ill Health and Bills Inspired Act.

GAS JET IS TURNED ON

Leaving a note expressing despair over financial troubles, doctors' bills and ill health, Mrs. Edith Veaner, 68 years old, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by inhaling gas in the kitchen of her apartment on Twentieth street northwest near R street.

Her body was found in a chair in the kitchen by Earl Holston, her nephew, of the same address. He smelled the gas and investigated. Gas jets on the stove were open and a blanket was thrown over Mrs. Veaner's head.

The Fire Rescue Squad and Emergency Hospital ambulance were summoned. Doctors and firemen worked vainly to revive her. She was pronounced dead by Dr. W. B. Marbury.

Police notified the coroner, who issued a certificate of death by suicide.

Mrs. Veaner was the wife of Benjamin Veaner, who is proprietor of a decorating shop on Connecticut avenue northwest, near R street. Mr. Veaner was in Harrisburg, Pa., yesterday, police say.

Navy May Rebuild Yacht Mayflower

Examination Is Planned After Craft of Presidents Is Raised.

Philadelphia, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The former presidential yacht Mayflower, on whose decks have walked many world figures of her day, lay today fire-scarred and sunk in more than 20 feet of water at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

The once proud presidential yacht was swept by fire last night. Tons of water were poured into the ship until she settled on the river bottom at her dock.

The presidential suite and officers' quarters, where the flames raged, are completely ruined, as are other quarters in the stern of the famous old yacht. Whether it will be worth while to reconstruct her interior for further useful service remains for naval experts to determine after a thorough examination when the vessel is raised.

Calvin Coolidge Says:

Considerable investigation is being made of the problem of old-age pensions. Some governments and some industries have adopted such a system and it appeals to your sympathies. Only the experimental state has been reached so that its soundness has not been demonstrated. We are constantly trying to adopt reforms of such artificial nature so as to save ourselves from suffering from the defects of human nature as it is now constituted.

No doubt some of our efforts are helpful, and the fact that we realize our deficiencies and are intent on remedying them is most encouraging. Our failures lie in attempting to reach the goal by some short cut without really removing the cause of the difficulty. We try to reform ourselves on the outside when the only effective remedy is to reform ourselves on the inside.

What a self-respecting people really needs is not a system of old-age pensions, but a population made sufficiently skilled by education and sufficiently self-controlled and well disposed by the help of religion so that old-age pensions would be a superfluity. Unless real reform comes from within the problem will never be solved.

Parrot Talks, But Reveals Nothing of Murder It Saw

Ax Found Beside Woman Slain on Lower East Side of New York; Husband Is Held by Police as Material Witness

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A parrot from its cage in the bedroom window squawked its monotonous "Hello, Poll—Hello, Poll."

Nearby, in a bed, her arms rigid above her head as if to resist a blow, lay the body of Mrs. Frank Yitkos, 44 years old.

Beside the bed lay an ax. There was blood on it.

It was Sunday morning in the Yitkos' two-room apartment in the Cherry Hill section of the lower East Side. Police got the call from the woman's husband, Frank Yitkos, known to them as "a real tough guy" in a part of Manhattan which is "real tough" itself.

"My wife is sick," he telephoned at 8 o'clock this morning.

She was not sick; she was dead. One wrist had been cut, probably with the ax. Loss of blood caused her death.

Yitkos was arrested. His brother Peter, whom he had called before the police, was held as a material witness.

Yitkos said his wife had been killed

Screams of Woman Send Police on Kidnaping Hunt

Telephone Calls Inform Authorities That Cries Tell of Abduction, But Six Men in Patrol Car Are Unable to Find Trace.

A woman's screams, coming from an automobile, last night sent Fourteenth Precinct police on an unsuccessful quest in the Northwest section.

About 9 o'clock a woman called police headquarters and said a woman was screaming: "I'm being kidnaped." The screams were heard at Grant road and Albermarle street northwest.

Headquarters dispatched Fourteenth Precinct police to the place, but could not trace the call. A few minutes later a call was received that similar screams were heard at Thirty-eighth and Dennison streets northwest, several blocks from the place where the first screams were heard.

Lieut. McGill Groves, of the Fourteenth Precinct, sent six men in patrol cars to the place the second alarm emanated, and early today had been unable to trace the call.

Police immediately began a check-up of other precincts to determine whether any woman had been reported missing. In each incident the woman was reported to be in an automobile. The second place is in a colored settlement.

called to testify. Red Cross officials are to state their position tomorrow, and Col. Arthur Woods, of the Hoover unemployment commission, is to follow.

Smoot's Illness May Cause Halt.

Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee has planned to begin hearings today on a proposal to cash veterans' certificates as a depression relief measure, but Senator Watson, Indiana, Republican floor leader, is inclined to postpone them because of the Utah senator's illness. Senator Watson believes action must be initiated in the House because the proposals involves revenue raising.

Chairman Hawley of the House ways and means committee is expected to submit the proposal to his group in a few days. However, the decision of the executive committee of the American Legion yesterday at Indianapolis on that organization's position probably will determine the course to be followed.

Secretary Mellon has opposed the moves to pay the certificates in communications to Mr. Hawley, pointing out it would be necessary to finance the payment by issuing bonds aggregating $3,500,000,000. Administration followers have taken the position that the relief would be temporary for a certain group and that funds for the payments would be withdrawn from industry, thereby prolonging the depression.

Extra Session "Possibilities."

Two other issues confronting Congress that have extra session possibilities are the demands for either a tariff or an embargo on Petroleum and the establishment of a national policy against importation of foreign convict, or enforced, labor produced products.

Both of these are to hold the attention of the House ways and means committee during the coming weeks. The committee is awaiting a report from the Tariff Commission on the condition of the domestic petroleum industry. It is expected to consider the Kendall bill to prohibit importation of enforced labor products, particularly oil, wheat, lumber and wood pulp from Russia, in a few days.

The Senate will consider the War Department annual supply bill today while the House debates the billion-dollar appropriation bill for 39 independent Federal agencies. Later in the week the Capper-Kelly resale bill will come up for House action, along with the annual legislative supply bill.

Economic Conditions Called 'Stupid' by Woods

(Associated Press.)

American economic conditions were described as a "grave but also a stupid situation" last night by Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's emergency committee for employment.

Speaking over a national broadcasting company network, he said: "On one hand we have millions of idle workers, many of them now desperately in need of the very commodities they might produce if they had work.

"On the other hand we have idle plants the owners of which are eager to put these idle workers to work, and are steadily losing money because of their inability to do so.

"While these two groups stay separated, employers, employes and consumers alike are the victims of depression. No one profits by the situation. Every one loses. And no one seems to know how to bring the two groups together."

Col. Woods said the country is beginning to change from its old belief that business depressions are "like storms at sea—acts of God."

"We are beginning to understand they are not of this nature at all and should be attacked as being preventable and an intolerable curse on our social and economic system," he said.

"Army" of Jobless Lessens in March

Delegation of 200, Claiming to Be Veterans, Fades Nearing Capital.

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 25 (A.P.). The small "army" of men which set out from Philadelphia with the announced intention of marching to Washington to ask Congress to speed legislation for the relief of unemployed soldiers, had dwindled to 24 when the marchers reached here today.

Several of the 200 marchers, who claimed to be unemployed war veterans, and who started from Independence Hall yesterday, were said to have obtained lifts from motorists and to have gone on ahead, but many dropped out because of tired and aching feet. Their number had dropped to 50 before they got outside of Philadelphia.

The little band was given food here by the American Legion post, Veterans of Foreign Wars and other societies. After a brief rest they trudged on southward, expecting to spend the night at Elkton, Md.

Liquor Haul Made After Long Chase

Driver Escapes When Car Has Been Run Up on Sidewalk.

A thrilling automobile chase through the fashionable Dupont Circle section, ending on the sidewalk at Twenty-second and P streets northwest, yesterday afternoon netted police 36 half-gallons of alleged liquor. The driver of the machine escaped.

Policeman A. H. Preusser, of the Seventh Precinct, cruising in a police car near Twenty-seventh and N streets northwest, saw a large touring car traveling at a high rate of speed. He gave chase and pursued the machine through heavy traffic for more than fifteen minutes.

At Twenty-second and P streets, to avoid striking several persons standing near the curb waiting for a street car, the pursued automobile ran up on the sidewalk and crashed into a tree. The driver jumped out and ran. The machine was confiscated, and the liquor said to have been found under the rear seat was seized.

Progress Noted In Wreck Victims

Physician in Charge Says All Are Recovering Satisfactorily.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 25 (A.P.). Dr. Edward Newell, head of the sanitarium here, where most of the injured were taken yesterday from the wreck of the Suwanee River special train near Helenwood, reported today that all were recovering satisfactorily.

Five persons were killed in the derailment and more than a score injured.

Dr. Newell said Charles E. Rhinehart, president of the San Diego, Cal., area council, Boy Scouts of America, was the most seriously hurt with a fractured leg and internal injuries. He was improving, as was Miss Louise Cooper, of Cincinnati, whose back injuries were said also to be among the most serious.

RED CROSS RECEIPTS TAKE SUDDEN LEAP

Donations Total $2,125,400; Texas Plight Is Told; House Delay Charged.

LIVES DEPEND ON ACTION

Nearly one-fourth of the $10,000,000 drought relief fund requested by the American Red Cross had been received yesterday, when the total contributions reached $2,125,400. This was an increase of $454,448 during the last 24 hours.

Charles H. Johnson, grand master of the New York Masons, has notified Red Cross headquarters that he is sending an appeal to the 1,100 New York lodges for prompt and generous contributions to the relief fund.

A Texas chapter chairman has sent in this message:

"I have today given five orders for food and one for clothes. Each case was a tragedy. A family, the father of which has been sick thirteen months, has a little farm and everything mortgaged on account of three crop failures.

One of Best Citizens.

"He has been in this country 30 years and is one of its best citizens. The entire family was hungry. Two of the children, aged 11 and 14, have not gone to school this term. They have not had clothes or shoes. If people who have given to Red Cross drought relief could have seen these children after we helped them they would have gotten their money's worth."

This letter is typical of many reaching headquarters.

Hearings before the House appropriations committee on the $25,000,000 food amendment attached to the interior appropriation bill by the Senate will not be hurried. Indications last night were that Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, Dr. C. W. Warburton, director of extension work, and Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, will occupy all the time this morning.

Hoover Buttress Seen.

Secretary Hyde and Dr. Warburton opposed inclusion of food relief in the $45,000,000 drought-relief law, which is now in force. Presumably, they are being called by House administration leaders to buttress Hoover's opposition to the Senate food proposal. Representative Cramton (Republican), Michigan, chairman of the Interior subcommittee of the appropriations committee, who arranged for the hearings in the absence of Chairman Wood, explained that with the drought-relief law in operation the Department of Agriculture has been in position to make a fairly accurate check-up on the general situation in the drought-stricken area and its officials can throw light on the need for food relief.

Mr. MacDonald has been called to outline progress in connection with increased appropriations for highway construction, another relief measure.

Members of the House who favor appropriations for food relief continue to insist that the administration forces arranged for hearings in the hope of being able to produce evidence that assistance from the Federal Treasury is not necessary.

Suicide Attempt Laid To Unemployed Woman

Despondent because she could not obtain work, Florence V. Potts, 36 years old, of Third street northeast near K street, took an overdose, police said, of a powerful sedative medicine while at a home on North Carolina avenue northeast near First street, yesterday afternoon.

Police took her to Casualty Hospital. Physicians there said her condition was not serious, and after treatment she went home.

League Vote Held Women's Victory

Entire Question of Nationality Will Be Reopened at Next Assembly.

Vote of the League of Nations on Saturday to reopen at the next assembly the entire question involving the nationality of women was hailed here yesterday by the Inter-American Commission of Women as a significant victory for the sex.

The organization pointed out that "Dr. Jose Matos, delegate for Guatemala, after able and eloquent argument against permitting discriminations against women to be written into world law on nationality, succeeded in obtaining a resolution reopening the whole question and placing it upon the agenda of the next assembly of the league."

The action came unexpectedly after various women's organizations had been vigorously conducting a campaign before the league in protest against its ratification of the covenant on nationality adopted by the Hague Conference on International Law last March.

JOBLESS INSURANCE PLAN TO BE STUDIED

TO MEET IN NEW YORK

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A series of meetings of the representatives of seven Northeast industrial States to consider the proposal of unemployment insurance has been decided upon by the governors of the States, convened here for an unemployment conference.

The governors and representatives of the States of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Massachusetts made it clear, in deciding on the meetings, that the conference had taken no action either commending or condemning the proposal.

The first meeting will be held in New York City in the near future. The representatives of the States will be asked to examine the subject of unemployment insurance from the viewpoints of European experience, voluntary unemployment insurance in America and variations adapted to American industry.

An investigation also will be conducted into existing public and private employment agencies, with a view to improving the system. In this connection, the States also will conduct a joint study of a plan to establish a central clearing house for labor statistical information, to be used in dealing with the unemployment problem.

The conference, officially closing today, was called by Gov. Roosevelt and attended by Governors White, of Ohio; Larson, of New Jersey; Cross, of Connecticut; Case, of Rhode Island; Ely, of Massachusetts, and Dr. Charles Ritell, representing Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, who was unable to attend. All but Gov. White had left the Executive Mansion tonight, where they had been guests during the conference.

Magic Is Held Threat To Sanity of Society

Magic, spiritualism and theosophy constitute a threat to the sanity of society today as in the past, the Washington Secular League was told last night at its meeting at 1006 E street northwest by Julius Davidson, globe trotter.

"Occultism, by concerning itself with mystic and irrational chimeras, impedes the pursuit of a truly realistic appreciation of man's place in nature and society," he said. Speakers in the open forum on this topic included Dr. A. B. Baden, Thomas Eckloff, Charles W. Pafflow, Mrs. Ivy B. Norton, Percy H. Skinner, Dr. George O. Tibbetts, Alfred Dietz and Mrs. Ethel Murray. Morris Talpalar was elected secretary of the league.

Mysterious Attacker Strikes Man on Head

Struck on the head by an unidentified assailant, Henry Cutler, 21 years old, of Ninth street southeast near B street, was knocked down and injured yesterday while he was removing some packages from his car in front of his home.

He was removed to Casualty Hospital by his father, Harry Cutler, where he was treated for lacerations to the scalp of a nonserious nature. Police and Cutler were mystified as to the motive for the attack.

Edison's Boswell, 78, Lies Seriously Ill in New Jersey

William Meadowcroft, Confidential Friend and Assistant, Has Been Associated With Electrical Wizard Since 1881; Is Also Inventor of Note.

Boonton, N. J., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A man who for half a century has submerged his own scientific genius in his devotion to Thomas A. Edison, lies seriously ill tonight.

A short, white-haired man with a slight English accent, William H. Meadowcroft, has reached his seventy-eighth year. For nearly 50 years of his life, he has been called a Boswell and even more to the inventive genius of the age and until he was taken down with grip two weeks ago was engaged in his "spare time" in compiling a detailed chronicle of Edison's works.

To Meadowcroft, Edison is "the Old Man." The intimacy which such a designation conjures has been in the making since 1881.

Schooled in England and America, Meadowcroft was admitted to the bar in New York just a few months before he began the work which has been his life, with Edison. In the earlier days, he did much experimenting and has been called the first exploiter of the miniature electric lamp, such as is used in telephone systems.

More fame came to him, however, with his development of the first electric display signs. He toyed with little square lamps and there evolved the beginning of a new phase of advertising. Later came experiments with the X-ray and with liquid air.

From the beginning, there was a strong tie between the two men and in 1910, Meadowcroft became confidential secretary and assistant to Mr. Edison.

Leaving New York because he grew fond of this hilly, North Jersey village, Meadowcroft for two score years has driven daily into West Orange to the Edison Laboratories, taking up his place in a little office just a few steps from "the old man."

Arriving at the laboratories at 9, Meadowcroft runs into a veritable storm of letters, communications from all over the world carrying words of encouragement to the inventor, criticism, praise, censure; offering "startling" ideas in exchange for an interview of only a few minutes.

For a while, Meadowcroft ceases to be Edison's Boswell. He becomes Edison's diplomat, answering patiently even the most trying letters. His decision determines who shall see Edison and for how long.

For years now, "the old man" has been deaf. But there is little change in the method of his conversing with Meadowcroft. His assistant may pronounce words a little more articulately, but there is seldom the need of writing what has to be said. Here are two men who really know each other.

Able-Bodied Must Toil Two Days Weekly to Obtain $2.

Red Cross Now Provides Clothing and Hot Food for Chlidren.

By J. C. STARK.

Marked Tree, Ark., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Drought sufferers being fed by the Red Cross here are cleaning drainage districts to get ready for the next flood.

The flood may not come this spring. But again it may.

Before last summer's record-breaking drought, now causing a growing amount of distress in Arkansas and other States of the South and Southwest, three floods came in rapid succession here.

That's one reason Poinsett County is one of the hardest hit in the State.

When the Mississippi goes on a spree, southeast Missouri empties a large part of its flood waters down on this section. Then the Red Cross has to go to work again feeding the farm tenants—the "share croppers," whites and Negroes alike.

So they're cleaning out the drainage districts, but that is only one of the jobs being done by the destitute farm tenants.

Trees are being planted along the highways. School yards are being cleaned up. Other public buildings and grounds are being improved.

Since able-bodied recipients of Red Cross aid are required to do something in return, they are doing any job at hand, whether it be on public or private properties. Many of them, hesitant to accept charity, seek the jobs.

To get the $2 weekly per couple, plus 50 cents additional for each child, to a total of $4.50, the able-bodied men have to work at least two days a week.

The tenants are permitted, if they desire, to work for their own landlords. In these cases, the Red Cross will give them $1 a week, and the landlord gives them credit for $1 a week on what they owe him. They nearly always owe their landlords.

The Red Cross at Marked Tree had around 600 families on its list for permanent food supplies last night. The list is growing on an average of 25 families a day.

Yesterday the Red Cross began issuing new clothes for those in need. Previously citizens of the town had been contributing the garments.

The clothes, consisting chiefly of underwear, work shoes, shirts and overalls, or what is necessary to fill the bare needs, are going first to the men who have to work. Some of these have been reporting for work for their Red Cross allotments, with shoes worn through in the sole and clad only in a shirt and overalls.

The Women's Club here provides hot lunches every day for the men at work. Many of the men thus fed forego their suppers so their families can have more.

School children also have been receiving hot lunches from the Women's Club and the Red Cross, but now the Red Cross has provided regular funds for this purpose.

One little tot in the "soup line" at the school remarked:

"I'm getting so I don't mind to go without my supper now."

Three and a third cents a meal is what the average destitute drought sufferer is living on.

The Red Cross gives each family $2 a week, plus 50 cents for each child, up to a maximum of $4.50 a week. There are five persons in the average family being fed, relief workers say.

That is 50 cents a day, or ten cents for each member. With it they get flour, salt pork and beans.

In the larger families, some running as high as 15, they get less than that.

LONG WAR EXPECTED OVER POWER BOARD

Senate Group's Move Today in Row With Hoover Aims at Litigation.

TO ACT ON WALSH PLAN

(Associated Press.)

The Senate judiciary committee will act today on a resolution which may result in years of litigation and eventually carry to the Supreme Court the latest constitutional conflict between the President and the Senate.

The committee will consider the Walsh resolution to authorize a court test of President Hoover's right to retain in office Chairman Smith and Commissioners Garsaud and Draper of the new Power Commission, despite recommendations by the Senate of their confirmation.

President Hoover refused to return the names of the three officials, as requested by the Senate, asserting they had been legally confirmed and sworn into office.

The Senate, by majority action, insisted it was acting within its rules in reconsidering the nominations after the three commission members had been sworn into office, and has recommitted the three nominations to its interstate commerce committee preparatory to taking court action.

The basis for the conflict was the dismissal by the commissioners of Solicitor Charles A. Russell and Auditor William V. King, whom the Senate majority consider "faithful public servants." It was charged they were dismissed because they were too active in checking on valuations sought by power companies.

A favorable report on the Walsh resolution by the Senate judiciary committee is anticipated, as nine of the seventeen committee members have voted with the Senate majority which is waging the battle with the President.

Siam's King to Use Anderson Home

Large Residence Obtained for Visit of Monarch to Washington.

(Associated Press.)

All of the luxury of a royal palace will be afforded the King of Siam when he pays an official visit to the Capital in April.

The American Government has accepted an offer of Larz Anderson, former Ambassador to Japan, for the king to use the massive castle-like Anderson home on Massachusetts avenue.

With no official residence for distinguished visitors, the American Government borrows homes in Washington for their housing. The Anderson home was used once before for foreign visitors, in 1918, by the Belgian war mission.

Armours' Control of Firm Lost as Lee Takes Charge

Resignation of First Vice President and Director Completes Detail Vesting Control to Group Outside Family; Promotion of Stenographer Resented.

Chicago, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—It is still "Armour & Co." today, but the emphasis is all on the "& Co."

For the last Armour to hold an executive post has resigned from the $650,000,000 industry fostered by P. D. Armour and brought to full growth by his son, J. Ogden Armour.

The resignation of Philip D. Armour 3d as first vice president and director completed the detail which vested intimate control in a group of bankers, manufacturers and men who rose through the company to eminence in their own right.

Two cousins still are directors. But their minority presence is a far cry from the days when the Armour family alone was Armour & Co.—and one of the world's financial dynasties.

Family control has gone, and instead of an Armour as president there is T. George Lee, who started with the company as a stenographer. He succeeds F. Edson White, first of the "career men" to head Armour's. It was because of Lee's elevation that Philip 3d resigned. He felt the post to be rightfully his.

Most of the emphasis had been missing from the Armour name since 1923. In that year J. Ogden, crushed by financial misfortune, relinquished his 80 per cent stock holdings. The public became a participant in the affairs of Armour & Co. Still, there were four members of the family in executive posts. This number dwindled by 1929 to the founder's grandson.

The first Philip had built his fortune on a panic. He had foreseen the drop in prices which followed the Civil War. He sold on a "bull market."

Half a century later his son was virtually wiped out by another post-war slump. J. Ogden miscalculated the effect of the 1919-1922 depression. His personal fortune, once near $50,000,000, vanished. He had to turn most of it in to repay money borrowed from the firm he had lifted to leadership through a series of bold maneuvers.

And though his widow this year recuped millions from an oil-refining scheme at first thought worthless, she still has not enough to reestablish the Armour family as the power of Armour & Co.

END SEEN TO FIGHT ON APPORTIONMENT

Plan Hoover Announced in November to Become Effective in March.

LITTLE HOPE FOR FOES

(Associated Press.)

The reapportionment of House representation, as announced by President Hoover in November, on the basis of the 1930 census, will go into effect March 4 unchanged.

Definite assurances were received from congressional leaders yesterday that the hoary controversy over reapportionment would not be reopened on House or Senate floors. Speaker Longworth said: "There will be no reapportionment legislation at this session."

Although efforts are being made by members from States losing representation to have the 7,000,000 aliens eliminated from the apportionment count, they admit their chances are remote. Hearings before the House judiciary committee on the Hoch resolution to eliminate the aliens are to be resumed Wednesday. Its proponents believe they have enough committee votes to have it reported, but with the legislative calendar crowded, they have little hope of further action.

States Lose Members.

A law passed in the spring of 1929 outlined the new line-up, and set the time for it to become effective.

Twenty-one States lose 27 members, while 11 gain. Most of the legislatures of those States are now in session, wrestling with the problem of redistricting representation, but they will not be formally notified of their new apportionment until March 4.

However, with unofficial assurances that the law will not be altered, their problem is simplified.

Change Political Strength.

The new apportionment will apply to the Seventy-third Congress, and will bring about changes in political strength of House wets and drys, as well as in the Electoral College and State delegations to national political conventions.

It is the first reapportionment since 1913, which was on the basis of the 1910 census. For nearly ten years, the problem was argued in Congress. Finally a law providing for the Secretary of Commerce to automatically reapportion the 435 members each fifth Congress, on the basis of the decennial census, was enacted to prevent a recurrence of a situation whereby some representatives had a constituency of more than a million, while others had less than 250,000.

In the realignment, California gains 9 seats; Michigan, 4; Texas, 3; New York, New Jersey and Ohio, 2 each; Connecticut, Florida, North Catrolina, Oklahoma and Washington, 1 each.

Wet Gains Seen.

Missouri loses three members; Georgia, Iowa, Kentucky and Pennsylvania two each, and Alabama, Indiana, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia and Wisconsin, one.

The antiprohibitionists expect their strength to be increased because of added seats in metropolitan areas with a corresponding decrease in the dry forces in Midwestern and Southern States.

Buying of Autos Outstrips Roads

Ownership Increase Is Far Ahead of Construction in Orient.

(Associated Press.)

Automobile buying in the Far East outstrips road building. This is the finding of Commerce Department agents who have surveyed the territory with a view to determining conditions affecting American export trade.

Since 1925, the department said, China has increased its highway mileage 163 per cent, but the number of autos in Chinese ownership has increased 251 per cent.

In Ceylon, the road mileage in the same period grew 22 per cent, and the auto ownership increased 216 per cent. India, with a 12 per cent road extension, has advanced its auto registration 170 per cent. In Australia highway mileage gained by 377 per cent in five years, and auto ownership advanced 193 per cent.

Roumanians Are Urged To Be Loyal to Nation

(Associated Press.)

An appeal to Americans of Roumanian origin to be loyal to the country of their adoption was urged yesterday by Minister Davila, of Roumania, in a brief speech in his native tongue over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The minister's message was given at the conclusion of an address in English regarding the development in recent years of Roumania. He declared that King Carol is "keen in his desire that business relations with America should progress as much as possible and that American business methods should be introduced in Roumania."

BRUENING UPHOLDS REPARATIONS PLAN

Germans Are Admonished to Forget Young Pact in Present Crisis.

FISCAL EXAMPLES CITED

Cologne, Germany, Jan. 25 (A.P.). Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, in some of the strongest language he has used since taking office, today admonished the German people to forget about reparations revision for a while and concentrate on putting both public and private finances in order.

He spoke here and also in Dueren.

"It is not only through reparations burdens that we have fallen into financial misfortune," said the chancellor, "but to a very large measure through letting ourselves imagine that despite a lost war, despite huge sacrifices of blood and treasure, both state and individual could live better than in prewar times.

"We have indulged in building projects everywhere—in the reich, in states and in communities—which we could not afford before the war, we have spent hundreds of millions of marks for things that later turned out impractical and unproductive.

"There is nothing left for us to do but to follow the fiscal example of other nations which have climbed back after a lost war—namely, to consider earnestly what a pfennig is worth."

The people themselves would have to see this through, the chancellor said, without leaving it to others.

"There is nothing more dangerous," he continued, "than the public belief that the state can and must bear everything."

Rebuking those who clamor for quick action on revision of the Young plan, Chancellor Bruening said they seemed to have forgotten everything that the nation had gone through. Germans were agreed, he concluded, that a stirring up of reparations questions would be "the silliest move" Germany could make.

Speaker Scores St. Elizabeths

Forum President's Illness Laid to Strain of Fight Against Lawsuits.

Management of St. Elizabeths Hospital here was censured yesterday by John A. Savage, a vice president of the Washington Open Forum, in a talk at the weekly meeting of that organization at 623 Louisiana avenue northwest. He claimed that many men and women, entirely sane, are held in psychopathic institutions throughout the country.

Illness of Linn A. E. Gale, the forum president, who is confined to bed with fever and asthma, was ascribed by several speakers to exhaustion from the strain of fighting four lawsuits "constituting persecution by political enemies who want to drive Gale to the wall."

Robert F. Hester, former secretary of the Ingersoll Forum in New York City, made a short talk expressing agreement with Clarence Darrow "as to the irrationality of theology, the barbarity of capital punishment, and the meaning of life."

Missing Flier's Body Found Near Galveston

Galveston, Tex., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A body identified by officers of the Third Attack Group, Army Air Corps, as that of Corpl. Philip Schuchmann, who, with Lieut. Jonathan Grasty, has been missing for two weeks, was found on the beach near here today.

A plane occupied by Lieut. Grasty and Corpl. Schuchmann disappeared while en route to Galveston from Matagorda Bay. Parts of the plane were found near Freeport several days ago.

AUTO SHOW DRAWS THRONG ON SUNDAY

First Two Sessions Indicate Display to Prove One of Best in History.

EVENT CONTINUES TODAY

A steady flow of visitors yesterday availed themselves of the opportunity of attending the automobile show on Sunday, when, by a decision of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, the doors of the Auditorium were opened at 3:30 p. m. So successful was the innovation yesterday, it was said by Richard J. Murphy, show manager, that in all probability hereafter the Sunday display will be a regular feature of these annual events. In previous years the show has not been open on Sunday.

The automobile show today settled down into the routine of its week's run at the Auditorium. The crowds that have attended the first two sessions have been most encouraging to the exhibitors, show officials state, and it is believed that the show this year will rank as one of the best, from every standpoint, ever held by the association.

The show opens this morning at 10:30 o'clock and will continue until 10:30 p. m.

"That visitors are appreciative of the remarkable values being offered in the 1931 automobiles," Mr. Murphy says, "is clear to all observers at the show."

Music is being provided on both floors of the Auditorium by the special orchestra.

Frank G. Stewart, member of the show committee, will address the audience of Station WMAL tonight on the subject of the economy of operation and upkeep of the latest model motor cars.

Man Shot by Policeman Is in Another Hospital

Charles Macon Wesson, 23-year-old son of Col. Wesson, U. S. A., shot January 16 by Policeman M. J. Mahaney, of the Eighth Precinct, has been transferred to Walter Reed Hospital from Garfield Hospital, it was learned yesterday. His condition is somewhat improved, physicians say.

Young Wesson threatened a taxi driver with a gun with which he fired several shots on a wild ride through the northwest section of the city. He was shot by the policeman after the taxi operator had intentionally wrecked the cab near California street and Connecticut avenue northwest.

Hunger Sends Escaped Inmate Back to Asylum

Declaring that meals were too few in the outside world, Clifford Pierce Hubbard, 36 years old, who left St. Elizabeths Hospital without permission recently, gave himself up at the Sixth Precinct last night.

"We get meals regular over at St. Elizabeths," Hubbard is said to have told the desk sergeant, "and they're hard to find out on the streets. I want to go back." Attendants from St. Elizabeths identified the man as one who had escaped from the institution five days ago, and took him back.

BRONX BEER BARON SHOT IN CLUB FIGHT

'Dutch' Schultz, Feared Gang Leader, Believed Slain With Gambler.

TWO MOVED BY FRIENDS

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The Daily News says tonight in a copyrighted story that "Dutch" Schultz, the Bronx "baron of beer" and one of the most sinister figures of the New York underworld, was killed or severely wounded in the sensational outbreak of gang gunnery in the Club Abbey early yesterday.

Charlie (Chink) Sherman, Broadway gambler, was shot and knifed during the hectic moments just before the Saturday dawn, when bullets flew and pandemonium reigned in the night club known as one of the "hot shots" of New York night life.

The story was the first intimation that Schultz, probably the most-feared of the gang czars of New York, may have been a victim also.

"We're looking for Schultz," a detective said, "but we scarcely expect to find him well, and when we do find him, it's an even chance that he'll have said his last words!"

The Club Abbey is in the Hotel Harding, once reported to have been owned by the late Arnold Rothstein. It was in front, of this hotel that Dutch Schultz's pal and confidante, "Deputy Sheriff" Noe, was shot dead in 1928. That murder was blamed in gang circles on the Legs Diamond "mob," just as the later gun attack upon Diamond—from which he is now recovering—was generally laid at the door of Dutch Schultz' men.

The story of what happened yesterday morning in the Club Abbey is that Sherman was seated in one corner of the club while scores of guests danced or sat at tables around the small dance floor.

Suddenly two men rushed toward Sherman with guns. A voice cried, "It's Dutch Schultz." Firing began. A bullet tore through Sherman's right arm, and with his left hand he drew a pistol and opened fire upon his attackers. Two shots glanced off the bulletproof vest of one of his attackers. Sherman then aimed higher and dropped one of the gunmen with a bullet in the neck.

The lights of the Club Abbey went out, and Schultz—if the wounded man was Schultz—was dragged outside by his companions.

Two Envoys Will Assume Latin-American Posts Here

Honduran Minister Gets Place as Secretary on Home Cabinet.

(Associated Press.)

Two of the smaller Latin American legations in Washington, Honduras and Haiti, shortly will be under the direction of new envoys.

Simultaneous with the anpouncement that Dr. Ernesto Argueta, minister of Honduras since August, 1929, would return in early February as secretary of the interior in his country, it became known that M. Dantes Bellegarde arrived in Washington yesterday to succeed Dr. Ulrich Duvivier as minister of Haiti.

Dr. Duvivier said he would leave Washington late this week and sail from New York on Saturday.

Dr. Argueta presided over his country's mission in Washington during an important period in his legation's activities of recent years and saw concluded the treaty between Honduras and Guatemala under which those Central American republics are to submit to arbitration their long-standing boundary dispute between the Montagua River and El Merendon mountain range.

Dr. Duvivier first occupied the post of Minister to the United States in 1913. Prior to that time he was Minister to Cuba, and following his return to Haiti in 1914, served as secretary of state before taking up the practice of law, which he followed until his second assignment to Washington last summer.

His return to Washington last July filled a ministership which has been vacant about four years or since the departure of Hannibal Price. He was accompanied here by Numa Rigaud, who succeeded Raoul Lizaire as Secretary of the Legation. Senor Lizaire returned to Haiti shortly thereafter, following his service as Charge d'Affaires ad interim before the arrival of Dr. Duvivier.

Senor Rigaud has been absent from Washington for some time, however, and it was indicated at the Legation today that the new minister would continue alone as the Haitian representative to the United States.

DR. ERNESTO ARGUETA.

Dr. Duvivier, who took up his duties as head of the Washington mission only last July 14, for the second time within the last seventeen years, said he had not been assigned to another place and indicated he planned to retire.

Senor Bellegarde comes to Washington from Paris, where he served as minister for two years. He previously had seen service in the French post and, prior to his last assignment there, served as minister of public instruction in Haiti.

Senor Bellegarde did not know last night just when he would call on the Secretary of State to present the required draft of his credentials, but was expected to do so this week.

LAW SCHOOLS PLAN PROBES OF COURTS

12 Universities Authorized by Wickersham Body to Study Actions.

OUTLINE GIVEN HOOVER

New Haven, Jan. 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—President Hoover's National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement, of which George W. Wickersham is chairman, has not finished its work yet. A statement was issued today by Yale University announcing that the Wickersham commission has authorized a national study of law administration in the Federal courts, the investigations to be made through twelve university law schools, each conducting a unit of research in its own locality. The work will be supervised by a committee on Federal courts appointed by the commission.

An outline of a plan was presented to President Hoover early in 1929 by President Robert M. Hutchins, of the University of Chicago, then dean of Yale Law School, and Prof. Charles E. Clark, now dean of Yale Law School.

The plan followed the lines of a similar project then under way for a study of State courts. At the request of the commission the plan was presented to it in the spring of 1930, and a committee on Federal courts appointed by the commission made a preliminary study of the courts in Connecticut, West Virginia, Ohio and Louisiana.

Federal Courts Studied.

The purpose was to prepare for a comprehensive study beginning in the Fall of 1930. During that period the technique for carrying forward the study was worked out. Hundreds of criminal and civil cases were sampled and analyzed. In the light of that experience, final preparations for a wider study were made.

The committee on Federal courts consists of Dean Charles E. Clark, chairman; Dean Thurman W. Arnold, University of West Virginia Law School; Dean Henry M. Bates, University of Michigan Law School; President Hutchins, Prof. Harold R. Medina, Columbia University Law School; Prof. Edmund M. Morgan, Harvard University Law School; Prof. Orrin K. McMurray, University of California Law School, and Owen J. Roberts, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court. Prof. William O. Douglas of the Yale University Law School is acting as secretary of the committee.

In this study, authorized to begin August 1, 1930, and to end June 30, 1931, concrete statistical information is being sought to illustrate and test the efficacy of rules, procedure and methods of administering justice. This involves the collection of actual figures bearing on congestion and the types of business entering and being disposed of in the Federal courts, the time spent by the courts on the various types of litigation, the disposition of criminal cases on "bargain days," and aspects of the socalled "breakdowns" in the system.

Data Being Collected.

Information and figures are being collected from the files and dockets of the clerks of the courts and of the district attorneys and from the transcripts of the commissioners. All civil and criminal cases terminated in the Federal district courts during the five-year period ended June 30, 1930, are being investigated.

Chairman Wickersham said today:

"Two things concerning the study of the business of the Federal courts now being carried on for the commission may be especially noted. The first is that this is a scientific study of law administration designed to show accurately the day-by-day activities of the courts of the particular districts studied. For these districts, therefore, complete quantitative data for all phases of trial court administration, civil and criminal, will be available, whereas up to this time only very limited material, not necessarily accurately secured, has been obtained.

"The second is that this is a cooperative study by some twelve law schools. Such cooperation among educational institutions has been all too rare in the past and it is particularly fitting that it should occur in matters of important public service such as this project."

RICHARD D. HARLAN RITES TOMORROW

Interment to Follow in Rock Creek Cemetery for Presbyterian.

SCHOOL WORK SALIENT

Richard Davenport Harlan, retired Presbyterian minister and son of the late John Marshall Harlan, an associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, will be buried tomorrow in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Harlan died on Saturday in the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital after a short illness. His death followed by three days the death of his wife, Mrs. Margaret Prouty Harlan, who died Wednesday. They had been married 41 years. Mr. Harlan's death was caused by septic poisoning.

Active in Development.

Mr. Harlan, who was active in the early development of George Washington University, was born in Evansville, Ind., in 1859. His grandfather, James Harlan, was a member of Congress and attorney general of Kentucky.

His father, John Marshall Harlan, served as associate justice of the United States Supreme Court from 1877 to 1911.

Mr. Harlan was graduated from Princeton University in 1881 as valedictorian of his class. He received his master's degree three years later. In 1885 he was graduated from the Princeton Theological Seminary. In 1902 he received a degree of doctor of divinity from the same university.

President of College.

He was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in New York from 1886 to 1890. From 1894 to 1901 he was pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church of Rochester, N. Y. He then became president of Lake Forest College in Illinois and left that position five years later.

From 1907 to 1910 he was active in the movement for the founding of George Washington University. He was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Fraternity and also of the Cosmos Club of this city. He lived at 2230 California street northwest.

He is survived by two sisters, Miss Laura Harlan, who was once social secretary to Mrs. Harding, the wife of the late President Harding, and Miss Ruth Harlan, both of this city, and a brother, John M. Harlan, jr., of Chicago.

The funeral services will be held at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church at 11 o'clock.

HOOVER'S DRY STAND SCORED BY WHEELER

Ambiguity Rapped; Church Editor Warns President Upon Issue.

URGED TO UPHOLD LAW

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, and Stanley High, editor of the Christian Herald, took hands in the Wickersham report discussion yesterday—the Democratic senator to ridicule the ambiguity of President Hoover's position and the church writer to warn the chief executive that unless he remains steadfastly dry he will suffer for it in 1932.

"Will the country be kept in anxiety for another 15 or 16 months, until the next Republican national convention, to know where Mr. Hoover stands on the important and controversial subject of prohibition?" Senator Wheeler asked.

"The inference that he will keep the country guessing was further bolstered by an official statement issued by Senator Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee, in which that sapient observer and commentator fails again as the interpreter of administration thought in the throes of distress.

"Obviously, Senator Fess' statement is an enigmatic as that issued by the President himself."

The church journalist, in addition to his warning to Mr. Hoover, concedes that conditions must be bettered if the law is to survive.

"The fact still remains," Mr. High said, "that the liquor problem will never find final solution at the end of a policeman's nightstick. The nightstick panacea affects only the lower and less important half of the problem, the bootlegger.

"The other party to the liquor trade—the purchaser—is neither frightened by nightsticks nor likely to be threatened with them. He has to be reached by tactics of a different sort."

Dry Reform Group Gives Session Plan

U. S. Women's Organization Will Convene at Hotel Here in April.

Plans for the annual convention of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, to be held at the Mayflower Hotel April 14 and 15, were announced last week at a meting of the District Council of the organization at the home of Mrs. William Beverly Mason, secretary of the council.

Miss Maude Whitmore, of Newport, R. I., was elected national chairman of the convention, and Mrs. Henry Leonard, of the District Council executive committee, was appointed chairman of arrangements for the District. More than 1,000 women are expected to attend the convention.

Miss Bell Gurnee, chairman of the District Council, spoke at the meeting on the Wickersham report. She asserted that it acknowledges the failure to date of prohibition enforcement, but this, she added, does not deter the commission from inviting the American people to offer themselves as guinea pigs for "further noble experimentation and to pay for the operation in advance."

Church Still Dry, Politicians Told

Methodist Bishop Says That Body Will Fight in Election if Issue Raised.

Charlotte, N. C., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in a statement here today, asserted "politicians can take warning that the church and the bishops will be found standing for prohibition," in the event that question is an issue in the next presidential election.

"I am a churchman and am not in politics," Bishop Mouzon said. "I am not interested in politics and would not make a statement of a political nature. I am a prohibitionist and am committed to support prohibition. The Methodist Church has always been for prohibition, and it is committed to fight for prohibition. It is a moral issue with me, and not a political question. I am not interested in its political aspects, but I am very highly interested in its success as a moral measure.

"The politicians can take warning that the church and the bishops will be found standing for prohibition. I am not in politics, I repeat, but the politicians will hear from me in the next campaign if an attack is made on prohibition. If they try to bring back the corner saloon they will hear from the Methodist Church and they will hear from me."

LIBERALS TO UPHOLD LABOR GOVERNMENT

Party Will Avoid Election Pending Reform, Is Chief's View.

SEEK FRANCHISE CHANGE

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Sir Herbert Samuel, M. P., chairman of the English Liberal party, in a radio address in London today, intimated that the Labor government would be sustained in the pending battle over the trade disputes bill.

The address was rebroadcast in the United States over a Columbia system network.

Sir Herbert said that with the present standing of parties in the commons it would be necessary for 44 of the Liberals to align themselves with the Conservatives, in order to defeat the government. He said the Liberals were determined to avoid a general election until the bill for reforming the franchise system has been passed.

Under present conditions unsatisfactory results came from elections with three parties in the field and until changes were made in voting laws, the Liberals, he believed, would sustain the government, even if they must temporarily relinquish certain objectives.

employed heads of families in England.

There are more than 2,500,000 unemployed receiving $12,000,000 weekly under the dole, he said, which further complicates political conditions.

He praised the work of the Indian conference as bringing a much better understanding between the people of India and the British government.

DAISY DE BOE TO ASK NEW CHANCE TODAY

Will Seek Another Trial When She Appears for Theft Sentence.

VERDICT IS COMPROMISE

Los Angeles, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A Sunday of rest preparatory for tomorrow's appearance in court for sentence for grand theft was the choice of Daisy De Boe today. From behind her county jail cell bars she sent the request, "No visitors wanted." Miss De Boe explained she has had too many visitors since Friday, when she was convicted of an $825 theft from Clara Bow.

The former secretary of the film "It" girl was behind bars she expected to leave under bail after tomorrow's court action. She first will ask for a new trial, and if that is refused, she will file a notice of appeal from the conviction.

"If both of these efforts fail, I still can ask for probation," she explained. "But I'm going to fight to a finish. I am not guilty. Miss Bow signed that $825 check herself."

Jurors who convicted the blonde former secretary, after being deadlocked more than 48 hours, acquitted her on all but one of 35 grand theft counts. One juror, admitting the conviction was a compromise verdict, said the one guilty count was "selected at random." The verdict carried a plea for leniency.

Attorneys for Miss De Boe said if a new trial was granted she can be tried on only the one count. They pointed out she declared this conviction was in error because Miss Bow, and not herself, signed the check upon which the count was based.

$125 Robbery Is Reported.

Forcing a front window, burglars, yesterday morning entered the home of Carl Endress, of E street southeast near Thirty-fourth street, and stole silverware and jewelry worth $125, police said.

CRUSADERS PROTEST OVER RUM RAID BILL

Indignation Aired in Letters and Telegrams Sent to U. S. Senators.

SEE WIDE RESENTMENT

Indignant at the Howell bill for liquor search of private homes in the District, commanders of many State and city organizations of the Crusaders have registered their protest in a flood of communications to senators.

Edgar Allan Poe, jr., commander of the Baltimore Crusaders, asserted that "special request by the White House for special legislation to cover prohibition enforcement in Washington warrants belief that the President of the United States wishes to convert a helpless and voteless community into a guinea pig for a ruthless prohibition laboratory."

Mr. Poe added that the "Howell bill is resented quite as much by voters throughout the nation as it is by the disfranchised residents of the District whose homes may be invaded if this un-American legislation is enacted."

Charles H. Sabin, commander of the New York Crusaders, declared that "we feel that this proposed legislation is non-American and is directed at the residents in the District, who are not allowed to vote."

Rowland E. Roberts, commander of the Philadelphia Crusaders, wired: "Strongly urge your opposing Howell bill permitting search warrants for private homes in District on suspicion of delivery of liquor."

DRY ACT NOT HOLY, SAYS DR. MELTON

Amendment Faces Crucial Test, Ninth Christian Church Is Told.

STRIKES AT BOOTLEGGER

The "eighteenth amendment is not divine" and "prohibitionists themselves should be the first to advocate changing it when a better way" of coping with the liquor question is found, said the Rev. Dr. B. H. Melton, pastor of the Ninth Street Christian Church, in his sermon last night on "When Will Bootlegging End."

"The most ardent prohibitionist knows that the eighteenth amendment is facing a crucial test," Dr. Melton submitted. "Let us keep open minds for something even better than the eighteenth amendment. If a better way to handle booze is forthcoming, we should be anxious to accept it. Even the Constitution of the United States is not inerrant. We have changed it many times, and should there be a better way to handle booze than the amendment provides, the American people will write it in the Constitution.

Calls Report Statesmanlike.

"The most ardent dry, or wet who is not totally blind with partisanship, must see in the Wickersham commission's report a statesmanlike document, pointing to a better day in prohibition enforcement. The abuse of a law is no argument against its right use.

"The commission is unanimous in pointing out the social and economic benefits in the last decade under the eighteenth amendment, but frankly faces the difficulties and makes many valuable suggestions for the conservation of the good resul. of prohibition and for the correction of its abuses.

"We have expected too much of prohibition.

Criticizes Newspapers.

"The greatest hindrance to prohibition is the constant ridicule of most of the newspapers of the United States. The wet newspapers and magazines are the bootleggers' best friends and prohibition's worst enemies. The vitriolic attacks on the eighteenth amendment by our press have weakened the morale of law enforcers and greatly encouraged the lawbreakers.

"There is no doubt that big business, modern science and the enlightened conscience of the Nation have permanently outlawed the liquor traffic. Our greatest need now is less heat and more light. The terms wet and dry are almost meaningless. Among the wets are some of the best citizens and most temperate men and women on earth, and among the so-called drys are some of the most unreasonable hypocrites and whisky-drinking weaklings that disgrace society.

WETS TO DELAY WAR ON DRY AMENDMENT

of Senator Fess, of Ohio, the chairman of the Republican national committee, that Mr. Hoover in rejecting the substitute prohibition amendment suggested by members of the Wickersham commission, had not closed the door to all revision or modification proposals. Wheeler asked:

"Will the country be kept in anxiety for another fifteen or sixteen months, until the next Republican national convention, to know where Mr. Hoover stands on this important and controversial subject?"

While Republican drys are carefully watching a move by the President which might indicate a step away from absolute prohibition, the Democratic party chieftains have their worries, too, with a divided party on this issue. Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, has suggested revision.

The report of the Wickersham Commission has once more put the whole controversy before Congress. While there is a prospect of continued sniping on the prohibition front for the remainder of the session, the wets believe they will have greater strength in the next session. The drys are in the position of waiting for the attack.

Senator Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, will renew his attempt this week to get a record vote in the Senate on his bill to legalize 4 per cent bees. He has proposed it as a substitute for the pending Howell bill, but overwhelming defeat for his measure is conceded.

RITCHIE SAYS REPORT ADMITS DRY DEFEAT

traffic" and he expresses himself in accord with that view.

"With the greatest respect, I submit that at least six of the commission favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. It is true, of course, that only Messrs. Baker and Lemann favor the repeal of the amendment without substituting anything in its place, but four others, Messrs. Anderson, Loesch, Pound and Miss Comstock, favor an immediate revision or modification, which would strike from the amendment its prohibition against intoxicating liquors and substitute therefor a new amendment.

"It is entirely obvious that these recommendations involve wiping out the whole present system of national prohibition, and in addition to the six majority members of the commission who subscribe to this, three others subscribe to it also, in the event that further trial for a reasonable time shows that the system can not work, and the remaining two are wavering.

"All agree after ten years there is still nothing like any adequate observance and still nothing like any adequate enforcement. The fact is that the commission's report is replete with unanswerable proof of the unhappy consequences which have followed in the wake of this new experiment in Government—unhappy in their unfortunate effects on law, on order, on morals and on clean living and right living."

roulette tables and a truckload of other gambling paraphernalia.

The raid was said to have been the result of notice by city council last week that the lid on gambling at Miami Beach "has been, is and will continue to be kept on."

The statement was made by Mayor Val C. Cleary after members of the financially and socially exclusive committee of 100 demanded illegal forms of entertainment be banished during the winter season.

Business and tradesmen later appeared before council and asked for an open town.

The Miami Beach Kennel Club, where a certificate purchase system is used in wagering on dog races, was operated as usual last night.

MISSING CAPITALIST IS SEEN WITH WIFE

Attorney for St. Louis Man Cries "Kidnaping" Again as Letters Come.

MYSTERY YET UNSOLVED

St. Louis, Jan. 25 A.P.).—Whether Hugh W. Thomasson, 73-year-old St. Louis capitalist, was a reconciled husband or an unwilling companion of his 29-year-old wife, Grace Mayhood Thomasson was the subject of contention between wrangling attorneys for the couple today.

Thomasson, a bachelor until he married the four-times married Grace Mayhood last September, only to sue for annulment of the marriage two months later on the grounds that he was "hoodwinked" into the ceremony, and his wife were together "somewhere in the West" tonight.

Stephen C. Rogers, one of the capitalist's attorneys, said Mrs. Thomasson "resorted to kidnaping" as her only hope.

Edward Foristel, one of her attorneys, called Rogers' statement "unadulterated bunk" and said Thomasson had always been in love with her, "and he'll testify to that when he gets the opportunity."

Trail Is Located.

The trail of Mr. and Mrs. Thomasson was picked up in Kansas City yesterday, where they spent ten hours Friday morning at the Blackstone Hotel.

Thomasson was described by E. H. Kohloff, clerk at the Blackstone, "as a rather tired old man, slightly stooped and uninterested in his surroundings." J. H. Warren, day clerk at the hotel, said Mrs. Thomasson paid the bill while Thomasson stood over at the side. "He acted as if he was afraid to move," Warren said.

The aged husband has not been seen at his hotel here, the Fairgrounds, since Thursday morning, and Friday his lawyers asked police to search for him. Mrs. Thomasson likewise left her expensive home at Clayton Thursday. They stopped at Carthage, Mo., Thursday night, where the Thomassons' Negro chauffeur told a hotel porter they were going to California.

Letters Are Received.

Yesterday letters indicating "a pleasant honeymoon" and a desire to drop the annulment action were received by attorneys for both and by the circuit clerk at Clayton. Instead of ending the litigation, however, the happenings only added to it.

First, Circuit Judge Robert W. McElhinney refused to drop the annulment action. Mrs. Thomasson's attorneys then applied to the State Supreme Court for a writ to prevent Judge McElhinney from proceeding with the trial. The high court this week will decide whether to issue a temporary writ against the circuit judge.

But increased litigation did not so burden the rival attorneys as to leave them without time to debate whether it was "a second happy honeymoon," as one of Mrs. Thomasson's letters called it, or "a plain case of kidnaping," as Rogers described it.

BRITAIN GRANTS UNRESERVED RELEASE TO MAHATMA GANDHI

that there may be no legal bar to any meeting which they may wish to hold, the notifications declaring the committee to be an unlawful association under the criminal law amendment act will be withdrawn by all local governments, and action will be taken for the release of Mr. Gandhi and others who are members of the committee or who have acted as such since January 1, 1930.

No Conditions Imposed.

"My government will impose no conditions on those released, because we feel that the best hope of restoration of peaceful conditions lies in the discussions being conducted by those concerned under the terms of unconditional liberty.

"Our action has been taken in pursuance of a sincere desire to assist in creation of such peaceful conditions as would enable the government to implement the undertaking given by the prime minister, that if civil quiet were proclaimed and assured the government would not be backward in its response.

"I am content to trust those who will be affected by our decision to act in the same spirit as inspires it, and I am confident they will recognize the importance of securing for these grave issues a calm and dispassionate examination."

May Refuse Liberty.

Poona, India, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Mahatma Gandhi was frankly astonished today when informed the British Government had ordered his unconditional release from prison.

The first news of the viceroy's act was conveyed to the famous Nationalist leader by the Associated Press correspondent, through prison officials. They quoted him as saying he expected no such generous gesture on the part of the British.

Prison authorities said they had received no intimation of the viceroy's decision. As Gandhi has made it known previously, he will not accept even unconditional liberty unless all Congress members and political prisoners are liberated with him, an extremely embarrassing situation may confront the officials. If he definitely refuses to leave the prison it may be necessary for the local officials to eject him.

Jailed Last May.

The wizened little Hindu leader has been in jail here since May 5 under an old ordinance which permits the internment of any one adjudged a menace to the public order. He was arrested in the dead of night in his camp at Karadi, near Jalapur, Bombay, one month after he had arrived at the end of a 100-mile march from Ahmedabad to the Gulf of Cambay, to break the British law establishing a salt monopoly. The law, however, was actually broken by Gandhi on April 6, when the mass civil disobedience campaign began.

At the time of his arrest he was asleep and was awakened when the police flashed an electric torch on him.

After being given time to clean his teeth he was taken away in a motor truck and brought by road and rail to the Verayda Jail at Pogna, where, in words of the official communique, he was "placed under restraint during the pleasure of the government," by virtue of regulation 25 of 1827.

Given Every Consideration.

During his imprisonment he has been treated with every consideration and has spent most of his time at a portable spinning wheel which he was permitted to take to jail with him.

On July 17, Sir Tej Bahadur, Sapru and M. Jayakar interviewed him, with permission of the government, in an attempt to find a peace formula. The negotiations, however, finally broke down.

Among the more important Congress leaders affected by the release order are Pundit Jawaharlal Nehru, who was president of the all-India Congress at the time of the launching of the civil disobedience campaign, who still officially holds that post; Valabhai Patel, who led the campaign in Bardoli, Taluna and Bombay; Mrs. Sarojinin Naid, champion of the women's cause in India; J. M. Sen Gupta, who was elected mayor of Calcutta for the fifth time while in prison, but was unable to take office within the statutory period; Dr. Amsari and Maulana Asul Kalam. Nehru, Patel and Gupta are doing second and third terms in prison.

EFFORT TO CURTAIL OIL IMPORTS LAUDED

Governors' Conference Aid Reports Capper Bill Gaining Backers.

TARIFF IS ULTIMATE AIM

(Associated Press.)

Russell B. Brown, secretary of the Governors' Oil Relief Conference, said yesterday many messages were reaching the conference headquarters, and Senators and Representatives were commending the campaign to limit importation of foreign petroleum.

Senator Capper's bill, to hold foreign crude imports to 16,000,000 barrels yearly and to exclude refined products, Brown said, was being indorsed by farm organizations, labor groups, trade organizations and chambers of commerce.

"With increasing thousands of former oil workers on the verge of starvation because of the widespread depression in this industry," he commented, "it is only natural that practically every type of business in all the oil-producing States should take a direct and vital interest in the passage of the Capper bill."

Mr. Brown said that although attempting to obtain limitation of oil imports at this session might seem a desperate move, "the situation which impells this action is even more desperate."

Foreign oil was having a dangerous effect on all business, with the exception of a few firms or individuals profiting by the importation of oil, he said.

A tariff on petroleum is the ultimate aim of the independent producers' act, who, after their recent conference decided, however, they would have a better chance of obtaining a partial embargo at this session.

Bills calling for a tariff have been introduced in the House and Senate by Representative Garber, Oklahoma, and Senator Shortridge, California. Senator Nye, North Dakota, introduced a resolution Saturday for a general inquiry into the oil situation.

Killing Term Begun By Former Jurist

Texan Registers at Hotel to Await Commitment Papers to Prison.

Huntsville, Tex., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—John W. Brady, former distinguished member of the Texas Court of Appeals, arrived here voluntarily today to begin a sentence of three years for the stabbing to death of Miss Lehlia Highsmith in a drunken frenzy in November, 1929.

The white-haired former justice came without guard and, as commitment papers from Dallas had not arrived, registered at a hotel. His wife, who has stood with him through all the disclosures of his two trials, was with him.

Warden W. W. Waid refused to admit Brady until arrival of commitment papers.

"Of course, he is pretty badly knocked out," said the warden, "but he tries not to show it and makes an effort to keep his spirits up."

At his trials Brady pleaded temporary insanity induced by chronic alcoholism.

NEW ENGLAND COLD LIFTS AS TWO DIE

Warmer Weather Promised After Winter's Records Are Set.

38 BELOW IS REPORTED

Boston, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The cold wave which inflicted upon most of New England subzero temperatures for the last three days was broken tonight, with fair and warmer weather tomorrow promised for the entire section.

Before departing, however, the cold sent temperatures in Northern States to record low marks for the winter, reaching in some points a minimum of 38 below zero, and pushed the mercury in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut thermometers close to the zero mark.

At least two deaths were attributed to the cold. At West Bolton, Vt., the frozen body of Leon Streeter, 75, was found just inside his home, the door of which was open. He apparently had suffered a heart attack and fallen unconscious in a temperature of 16 below zero. The body of John Clements, of Peabody, was found frozen in Salem.

Some of the breath-taking temperatures reported were 18 below zero at Burlington, Va.; 25 below at Woodsville, N. H., with 38 below in outlying sections; 24 below at Northfield, Vt., and 30 below at Montpelier, Vt.

Boston's minimum was 9 above.

DISTRICT GIRL KILLED IN MARYLAND CRASH

chine was rounding a curve on the boulevard when another car, speeding dizzily toward Baltimore, suddenly veered sharply to the left side of the highway, sideswiped the Washington automobile and plunged ahead to disappear down the road.

Both Cars Overturned.

The Owens car, momentarily out of control by the terrific impact, careened into the Lady machine, which had been following closely behind the hit-and-runner, and both cars overturned.

Miss Reese was killed by a fracture of the skull as she was pitched headlong to the road. Robert S. Rennie, of 616 Wyanoke avenue, Baltimore, a passing motorist, placed several of the injured persons in his car and took them to the University Hospital, while an ambulance from Baltimore bore the other hurt persons there a short time later.

With the arrest of Owens, Baltimore police took in custody the Lady youth and his father as State witnesses to insure their appearance at a coroner's inquest to be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Central Police Station in Baltimore by Dr. Germanus J. France, automobile coroner.

Had Lived Here Year.

Miss Reese was a native of Ithaca, N. Y., where reside her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Reese. The young woman was graduated in the class of 1927 from Cornell University, in her native city, and came, about a year ago, to Washington, where she accepted employment with the White House Conference on Child Health. Assigned at that time for stenographic work for a special committee headed by Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture, Miss Reese had been stationed in the offices of the bureau.

Her brother, John Reese, of Easton, Pa., was expected to arrive here today to make arrangements for disposition of the body.

Neither the occupants of the Owens car or the Lady machine were able to furnish Baltimore police with a description of the hit-and-run automobile or its driver.

Second Coogan Begins Picture Career Today

Hollywood, Calif., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Another Coogan, Jackie's brother Robert, will begin a screen career tomorrow. He has been signed by Paramount for the role of Sookie, pal of Skippy, in a filmization of "Skippy," from Percy Crosby's cartoons and novel.

By coincidence Robert Coogan will make his screen debut at the age of 5, the age Jackie appeared in his first motion picture, "The Kid," with Charles Chaplin. Jackie is making a series of older boy pictures, the next of which will be "Huckleberry Finn."

NEWMAN LECTURES

"Seeing Italy-Naples to the Alps" was presented in a traveltalk yesterday at the National Theater by E. M. Newman, in his opening talk of his twenty-second season. His talk was illustrated by motion pictures and selected color views.

Among the scenes were those of old Gubbio, where the newest buildings are more than 300 years old, and the Italia Irridenta, that quaint section near the Italian border in the Alps. One of the unusual and out-of-the-way places the average tourist seldom sees is San Marino, the smallest republic in the world, only 32 miles square and perched on top of a mountain. Its citizens are a free people who have maintained their independence for hundreds of years regardless of the many wars and revolutions that have raged around them.

In his traveltalk this year, Mr. Newman stressed the human side of the countries visited by frequent motion pictures of the people as they go about their daily work, in their homes and on fete days. Curious customs at a peasant wedding in Assisi and shepherds with their peculiar musical instruments were depicted.

The second of the traveltalks will be given next Sunday on the subject, "Rome and the Vatican City."

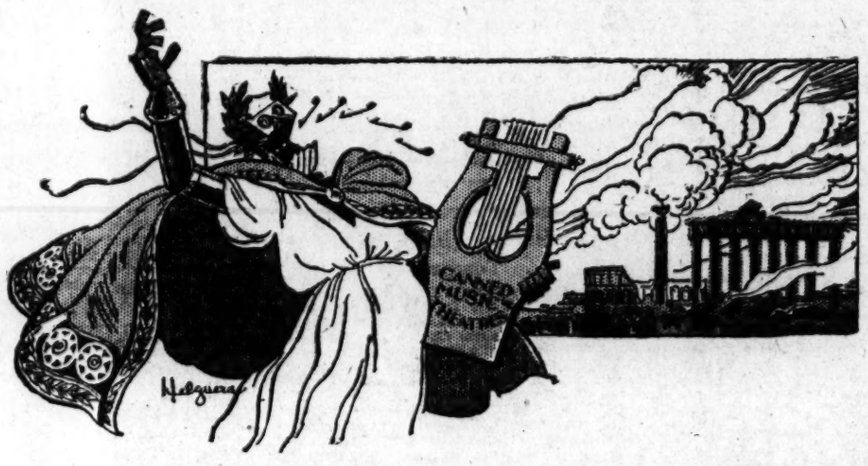
"FIDDLING" WHILE ROME BURNS



THEY say Nero "fiddled" while Rome burned. Probably just to show what a callous monster he was. Nero denied the story. Said he was out helping the firemen.

Really, it is difficult to believe that any human being could view such a frightful tragedy without emotion.

But the unhuman Robot can and does "fiddle" while the Art of Music starves — a human disaster of far greater consequence than the burning of Rome.

BISHOP, OVER RADIO, ASKS AID FOR CHEST

Appeal First of Kind Made From Cathedral; Speaks Upon Parable.

NEED FOR FUND IS TOLD

In the first public appeal for funds ever broadcsat over the radio from the Washington Cathedral the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, D. D., Bishop of the Washington Diocese, yesterday cited the parable of the Good Samaritan in urging support for the Community Chest.

Bishop Freeman declared that he was impelled to take that theme because of the combined appeal of the Chest and the Red Cross.

"Most of you who are sitting in your homes this Sunday afternoon have not felt the pinch of want, or seen the shadow of starvation," the cleric asserted. "The goal of $1,950,154.40 which our Community Chest is asking is almost a paltry sum, when we consider the resources of the people in the Capital of the Nation. What is the Community Chest for? It is here to minister to those who for various reasons can not minister to themselves.

Treated One-Tenth.

"One of our hospitals gave free treatment last year to 41,218 people, or approximately one-tenth of the population of the District of Columbia. The ministrations were given freely to Catholic, Protestant, Pagan and Christian, with not a question asked. Is it worth while? Do you want us to continue this sort of service, or would you prefer to have hospitals such as these close their door?

"I personally would be willing to stand on every street corner in Washington and appeal for the Community Chest before I would see this free service to our needy people discontinued," Bishop Freeman said.

"The genius of the Community Chest lies in something more than the mere outpouring of wealth once a year. For one week it gives me the privilege of standing with my brother, Rabbi Simon, and my brothers of the Roman Catholic Church, shoulder to shoulder, as comrades in this all-important cause. Would to God we could multiply this one week by 52. The wonderful comradeship of service through the Community Chest is an underlying thing that some people fail to see.

Appeals to Christians.

"On authority of the parable of the Good Samaritan, I depart from my usual practice and appeal frankly for the Community Chest over the radio from this pulpit. Men shall not walk the streets of Washington without bread; women shall not lack nourishment for their babies and the cold of winter shall not bring suffering to little children, unless the Christian churches of all names fail to meet this great opportunity.

"I call upon all my Christian brethren to give to this cause or dissolve their faith. This call must be answered this week in terms of a generosity that takes no cognizance of class, cult or kind. Let us be true to our ideals and show that America, as typified in the Capital of the Nation, is more Christian than she is commercial," Bishop Freeman concluded.

Debut of Baritone Gives Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen Joy

Representative Feels Faith in Young Protege Is Justified.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Ruth Bryan Owen saw a protege, a young Southern singer named Benjamin De Loache, make his bow last night in concert, and felt her faith in him justified.

About 300 of the Capital's official and social leaders applauded the singer and called him back five times for encores.

Mrs. Owen became interested in De Loache four years ago through her son, John Bryan Owen. John came to the debut from New York, where he spent this season playing in Shakespeare with Fritz Leiber's company.

The young barytone faced Secretaries Hyde, Wilbur and Hurley, Justices Stone, Butler and Roberts, of the Supreme Court, and dozens of senators and representatives, as well as the diplomatic envoys of several nations.

Robed in black velvet, Mrs. Owen was a stately impressoria. She presented her protege and Miss Elizabeth Westmoreland, winsome accompanist.

Most of the songs on the program were operatic and difficult, in Italian, German, French and English. Formal groups completed, the singer turned to Negro spirituals.

Another son of the Florida representative—Reginald Bryan Owen—stood, smiling, beside De Loach afterward. The two share rooms at Philadelphia, where Reginald is preparing for college. While he is singing with the Philadelphia Opera Company, De Loache continues his studies at the Curtis Institute of Music. There Miss Westmoreland, an Oklahoma girl, also coaches and studies piano.

Before returning to Philadelphia De Loache will give three other concerts—one in his home town of Camden, S. C. De Loache won a national award in the Atwater Kent radio audition three years ago.

GIGANTIC RALLY TO OPEN DRIVE FOR CAPITAL CHEST TONIGHT

in this land. This situation presents a serious challenge to the wealthy especially, but also to those in comfortable circumstances. How can the Catholic who has a superabundance of the things of life stand by unconcerned while thousands of poor families are suffering from serious want?

"I am sure that the spirit of Christian love that grows so naturally from our faith will shine out with a new luster in these trying times. We must give, even when giving means sacrifice.

"Failure Means Suffering."

"Through the Community Chest we have entered into an arrangement with the other social and charitable organizations of Washington to make a joint appeal for funds. We have agreed to do our part to make that appeal a success. In this arrangement we are on trial before our fellow citizens. In aiding the Chest, we are really aiding our nine Catholic charitable institutions and organizations.

"Failure on our part to support the Chest and to respond generously to its appeal will mean suffering and privation for our own poor, our sick, our dependent and neglected children.

"We are participating in the Community Chest of Washington because we feel that it is the most effective method of supporting our Catholic charities. The Chest does not interfere with our autonomy; it does not dictate our policies. We still carry on our own work in our own way, under the guidance and inspiration and Catholic teaching.

"'Under the Community Chest we still have the same opportunity of exercising the virtue of Christian charity. If anything, the Chest has enlarged our opportunity for charitable service. Through its extensive organization we can reach a greater number of our people than ever before. It has enabled those who care for our poor to do their work more effectively, and it has relieved them of much of their anxiety.

"If you desire to become acquainted with the benefits of the Chest, go to the good Sisters who conduct our institutions. Give for their sake, for the sake of the little ones under their care, and for the sake of God's poor, regardless of every consideration except their poverty. You will receive a reward immeasurably great.

Wishing priests and people every blessing, I remain, yours sincerely.

Signed "MICHAEL J. CURLEY,
"Archbishop of Baltimore."

In addition to the letter of Archbishop Curley, the Rev. John Cartwright made a special plea for the Chest at the 12 o'clock mass at St. Patrick's Church.

Bishop Freeman's Theme.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Washington, devoted his sermon at the Cathedral yesterday afternoon to the Community Chest and the Red Cross.

Among the other ministers who appealed for the Chest in their sermons was Dr. A. J. McCartney, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, who took the parable of the Good Samaritan as the theme for presenting his message of the Red Cross and the Community Chest.

The Rev. J. L. S. Holloman, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, said in his sermon:

"The Community Chest is organized to fight a battle of peace. It mobilizes all the resources and every one of our citizens to overcome all the ills of society. It is giving the finest opportunity for cooperation in the realization of the greatest good. During the campaign every citizen is priviliged to contribute service or goods for the greatest happiness for our city as a whole and for the realization of an ideal."

The Rev. Benjamin H. Melton, pastor of the Ninth Street Christian Church, emphasized the great needs set for the Chest appeal. "These needs have never been greater than at the present time," he said. "Notwithstanding the financial depression, our people must rally in a heroic way to put this across successfully."

CLERIC DENOUNCES COMMUNISTIC RULE

Russia's Fate Since Leaving Faith Told in Catholic Hour Talk.

CZAR IN POPE'S PLACE

It has been a characteristic of all peoples in departing from the Catholic faith that, although they fall by degrees, they keep on denying the faith more and more until they become Christless, the Very Rev. Father Paul, founder and father general of the Graymoor Franciscan Friars of the Atonement, declared yesterday in a sermon at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, in a sermon broadcast as part of the Catholic Radio Hour.

He said that the first missionaries in Russia went with the blessing of the Apostolic See, but that later on the czars, not wishing to subject themselves in any way to the Pope, turned to Constantinople.

The czar was later substituted for the Pope, according to Father Paul, but all was an imitation of the Catholic Church.

"Suddenly like a thunderbolt out of the skies, the czars of the House of Romanoff were stricken down," he declared. "Out of the ruins has arisen the latest and most terrific manifestation of the man of sin, in the history of Christianity. I refer to the Soviet administration that rules Russia with a rod of iron.

"It is a system that defies God and puts Him down from the throne; that declares all religion is a dope to the people and must be gotten rid of; that atheism is the emancipation of the people. And this is the plague of communism which is spreading even to our own country," he declared.

by "two Italians" when he refused their demands for money. He said he had given them $15 to leave, and he had then gone to sleep. He woke to find his wife dead.

He told his story as police stood around him in the Cherry street bedroom. The only living thing that might have seen what happened there this Sunday morning and who might have been willing to tell, merely looked at the room full of policemen, at the body on the bed and squawked:

"Hello, Poll—Hello, Poll."

WASHINGTON TO GET BID

Geneva, Jan. 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Italians and Japanese—the latter unofficially—have joined the ranks of the countries represented on the council of the League of Nations which are advocating that an American be named president of the General Disarmament Conference to be held early next year.

Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, told the World correspondent today: "You can say that the Italian government would be delighted if an American were to be made chairman of the conference."

Yoshizawa, Japanese Ambassador at Paris and Tokyo's spokesman on the council, said: "Personally, I entirely approve the choice of an American if Washington can be persuaded. I can not speak officially on behalf of my government, however, without consulting Tokyo."

Others Have Same View.

Patrick McGilligan, foreign minister of the Irish Free State, who set in motion the drive for an American chairman, expressed confidence that Washington's objections to an American assuming the post would be overcome before the conference convenes.

Half a dozen members of the council—German, Spanish, two Latin-American, Norwegian and Persian delegates—insist that only irrevocable refusal on the part of Washington would prevent the choice of an American chairman. Such refusal, they say, would be deplorable.

Effort to obtain unanimous agreement on the identity of the president of the conference will be made during coming months by means of diplomatic exchanges among members of the council and consultations with Washington, Moscow, Angora and with members of the league not represented on the council. The initial negotiations will center around Washington.

Accommodations Problem.

Although Geneva has been designated as the probable scene of the conference, definite decision on this depends largely on whether a 500-room hotel can be erected here before the first session is convoked and on whether adequate administrative facilities can be guaranteed in advance.

Anticipating the presence at the conference of more than 500 correspondents, the International Association of Journalists has appointed a committee to conduct negotiations with the league, the Swiss authorities and the council regarding facilities.

Memorial Service Honors Col. Young

Achievements of Officer Seen as Symbol to Negro Race.

Memorial services in honor of the late Col. Charles Young, U. S. A., were held yesterday at the Lincoln Temple Congregational Church, under auspices of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, of which he was a member. Harry M. Landers was master of ceremonies. The memorial address was made by Capt. Arthur C. Newman, who said Col. Young's life should be viewed as a symbol to the Negro in America.

He gave an account of the colored Army officer's experiences at West Point, in the frontier service as a member of the Ninth Cavalry, as professor of military science and tactics at Wilberforce University, as major of volunteers in the Spanish-American War, as commander of a Cavalry troop in the Philippine service, as superintendent of the Sequoia and Grant Parks, as military attache at Port au Prince and Monrovia, as one of the officers in charge with Pershing in Mexico, as Spingarn medalist, and as an author of military monographs.

Tribute was also paid by the Rev. R. W. Brooks. Countee Cullen's poem, in memory of Col. Young, was recited by William Robinson. Musical numbers were furnished by a double quartet from Howard University: Miss Mary L. Europe and Louisa Vaughn Jones. Services were continued at Arlington Cemetery, where a wreath was placed on Col. Young's grave.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

PURE STUFF.

Out of the worm-still of his prophetic soul Charles Michelson distills this intoxicating thought:

"Prohibition is political."

He slips it to Jouett Shouse, who bootlegs it to the Atlantic Monthly as his own product.

It is a lickerish thought, mellow, smooth and 100 proof. Like all distillations that are not denatured, its purity is like truth itself, which is a gem of many facets showing different colors to different men, according to where they stand. To the immortal eleven of the Wickersham commission, for example, prohibition appears in eleven distinct colors; but all of the immortals can agree that the thing itself is political. Prohibition is local; prohibition is sectional; prohibition is a State question; prohibition is a legislative, judicial, executive and administrative question; a settled policy or a burning issue; it is whatever it may seem, but in the final condensation it is political.

After sampling his home brew Mr. Michelson has a glorious vision of the future of the Democratic party, still speaking through Mr. Shouse:

> I do not hesitate to express the hope that in its next national platform my party may face this vexed problem with courage and without equivocation. * * * Until some sweeping reform is accomplished there seems no possibility of a beneficial change in conditions. * * * A straightforward recognition of prevailing conditions and an honest effort to correct them constitute perhaps the foremost duty of good citizenship that confronts America today.

"Repeal or modification" under the valorous leadership of the Democratic party is the Dutch courage conclusion reached by Mr. Michelson, speaking through Mr. Shouse.

When other great Democrats sip the decoction, however, the truth takes on a more sober hue. In the South the politics of prohibition does not bear the rosy glow of repeal or modification, but rather the glacial pallor of enforcement. In that region John J. Raskob and his hearties are sons of Belial, flown with insolence and wine. Senator Caraway may take a nip of the aromatic spirits of Michelson, and dream that politics and enforcement may be divorced on the ground of incompatibility, but on sober second thought he will doubtless stand with his State in insisting that politics, as understood and applied in Arkansas, means enforcement and not repeal.

There is Senator Black, of Alabama. Does he approve of a Democratic national platform demanding repeal of the eighteenth amendment? What does Senator George, of Georgia, think of it? Do Senator Smith, of South Carolina, and Senator Morrison, of North Carolina, after imbibing the deceitful potion, indulge in the inebriating vision of a solid wet South?

These gentlemen will come up for election next year. Prohibition is political with them, in a special and excruciating sense. Will they join in the courageous movement to throw off the shackles of the eighteenth amendment, or will they conclude that discretion is political, also?

REGULATION OF MONEY LENDING.

Because of unexpected last-minute opposition that developed in committee hearings, it appears not unlikely that the small loans bill will fail of enactment in the present session of Congress. Such a measure is urgently needed for the protection of citizens who find it necessary to raise funds at any cost. At present the city is infested with loan sharks whose practice it is to charge from 40 up to as high as 500 per cent upon their loans. These high rates of interest are not, of course, charged directly, but through such subterfuges as brokerage fees, investigations, recording, &c.

The proposed small loan bill would permit the charging of interest up to 3 per cent per month on loans of less than $300. This is a high rate of interest, and it is on the ground that 36 per cent a year is excessive that the opposition has developed. Unless, however, the law permits companies engaged in loaning small amounts of money to make a profit they will not be organized, and the community will remain at the mercy of loan sharks. Those who have investigated all phases of the small loan problem are of the opinion that 3 per cent per month is not an excessive rate for loans of this nature and further, that a lower maximum limit would not attract reputable small loan companies.

No opposition has developed to the bill permitting the establishment in the Capital of credit unions. These associations afford a modicum of relief from loan sharks, but they do not serve the general public. Legislation that will curb the loan sharks is urgently needed.

FIXING RETAIL PRICES.

In view of the present spread between the cost of production and the selling price of some commodities the Kelly resale price bill is again brought forward as an economic cure-all. Representative Clyde Kelly has long advocated legalized control of retail prices by manufacturers, but he has not made much progress. The investigation of retail prices of food being conducted by a Senate committee is apparently playing into his hands.

This bill would allow manufacturers of trade-marked products to fix the retail price of their goods. Dealers in such commodities would not be held to their agreement when closing out their stock or disposing of seasonal or damaged goods. The measure is ostensibly designed to abolish price cutting on one hand and to prevent excessive profits on the other.

The question to be considered is whether this proposed remedy would not be worse than the disease. A poll on the bill in the American Economic Association revealed that only 82 of the 523 members voting were in favor of the measure. It is freely condemned by economists because it would tend to stifle competition among retailers and to perpetuate the inefficiencies in the present methods of distributing goods for consumption. It would reduce the retailer to a sales agent for branded goods and deprive him of the power to attract trade by passing on to the consumer any part of the savings he may make by his skill, judgment and economies in conducting his business.

The difficulties of fixing a price that would be equitable within all sections of a given area is in itself sufficient to cast doubt on the practicability of this measure. Should the manufacturer fix the retail price to include transportation, and allow merchants in the city where the goods originate to make an extra profit? There would be difficulties of making price adjustments in times of slack business. The result might be a stiffening of the business structure and a tendency to prolong depressions.

The bill is an attempt to interfere with the laws of supply and demand. Such attempts are unwise, even when they are not intended to gouge the consumer.

PLANNING FOR EMERGENCIES.

Introduced in 1929 at the behest of Secretary of War Good, who urged its immediate enactment, the proposed universal draft bill, it is now revealed, does not meet with the approval of Secretary Hurley. "After more consideration," writes the Secretary of War, "I do not believe it advisable to ask Congress to enact legislation of this nature in time of peace. There is great possibility that any legislation enacted now would prove inadequate for the particular emergency in which the country might become involved. It would be harmful and disturbing to have to repeal such legislation and procure the enactment of a different law containing the essential provisions." Mr. Hurley suggests that all bills considered necessary in the event of war be drafted now and kept up to date, and that they be discussed from time to time by the appropriate committees of Congress. "In this way," he says, "the latest thought would be always incorporated in the bills, and Congress would be in a position to act without hesitation whenever an emergency became imminent."

A House joint resolution was adopted last June providing for a commission to study and consider the feasibility of equalizing the burdens of war and to minimize the profits of war and to study policies to be pursued in the event of war, so as to enable the President immediately to mobilize all the resources of the country. The commission is directed to report not later than January, 1932. Its report probably will contain the nucleus of a program adequate to provide for the mobilization of America's strength in the event of an emergency.

Until this commission reports it would be most unwise to pass the universal draft bill, especially in the face of official opposition. The suggestion that such legislation might impede progress if it were placed on the statute books demands serious consideration.

ALIENS MUST BE COUNTED.

Senator Vandenberg inserted in the Congressional Record figures showing what the gains and losses of the States would be if seats in the House of Representatives were reapportioned on the basis of the popular vote cast for President in 1928. No one is seriously advocating such a reapportionment, but the figures are interesting because of their bearing upon the proposed constitutional amendment to exclude aliens from the count on which representation in the House is based.

Agitation for such an amendment has become active. It is supported chiefly by the friends of prohibition because of their belief that if only citizens figured in this count, the strength of the industrial States, where wet sentiment is strongest, would be reduced. On the same ground the wets oppose it.

Theoretically there seems to be no good reason why members of the House should not be elected to represent citizens only. Aliens have no vote. Why should the domicile of a large number of aliens within a State increase its representation in Congress? Would it not be in harmony with American principles of government to amend the Constitution so that citizens and not "persons" would be counted for this purpose?

The tendency of a person who sees theory only is to answer in the affirmative. But a glance at Senator Vandenberg's figures changes the picture somewhat. Reapportionment on the basis of the popular vote cast would give New England 7 additional seats; the Middle Atlantic States, 15; the East North Central States, 21; the West North Central States (which are now the heaviest losers), 14; the Mountain States, 1, and the Pacific States, 2 additional seats. On the contrary, the South Atlantic States would lose 21 seats; the East South Central States would lose 14, and the West South Central, 25.

There can be only one interpretation to these figures. The Southern States deprive vast numbers of their citizens of the voting franchise. From the practical standpoint there seems to be no reason why aliens should be excluded from the reapportionment count and disenfranchised colored persons included. The South, of course, would never consent to the exclusion of both, and the industrial States would never allow the exclusion of one class of voteless inhabitants without the other. The ambitions of one section effectively check those of the other. Hence, this proposed amendment is likely to follow thousands of others into a cozy pigeonhole.

Adolf Hitler, German Fascist leader, bans dancing among his followers. He has not, however, abandoned his plans to make his political opponents dance.

"LOUISIANA AVENUE"

By MRS. JAMES J. McLOUGHLIN.

The people of Louisiana requested District of Columbia officials to designate as "Louisianna avenue" the only new avenue to be opened in central Washington. In making the petition State congressmen are supported by leading organizations, the Louisiana Chamber of Commerce, the New Orleans Association of Commerce and the Louisiana Historical Society standing with many others in favor of the project. The avenue to be opened in Washington's finest section has several claimants, but none of them presents the splendid reasons for receiving the honor that our State gives. The Louisiana Purchase, which admitted over thirteen States to the Union, is the base of our claim. Bienville's colonization at New Orleans made this historic deed possible and its final scenes were enacted here in the South's center of commerce and power. No city in the United States occupies the important central position of New Orleans, key to the Mississippi Valley and South American trade.

That "truth is stranger than fiction" has been verified by La Salle's exploration of the Mississippi River. A frail canoe bore him down the unknown river to its mouth where he planted the colors of France and first uttered the beautiful name "Louisiana." He took possession of a vast territory extending from the Allegheny to the Rocky Mountains, from Canada to the Mexican Gulf. The "proces verbal" began with the words "By virtue of the commission I hold in my hand, I do now take possession of this country of Louisiana." La Salle was destined to be assassinated in the wilds of Texas, but he stamped the Fleur-de-Lis in the Mississippi Valley and left records that place his name among American heroes.

His followers began work to be subsequently taken up by Frenchmen who colonized, explored and held the region baptized with the blood of a martyr. Louisiana history abounds in chapters that equal any records of other sections. Iberville and Bienville imitated patriotism of those who opened the wilderness to civilization. The claim of France was never questioned and Napoleon was able to negotiate the Louisiana transfer with valid titles to the entire Mississippi Valley.

The voice that first breathed "Louisiana" was hushed by a cruel death, but its power sealed the land with a royal insignia. Napoleon's genius foresaw what his act meant to the United States. His sale for fifteen million dollars was destined to cement a great nation whose boundaries extend from ocean to ocean on east and west.

The Louisiana Purchase has never been commemorated by any public act on the part of our government. The time seems appropriate now for national recognition of what Louisiana means to the country at large. It would be a lasting testimonial to traditions upheld by Marquette, La Salle, Bienville, Lafayette and Rochambeau. Washington himself in planning the National Capital could not leave Frenchmen out and selected L'Enfant to chart and survey the beautiful city he founded.

L'Enfant was a distinguished engineer, and when he designed the city's streets and parks he kept his native Paris in view, so that the American city resembles the French capital in outline. What could be more feasible than that Washington should have a fine boulevard representative of what France has done for our land? – "Louisiana avenue" is beautiful in sound and full of historic meaning. Let scholarly men in charge of naming the new central boulevard consider Louisiana's rights in this matter that we may be victors in the contest which has lasted over six months. Congress names streets of Washington, but committees control final action. It is to those committees Louisiana makes a strong appeal in the names of two great Louisianians, Zachary Taylor and Edward Douglas White who could so ably present the State's case were they not counted among Louisiana's illustrious dead.

Nearing Perfection.

Christian Science Monitor: A device has been invented that utilizes an invisible ray to open a door. A waiter laden with a heavy tray approaches and bumping into the ray opens a switch, whereat the door swings on its hinges. That is going one better than the "open sesame" password of the Arabian Nights.

Safety First in Japan.

Japan Advertiser: In the future the motorist who races trains to crossings will do so at his own risk. His heirs will have no claim on any railway company, public or private, if his temerity sends him on a journey he had not expected to take so immediately. The new ruling is a recognition of the fact that this is an age of speed, and that the country will be benefited more by faster train schedules than by preserving the lives of idiots who race trains to crossings.

THE BILLION-DOLLAR JUNK MAN.

The junk man has long since arrived, says the Wall Street Journal. His dignity and influence must be upheld when it is considered, besides hundreds of other junked materials, that upward of 30,000,000 tons of scrap iron and steel are consumed annually in the United States alone. This business of salvaging waste material, which in addition to iron and steel, includes copper, brass, paper, rags and bottles, started by an itinerant immigrant with his clanging bell, has grown consistently and now constitutes an international trade factor, the price of this material being closely watched as market trend indicators. His billion-dollar business also plays an important role in the conservation of natural resources, since, for every ton of scrap metal used, there is an amount of iron ore, coal and limestone saved as a natural resource.

THE GARDEN.

If they shall ask me over there
What in this world I liked the best,
I'll say a certain garden where
The purple martins used to nest,
And those glad evenings when we were
Together and our happiest.

And I shall name the friends who came Unheralded to chat a while,
Forgetting pomp and place and fame,
To stroll among the flowers and smile
And ask some blossom's common name
As we went by them single file.

I shall not mention glories great,
Nor say the world I girdled round,
Or heard wise statesmen in debate,
Or looked on kings and princes crowned,
But I shall eagerly relate
The beauties of that patch of ground.

Opinions Affect the Betting, But the Quality That Wins the Race Is in the Horse.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

STATESMANSHIP and speechmaking have been inseparable since the beginning of recorded history, yet those who are familiar with the ways of politicians agree that speeches made in the Senate and the House of Representatives seldom, if ever, change a vote.

Congressional oratory relieves pent-up emotions, gratifies personal vanity and tickles the folks back home; but when the tumult and the shouting die, the votes are cast as they were pledged before the welkin rang.

Equally ineffectual is the talk of the people and the propaganda of partisans. Either or both may affect unimportant details or temporary expedients, but great schemes prosper or fail in the final accounting by reason of their own merit or lack of it.

The avalanche moves on, unmindful of the myriad crackling noises that accompany it and eventually changes the course of a river because it is made of stone or melts away because it is composed of ice.

Those who live today are privileged to witness two of the greatest experiments ever attempted by man—that of prohibition in America and that of Communism in Russia.

The success or failure of one will determine the destiny of a nation. The success or failure of the other will determine the destiny of mankind.

Yet the people can be little more than spectators while these great matters shape themselves, and all the talk pro and con and all the printed propaganda can affect the ultimate event no more than the chatter of monkeys can alter the climate in a jungle.

If prohibition makes America more prosperous, more secure, more decent and more sober, it will survive. If it makes the land less respectable and less safe, less honorable and less prosperous, it will ultimately fail.

If Communism makes the people of Russia happier and more prosperous, and enables them to produce goods more cheaply than like goods can be produced by other systems, it will survive and spread to every land on the globe. But if it makes the people less happy and less prosperous, or if it fails to produce goods equal in quality and lower in price than those produced by its "capitalistic" competitors, no power on earth can save it.

Propaganda can change opinions, but not facts. Much talk can hasten or hinder great undertakings.

But at last the wheat is winnowed from the chaff. Wisdom is justified of her children. And the way that is best survives, as the fittest survive in the jungle.

PRO AND CON

Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great Show, "Politics," Staged in Congress.

Playing More Politics With Misery.

Minneapolis Journal.

The Senate has voted to give the Red Cross $25,000,000 out of the Federal Treasury to feed the hungry in drought areas and elsewhere. The House, if it gets the opportunity to vote on the question, is expected to follow suit. And Herbert Hoover, if he exercises his veto power, will be pilloried by Democrats and insurgent Republicans as the hard-hearted President who tried to keep the hungry from being fed. In such manner do the schemers of Congress play politics with human misery.

The Red Cross has not asked for twenty-five million dollars, but for ten millions. The Red Cross has not wanted the ten millions from the Federal Treasury, but from the pocketbooks of benevolently inclined citizens. And the Red Cross would have had its ten millions by this time, had not Senator Robinson a while back, in sheer defiance of his harmony pledge, started his move to substitute Government doles for private charity. For even a benevolently inclined citizen is likely to delay the contribution out of his philanthropy pocket until he finds whether a duplicate contribution is to be extracted by force from his tax pocket.

We Will—We Are.

St. Louis Post Dispatch.

The Wickersham Commission's report recalls the company of infantry who were being harangued by their gallant Irish captain just before going into battle. "Bhoys," he shouted, "will ye fight or will ye run?" And the men yelled, "We will!" Mr. Hoover asked the Wickersham Commission, "Are you wet or are you dry?" And almost two years later the embattled eleven murmur, "We are."

"Cooperation"—Huh!

Springfield Republican.

Those Democratic national leaders who just before the opening of Congress promised cooperation to speed up constructive legislation must be wondering.

The Senate Yelped for Haste.

Detroit News.

Certain senators have indicated their suspicion that President Hoover "influenced" the findings of the Wickersham commission on the prohibition subject, and have said they want an inquiry to find out if this is true.

If these senators can divorce themselves from politics for a moment, and enter the realm of common sense, they will see that the report was "influenced" chiefly by their own passionate demands that it be made and laid before them.

They have criticized, belabored and bedeviled the commission almost since it was appointed. They have begged and urged and demanded that it bring in a report of some kind. They have threatened to cut off its appropriation because, faced with one of the most abstruse problems ever laid before a public body, it did not leap to a conclusion for the Senate to pick to pieces. A commission named to investigate, weigh the evidence and report—a semijudicial commission—the Senate has refused to consider as anything but a political body, and, jealous of all political bodies but itself, it—or a large section of its members—has flouted and worried and hampered the Wickersham board at every turn.

Raskob's Mortgage.

Topeka Capital

As the Springfield Republican sagely observes, Mr. Raskob probably will not only be unable to collect on his mortgage on the Democratic party, but because of the fact that he generously loaned it so much money, will lose his job. Parties, like republics, are ungrateful that way.

It Had to Happen.

Indianapolis News.

Now there is a congressional proposal to investigate the Wickersham commission, something that had to come.

Installment Buying.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Raskob denies he has bought and paid for the Democratic party. Guess there are a few installments still due.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Mall in Danger of Destruction by Encroachment of Automobile Parking and Public Buildings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I hope you will allow me space in which to supplement the protest of J. L., who views with alarm the increase of motor parking in the Mall and says that, if a stop is not put to it at once, there will be "no Mall, but a vast garage." Undoubtedly there is great danger that, if not a vast garage, with the sky for a roof, there will eventually be an incongruous group of garages located on the Mall for the use of Government employes.

Indeed, I do not doubt that there are "planners" who, in anticipation of the Government triangle traffic conditions of the near future, have already mentally blue-printed the magnificent Mall reservation as a parking space.

Furthermore, as Chairman Frederic A. Delano, of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, stated at a Board of Trade meeting the other day, it is proposed to locate a national fine arts building on the north side of the Mall, between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets. This is an additional encroachment, which from time to time for many years has been protested against by the press and public-spirited citizens.

In fact, the Mall has been architecturally exploited until today a group of costly and imposing but ill-matched buildings breaks up its virgin continuity as originally designed. The menace to the Mall is not alone that of garages, but also of Government structures in general.

The architectural specialist as well as the traffic expert sees in every public reservation a prospective site for building operations.

In order to preserve what Washington and L'Enfant expected would always remain conspicuous as a national beauty spot it is to be regretted that we have no official landscape authority who, paraphrasing the famous line, "Woodman, spare that tree," is bold enough to give the emphatic command, "Planner, spare that park!"

Intimations From the Big Train and the Old Fox Serve as a Cocktail to Loyal Fans.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "We're thinking about the pennant next season," says the Big Train, Walter Johnson, in connection with the purchase of speedy, hard-hitting Outfielder Harry Rice from the Yankees to strengthen the Nat line-up. That kind of talk amounts to nothing, some may say, but as an unabashed believer in applied optimism in baseball, I think it amounts to a good deal and is a good sign from the Washington viewpoint. Especially if you'll remember that, as demonstrated in the past, when Walter is thinking about winning the effect is equal to any mind cure you were ever asked to believe in.

Of course, pennant-winning signs are not apt to shine this early, as I feel they will later on. But there is another midwinter sign which I am glad to contemplate. Owner Clark Griffith has been on the scout for talent, convinced, as The Post's expert fan puts it, that "his Nationals have a chance to win the 1931 pennant."

Coming from some owners such a statement would not be of great importance. But the Old Fox is not very much inclined to vain boasting, and so it is encouraging that he should sound an optimistic note so soon. If he is not quite as chipper as a junco picking midwinter crumbs in a backyard, any pennant-winning intimation on his part at this stage of the game should prove an inspiring cocktail for pop-eyed fans looking forward to the hour when the line-up is ready and bats begin to crack.

HENRY WARD BLEACHER.

Shabby Condition of Untenanted Houses—A Chance for the Jobless.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a newcomer in Washington who intends to establish a permanent residence in this wonderful city, I was confronted and confounded by the great number of palatial buildings unoccupied and unpoliced.

Those windows of mansions not boarded up are dirty and grimy. Shaggy lawns with untrimmed shrubbery are littered with rubbish and waste paper.

Each day when I pass an edifice of stone and marble decorated with much wrought iron its green blinds bid me scurry along.

A few squares nearer the White House I am nearly thrown into the gutter by a porte cochere jutting out zig-zaggily. Glancing up, I behold the majesty of the British lion, and looking down I see a mangy hedge of box adorned with scraps of paper.

This condition obtains not on one street, but many.

Why not employ some of the great army of jobless men to clean up some of these places?

HELEN CARSON.

Sidney Lanier's Picture of the Senate Recalled.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Was it but coincidence that led me recently, in a cursory examination of Sidney Lanier's "Complete Poems," to chance upon his verses, "Laughter in the Senate." Feelingly, I quote the final lines:

Look how the senators ape the clown,
And don the motley and hide the gown;
But yonder a fast-rising frown
On the people's forehead lowers.
Lanier, it would seem, was seer as well as dreamer.

Eighteenth Amendment Can Be Repealed Only With Consent of the Drys.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It makes me laugh to see the wets squirm. They expected the Wickersham commission to favor repeal, or a modification of law that would permit traffic in "light wines and beer." Nothing doing!

The eighteenth amendment can not be repealed without the consent of us drys. We hold the one-third veto power. E. PLURIBUS UNUM.

SOVIET STILL RELIES ON FOREIGN EXPERTS

Needs 13,000 More Skilled Men if Year's Plan Is to Succeed.

EXPECT MANY FROM U. S.

Moscow, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The Soviet government will continue to look to the foreign specialist for the necessary technical skill in putting across the five-year industrialization plan.

Government officials estimated today 13,000 additional foreign engineers, technicians and skilled workers would be needed in 1931 if the scheduled construction is to be carried out.

There are more than 4,000 foreign specialists employed under individual contracts by the Soviet Union, in addition to 2,000 or more employes of 124 large foreign companies having technical-aid contracts with the government.

Schools Cut Courses.

Efforts to develop native talent by intensive training methods have met largely with failure. Technical schools generally cut their courses from three years to six months, students working day and night to qualify in the various technical professions. But a majority of the students were found unable to endure the strain, and large classes were reduced greatly before completion of the courses.

Of the 13,000 more men needed in 1931, 3,000 are engineers, 3,000 foremen and 7,000 skilled workers. Europe is expected to supply about 2,600 of the engineers, the same number of foremen, and about 5,000 skilled workers. The remainder is expected to be obtained in America.

The unemployment situation in the rest of the world puts the Soviet Union in a favorable position in employing foreign help, as applicants for the most part are willing to work for less than in more prosperous times.

Try to Satisfy Foreigners.

Practically all foreigners are under contract whereby they receive part of their salaries in the currencies of their countries and part in rubles.

The government has been trying to do everything possible to make foreign employes satisfied. Shops have been opened in the various industrial centers for foreigners only, where they can buy food and other commodities at lower prices than in the open market.

In the elections now in progress throughout the country, the foreigners are being urged to vote and even to propose their own candidates for the soviets, a procedure permissible under the constitution.

Further Speed Urged.

Joseph V. Stalin, head of the central committee of the Communist party, and Vyacheslaff Molotoff, chairman of the council of peoples commissars of the Soviet Union, have appealed to all Communist and government economic organizations to speed up the collective farm program this spring.

The note declared the aim is the further collectivization of the poor middle class peasants and to realize the liquidation of the Kulaks as a class." This was interpreted as a further move in the long strife against the Kulaks, who are prosperous and independent peasants, thus standing in the way of the Communist collective ideal.

All economic bodies were urged to pay greater attention to the spring grain-sowing program this year, which is expected to involve about 44,000,000 acres as compared with 27,000,000 acres in 1930. The movement for production of more cotton in the union also is being pushed.

Spaniards Protest Russian Lumber

Efforts of Soviet to 'Dump' Product in Kingdom Stir Opposition.

Madrid, Jan. 25 (A.P.)—Spanish lumber importers protested to the government today against efforts of Soviet Russia to "dump" cheaply produced lumber on the Spanish market.

The Catalonian Agricultural Institute, in calling the attention of the government to shipments of Russian lumber now said to be available at Tarragona and other Mediterreanean ports, asked that the vessels be prohibted from unloading.

It was understood the government was favorably disposed to a bar against Russian lumber on the ground that it constituted a menace to the Spanish lumber industry.

Body of Pavlowa Will Lie in State

Friends in London Plan to Pay Final Tribute to Danseuse.

London, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The body of Anna Pavlowa, Russian ballet and interpertative dancer, who died Friday morning at The Hague, will be brought here early this week and will lie in state in the Russian Orthodox Church on Buckingham Palace road.

Friends and her admirers, who are legion in England, may file past the body and pay their last respects to a woman who in her lifetime roused a sense of beauty in millions.

Burial will take place later in the grounds at Ivy House, Hampstead, North London, where she and her husband, Victor d'Andre, made their home. She kept a number of swans and flamingoes there so she might constantly study their movements with an eye to accentuating her own grace.

Record Deposits of Platinum Found

Miners in Chile Say Their Holdings Are Richest in Universe.

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Discovery of the "richest platinum deposits in the world" is claimed by Enrique Rettig and Enrique Contreras Urizar.

Working with national mine experts, the men found platinum ore on the Island of Chiloe, in the southern province of the same name, and a company will be formed to work the mines shortly.

The discoverers told a newspaper interviewer today that the ore gives from 12 to 14 grams of the precious metal to a ton, and said tests made of the ore in Germany and England supported their local assaying.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Roy Swanson

A Chinaman's Chance

During the gold rush days in the West the forty-niners often took the law into their own hands. Chinamen were so much in the minority that when one of them got into trouble he had only a "Chinaman's chance" to escape punishment—which meant a slim one.

Tragedy

The Greeks recited and chanted songs at the festivals of Bacchus. The participants were clothed in goat skins, and both the idea of tragic plans and the word tragedy, which comes from Greek words meaning goat songs, originated from the Bacchanalian festivals.

Why We Believe In Dreams

Ancient people generally ascribed whatever they couldn't understand to the gods or spirits. Homer declared that dreams were messages from Jupiter. The belief in dreams has been handed down through ages of superstition.

RADICALS AID LAVAL IN FORMING CABINET

Deputies Vote Support and Senator's Success Seems Assured.

WILL WAIT FOR BRIAND

Paris, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The formation of a cabinet by Pierre Laval, youthful independent Socialist senator, appeared assured tonight when the radical Socialist party, controlling 135 votes in the Chamber of Deputies, voted its support.

The decision of the party, among whose leaders are Herriot, Daladier and Chautemps, came after a three-hour caucus.

The Laval cabinet, it is said, will be composed of many elements of the former Steeg and Tardieu cabinets, dropping the Socialist support and seeking a majority in the center and moderate right elements. Tardieu is expected to be offered a portfolio.

Laval called on President Doumergue late in the day to acquaint him with the result of his efforts to form a cabinet. It was understood nothing definitely would be decided until Aristide Briand arrived from Geneva.

The economic crises and the unemployment question seem to dominate Laval's present efforts to create a cabinet. Called upon to succeed the Steeg government, which went down on a proposed increase in the price of wheat that threatened nigh cost of bread, Laval is bending all his efforts to this subject.

It is estimated 28,000 unemployed Frenchmen, officially drawing a dole, do not have money to buy bread, no matter how low the price.

PRINCE OF SWEDEN TO WED COMMONER

Lennert, 21, Grandson of King, Will Marry Daughter of Industrialist.

STOCKHOLM IS STIRRED

Stockholm, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Reports of a royal romance involving a grandson of King Gustav of Sweden and the daughter of a prominent industrialist are intriguing all Sweden.

The newspaper Dagblad said today announcement was imminent of the engagement of Prince Lennart, 21-year-old son of Prince William, second son of the king, to Mlle. Karin Nishwandt, daughter of a prominent Stockholm industrialist, whose family is of Dutch origin.

Court circles emphatically deny the truth of the report. It is pointed out such a marriage would entail renouncement by the prince of his right of succession to the throne.

The newspaper Nya Degligt Allehanda, however, later published an interview with the prince in which he said he had not intended to make the engagement known until summer.

Prince Lennart is the only child of the marriage of Prince William and Grand Duchess Maria Pavlovna, of Russia. The couple was married in 1908, but the marriage was ended by a divorce in 1914.

The direct heir to the throne is the Crown Prince Gustav Adolf, who was born in 1882. He married in 1905 Princess Margaret Victoria, daughter of Prince Arthur, Duke of Connaught. She died in 1920. The couple had the following children:

Prince Gustav Adolf, Prince Sigdard, Princess Ingrid, Prince Bertil and Prince Carl Johan. In 1923 the crown prince married Louise, Princess of Battenberg.

POLISH REPRIMAND LAUDED IN GERMANY

Section of Press Decries Settlement, but Central Group Approves.

CURTIUS GIVEN PRAISE

Berlin, Jan. 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—While the Socialist newspaper Vorwaerts comments enthusiastically upon the reprimand administered to Poland by the council of the League of Nations for maltreatment of German minorities in Upper Silesia, the press of the extreme Right declared that nothing has been accomplished to aid the German minority in Poland.

Newspapers between these two extremes express the belief that Foreign Minister Julius Curtius, who presented Germany's charges against Poland to Geneva, secured as much satisfaction as could possibly be secured in any circumstances. Boersenzeitung, which stands well toward the right, while feeling that the reparation required from Poland is inadequate, nevertheless says:

"In any event, sanctions are imposed on the Poles which it is to be hoped will be salutary for their exaggerated feelings of self-importance."

Even Herr Reinhold, former Democratic minister of finance, writing from Geneva for Berliner Tageblatt, speaks of "effective moral condemnation of Polish methods," and says that, while Curtius did not obtain all he demanded, he did achieve all that was possible. This fairly sums up majority German opinion, so far as the press of the country reflects it.

Kaiser's Birthday Fete to Be Quiet

Little Pomp and Splendor of Olden Days to Be in Evidence.

Doorn, Holland, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—William Hohenzollern will observe his seventy-second birthday anniversary on Tuesday with only the faintest reminder of the pomp and ceremony which once surrounded him as emperor of Germany.

For the most part the observance will be that of most any retired country gentleman. In the morning he will attend divine services, later receive the congratulations of his immediate family and at noon preside at a family dinner.

During the afternoon and evening, however, the day will take on a bit of a glamour and glitter which once surrounded his throne. Delegations of German monarchists will be received and in the evening there will be a formal dinner at which the former kaiser will don the uniform of a German field marshal general and the decorations of his rank.

With the exception of his fourth son, Prince Oscar, who is recovering at Potsdam from an operation for appendicitis, all members of the former emperor's immediate family are expected to be here for the anniversary.

Reds in Philippines Bury Their Leader

Fiery Speeches and Waving of Communists' Flags Mark Ceremony.

Manila, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Amid the waving of the red flags of Communism, and accompanied by fiery speeches against capitalism and imperialism, funeral services were held here today for Antonio Ora, Filipino Communist leader, who was killed a week ago in an automobile accident.

More than 7,000 persons were in the funeral procession, while it was estimated 20,000 lined the streets as the cortege went to the cemetery. There was no disorder.

Authorities at first prohibited a display of red flags at the funeral, but later relented on promise of the Communists to remain orderly. However, one speaker said the authorities relented because they feared trouble if attempts were made to enforce the prohibition. Ora was a wealthy fanatic who devoted his fortune to the cause.

HEARINGS are not now necessary in all cases of applications for television licenses because of agreements reached at the conference of visual broadcasting station operators recently, according to Commissioner Harold A. Lafount.

The statement was made in response to a query as to why Don Lee, Inc., of Gardenia, Calif., had been given a license to operate a television station on 21,000 to 22,000 kilocycles with 500 watts, unlimited time.

Willard Robison, who needs no introduction to radio fans, will inaugurate a new period this evening (WRC, 10:30 p. m.) featuring his original Deep River Orchestra.

And now we have an air numerologist, as well as an air astrologer to forecast events. Beginning tomorrow evening (WMAL, 8:15) and each Tuesday and Thursday thereafter, Lorna Fantin will discuss the science of numbers.

A POETRY period will be added to WJZ's list of air attractions Wednesday evening, with Edna St. Vincent Millay as the initial speaker. Every other week modern poets and their poetry will be broadcast. Alternate weeks Howard M. Claney will read from the classics.

An attempt will be made to pick up the BBC Symphony Concert from Queens Hall, London, Wednesday afternoon (WRC, 3 p. m.). Ernest Ansermet is the conductor.

When NBC dramatic producers need a background of the city's noises no artificial sound effects are required. They drop a microphone over the edge of a twelfth floor terrace, thus picking up the real street noises.

STATION WRC has had all it wants of broadcasting motion picture actors. Last Friday evening Richard Dix gave them a bad half hour when he suddenly got a bad case of microphone fright and indulged in the famed "Hollywood temperament" during the dress rehearsal, by ripping off his collar and generally upsetting the people who were trying to get him through his lines.

The Mobiloil half-hour, with orchestra directed by Nathanial Skilkret, will continue its broadcasts over WRC for the next 52 weeks, having just renewed the contract.

GUY LOMBARDO and his orchestra will receive $150,000 for two commercial broadcasts, according to reports from New York. A 52-week contract will net $100,000 and a 30-week contract, $50,000. Both are CBS network features.

The Chicago Auto Show will be the scene of the General Motors broadcast tonight.

Tandy Mackenzie, Hawaiian-American tenor, will be guest artist on the Pleasure Hour Wednesday evening (WJZ, WLW, 9:30 p. m.). A condensed version of "Blossom Time" will be presented, with Mr. Mackenzie singing several of the arias.

A VOLUNTEER communication reserve of the United States Navy is being organized by Lieut. C. A. Briggs for the purpose of banding both professional and amateur radio operators for training necessary in time of war. Any one desiring information may communicate with Lieut. Briggs at the Naval Reserve Armory Mondays at 8 p. m.

The weekly church bulletin from Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Salisbury, Md., contained the following paragraph:

"You will notice that the topic for the evening service is 'The Philosophy of Amos 'n' Andy.' The pastor is preaching on this subject not in order to be sensational, but because this program that is put on nightly is one of the most wholesome programs given over the radio, and we believe that there is the need for the churches of our country to support clean, wholesome amusement."

Jacqué INTERPRETS the MODE

Paris, January 25.

WE must not forget that the child's grace which so delights us, is especially noticeable when at play, and developed by playing, too. That is surely the reason why kindly Dame Fashion, herself the mother of millions of "idea children," seems to construct dresses for children that are especially unrestricting. And today she decrees that fussiness in little sister's clothes is as demode as dresses of yesteryear century which forced her to sit like a little stuffed doll on a pillow. Laces and godets, fluff of any sort is absolutely not done. Dresses are very short, with round necks as a rule, short little sleeves, and in general straight as to line.

Hand embroidery is the trimming note of the moment, especially on those smart little blouses that imitate mother's in style. And for these, Japanese silk is smart and practical.

* * * *

Why don't evening hats "get over?" I think it is because the average woman doesn't know how or where to wear one, and to what degree of formality an evening hat should attest. They do have their definite uses and advantages, too—there is the blowy or rainy night when you may be certain that your hair will be unruly—there is the time when you simply can't get to the hairdressers for that marcel or shampoo. And then there is the striking individuality of the evening hat that all but the most beautiful hair can not achieve. So all in all, the clever woman will surely think over the evening hat question, and try one or two.

* * * *

Now you, too, can have that slim waistline that the new styles call for, nay, yell for! Return of corsets, bah—not a corset or girdle, but pushes that excess baggage right up to where you simply don't want it, when you wear normal waistline dresses. So I've "figured" out a something for you, a something to fasten on right over your corset or girdle, a something which will subdue, and in time even reduce, that roll of excess baggage around your waist. It's called the "Gay 90's Waistlet," which almost describes it—but it is much more wearable and comfortable than anything ever seen in those days! Send you stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet which tells you how to make it, and have a waistline like you wish you had when you were a young girl.

* * * *

Ho-hum, I wish you knew how cold it can be in Paris, especially inside of artistic studios that have plenty of windows, plenty of wide open spaces between window cracks, and radiators that heat the air about a foot around them. Not being able to work within that foot, and being limited as to the amount of clothing one can wear and still move, I gaze with appreciation at anything that bespeaks warmth and comfort—such as the illustration I made for you today of the brown velour coat trimmed in brown fox—or the other little one of yellow wool, trimmed in moleskin.

Am I overenthusiastic?

* * * *

I'm enthusiastic, also, over the weekly Dare fashion letter, which you can find always in the big Sunday Washington Post.

Au revoir!

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

FRIED CARROTS AND APPLES.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

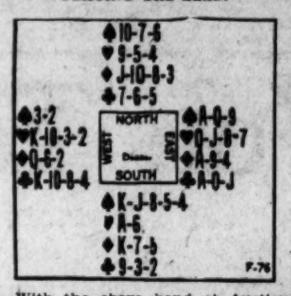
Carrots combined with various other flavors are sometimes enjoyed more than when eaten by themselves. Diced carrots and peas, or carrots and chopped string beans, are familiar combinations. The recipe below liked by the department food specialists because the carrots were quickly cooked as well as appetizing in flavor and colorful to look at.

6 medium-sized carrots.
6 tart apples
2 tablespoons fat
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt.

Scrape the carrots and cut them lengthwise into thin slices. Pare the apples or leave the skin, as preferred, core, and cut into slices about a fourth of an inch thick. Place a single layer of the apples and the carrots in a large skillet with the fat, cover tightly and cook until well browned, turn, and brown the other side. Just before the cooking is finished, sprinkle with the sugar and salt. Serve on a hot platter, first a layer of carrots, then a layer of apples, so the two can be lifted together.

WORK ON BRIDGE

PLACING THE LEAD.



With the above hand at Auction Bridge, South would bid the Spade and after two passes East would bid one No Trump, which would end the auction.

At Contract Bridge (the game at which the hand was played), South bid one Spade and after two passes East bid two No Trumps, which was raised to three by West. South's bid on a King-Jack five-card suit was thoroughly justified by his side Ace of Hearts and King of Diamonds, but without the King of Diamonds the bid should not have been made.

In the play South opened with his fourth best Spade, and East won with the Queen. East then led his Jack and Queen of Hearts, and South won the second lead and established his Spades by leading the King, which won. Declarer did not hold up until the third round, because he knew that South had bid on a five-carder headed by King-Jack, and so must hold the King of Diamonds, from which it might be advantageous to force him to lead.

After winning with the Ace of Spades, the Declarer ran four Clubs, South and East discarding Diamonds on the fourth round. Two more Hearts followed, East winning the last, and South, in an awkward position, was obliged to discard two Spades on the Hearts in order to keep his King of Diamonds guarded. After that it was easy for Declarer to make a total of eleven tricks; East led a Spade which put South in and forced him at trick 12 to lead from his King and one small Diamond. He led the Seven, which West's Queen took, and then East's Ace was good for the last trick.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

LAST YEAR'S HAT.

WHENEVER we try to be funny something terrible always happens. We ought to be more careful, but we always forget. Now it is our "flippancy" in answering the little girl who was so much in love that she declared herself entirely ready to wear "the same clothes for ten years" if she could only be permitted to marry the young man of her choice, whose prospects indicate that necessity. We, out of the goodness of our large heart and broad experience, asked her to consider. We tried to point out some of the disadvantages of last year's hat—not to mention those of ten years back. We immediately saw a picture summoned by the child's own words. We saw the styles of 1920. And we felt impelled to call them to the attention of the ardent debutante who was tired of parties and wanted her man. And now we are called to account in no uncertain manner by a reader who is thoroughly ashamed our our "shallow outlook" and our lack of appreciation of real love. As a sort of belated atonement we present the reader's point of view as well as her awful opinion of us as a leader of the younger thought:

Dear Frances McDonald: It is small wonder that there are almost no serious-minded young women today. All empty headed and empty hearted. No thought beyond the present. No desire beyond money, clothes and a good time generally. Men are to them mere means to an end, the means by which they find enjoyment and freedom from the necessity of working for their living. Of love they never even think. The question is how much for how much. And where do they get their ideas? From what they read. And who writes what they read? People like yourself. Scoffers to whom love is a by-word and the badge of the Victorian.

And now comes "Lucy," a girl who from somewhere has salvaged a little idealism and wishes to marry for love. She asks your advice (heaven only knows why) and you proceed to sew the seeds of modern cynicism in her heart by reminding her that the real thing to consider in marriage is how much can be got out of it. She declares that she would wear the same clothes for ten years for this man and you, with the characteristic flippancy of the worldly woman when love is the matter under discussion, remind her of changing "hem lines." In short, you laugh her over to your own infamous way of thinking.

How any woman can discourage a younger woman from marrying for true love, can go further and encourage her to the consideration of the material in selecting a mate, is beyond me. I consider such writers as yourself a real menace and pity the young who go to such cynics for guidance. You have much to answer for but your shallow outlook happily prevents you from any worry on that score. No wonder men stay single rather than marry the young women produced in an age where such women as yourself are the leaders of feminine thought. A WOMAN.

There you have it. Only we would venture the guess that it should really have been signed "Bach" or "Down-trodden Man." Anyway, we still believe that a very young girl is wiser to marry a young man who can manage to pay for a hat each year. After all we did not originate the idea that "love flies out of the window" under certain circumstances. It was way back long before our flippant age that some cold-eyed cynic thought up that one. And has time proved him right or wrong?

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

GROWING MIGNONETTE.

MEASURED by fragrance alone, there is nothing finer for house use than a window box of mignonette. The tall green flowerheads, while not especially showy, are of a pleasing color and exhale a fragrance so sweet that there is nothing else just like it.

The plant, while desirable, is a bit whimsical. It does not take kindly to change and is therefore hard to transplant; indeed, it is next to impossible to give it the necessary shifts into larger quarters without giving it a check, and all experienced growers know that the secret of growing mignonette successfully lies in growing it at all stages of its career without a check. It must continue to grow without any interruption.

For this reason it is best to sow that seed directly in pots rather than in flats, which would mean transplanting as soon as the seedlings were of sufficient size to be moved.

When planting mignonette make a slight depression in the center of each pot and drop into it two or perhaps three seeds, then cover lightly with soil.

When the seed has germinated, which in the case of the mignonette takes about two weeks, thin to one plant to a pot, saving the strongest plant. When the pot has become filled with roots, shift the seedlings to four-inch pots. As soon as you see that these are full of roots, shift to eight-inch pots. When making this last shift be sure to provide adequate drainage; two inches is not too much.

From now on you must be careful not to overwater or the soil will become sour, but on the other hand do not permit the soil to become dry. Dry soil would be just the thing to give the plants a check. Five hours in soil that is really dry will cause the plants to wilt.

For the same reason do not permit the plants to become potbound. When the plants are about four inches high it will be necessary to pinch out the center of the shoots. This causes the root to send up more shoots. Eight stalks will, as a rule, form a shapely plant. When the plants are about six inches high it is best to stake them.

When buds begin to show give the plants weak liquid manure once each week. As they develop give it oftener, say about twice a week. Mignonette is a cool loving plant and it is said that the cooler they are kept the more fragrant they will become.

Is Your Amaryllis

Eight inches high? Then it's time for you to do something, but do you know what? There's a poser for you!

If, however, you have sent for the leaflet on this flower, you will soon have expert advice. And it's not yet too late to send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for it.

Care of The Washington Post.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—Most contracts between film companies and players are of the "40-week" variety. That is, the company reserves the right to "lay off" the player a total of twelve weeks in the year.

DIXIE LEE

If the player is in demand he may work the whole 52 weeks. Among the "big shots" the contract calls for the pay-check every week of the fifty-two.

Down among the still smaller players, too, the clause stipulating "featured roles" is omitted. In such cases the player may even be called for extra work.

This was the case of Frances McCoy, who headed the list of feminine players in Rube Goldberg's first, so far only, and (also so-far) financially ill-fated screen authoring, "Soup to Nuts."

Miss McCoy has been called for several glorified extra roles since the release of that picture. Should she decline to obey orders, her contract would be automatically broken.

Dixie Lee, blond-haired and brown-eyed Tennessee girl, is in the same canoe. After playing a number of leads, she is also filling an extra's shoes—at $400 a week.

Turn About.

How many men will agree with Elissa Landi?

If a girl or a woman earns as much as a man, or more, she is clearly entitled to pick up her own luncheon check or pay for her own theater ticket when she lunches or goes to the theater with a member of the opposite sex. This is the opinion of Miss Landi, Italian-born and English-educated Austrian girl who was brought to Hollywood as a result of her Broadway performance in Ernest Hemingway's "Farewell to Arms."

Indeed, according to Miss Landi, who is 24 years old and married to a London barrister, if a woman makes more than a man—and she points out that many of them do—she is not only privileged to pay her own way but also that of her escort, if she desires his company sufficiently.

And Miss Landi practices what she preaches.

Generous Clara.

Rex Bell offers no apologies for the two-and-a-half-carat diamond, flanked by four other diamonds in a platinum setting, which he wears on the fourth finger of his right hand. It was a Christmas token from Clara Bow and cost Clara $1,400, wholesale.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:45 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m., and from 10:30 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., and from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Astrological influences will bring about a very restive feeling on January 26, and longings, which will be difficult to fulfil. Misunderstandings with close associates are almost inevitable, and every effort should be made to bridge over the trouble. A vein of good luck extends to those people whose business or vocation is of a mechanical kind.

The child born on this January 26 will have a perverse, stubborn nature. Its desire to have its own way will work both for and against its ultimate good. It will crave sociability and a good time, and will be a superficial student.

You are by nature both a sad and pessimistic being, and you go about as if life holds nothing but gloom. Your horoscope, however, does not reveal that you are destined to meet with more than your share of misfortune or grief. It does reveal that you have all the trappings necessary for a normal success and happiness. Envy lies at the bottom of most of your dissatisfaction with life. The desire to be in some other fellow's boots prevent you from enjoying the beauty or comfort of your own. You are chronically sorry for yourself, both in and out of season.

You are very moral and high principled, but are not tolerant minded, and you are inclined to be preachy or a reformer. Lacking both pliability and adaptability, you must do things in your own way, or not at all. You have strong likes and dislikes with regard to your acquaintances, and prejudice often blinds you, when a correct vision and understanding would inure to your benefit. You are a slow worker, but a very careful and thorough one.

You are liable to be unlucky in love and marriage for the simple reason that you feel so deeply. Jealousy, on your part, will blind you to reason, arouse your suspicions (false ones) and destroy your faith. You do not know how to hide your feelings, or when not to speak your mind.

Successful people born January 26: Charles Albert Murdock, printer and publisher.

Harry M. Dougherty, U. S. Attorney General.

Frank Orren Lowden, U. S. senator, Cleveland Dodge, capitalist.

Benjamin B. O'Dell, former Governor of New York.

Oscar Asche, actor-manager.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph.D.

The family name "Bird" (also spelled "Byrd" and "Byrde") is of English origin. It is derived from the middle English "brid," which originally had the specific meaning of "the young bird," the word "fowl" being the general term for "bird" in early days. In the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries "brid" came to signify the young of other animals as well as birds. As a family name, however, it was first applied to persons who were known for their singing, or to professional bird catchers. A great many Irish families have adopted this name, thinking it to be the English equivalent of their original Celtic names.

The family name "March" is found in the earliest English records. Its full significance is "he who lives at a boundary, border, or frontier." Many families which bear this name have received it because of a former residence in the town of March in Cambridgeshire. In a few cases the name was given because of a former residence in La Marche, France. Its meaning remains the same, whether its source be English or French. A certain Henry le March is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls, and a Johannes de la Marche is mentioned in an English document of the year 1379.

The family name "Mendelssohn" (the name borne by the celebrated German composer and musician, 1809-1847) means "the son of Immanuel." "Immanuel," in turn, is a personal name of Hebrew origin, and means "God with us."

The family name "Richter" is of German origin, and means "judge."

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

CHAPTER XXIII.

"What I have been trying to do here," Gen. Wood wrote Henry Watterson in February, 1913, "is to make an efficient army under a peace organization which will not have to be changed entirely in time of war. I have bumped into a good many people who have forgotten that the bureaus of the War Department are not the Army, and that their existence is solely for the purpose of maintaining an efficient fighting man on his feet, ready to discharge his duty. However, we are making progress, but, like all progress, it is attended with some commotion."

"It is slow, uphill work and the delays are irritating," Wood wrote Matthew Hanna, "and they are, to all of us who know the inside of things, largely unnecessary. I do not know what the future has in store for the Army. I cannot but feel, however, that at the rate we are traveling in this country we shall be called upon for active work before many years."

Immediately after the election of Woodrow Wilson in November, 1912, Wood became conscious of vigorous efforts to have him superseded as chief of staff. Numerous generals with friends high in the Democratic council were jockeying for position. Wood's enemies—and they were both numerous and vociferous—were swift to pour into the President-elect's ears their story of dissension between the War Department and Congress. Late in December, Hugh L. Scott, not yet brigadier for all Wood's efforts during two administrations, was invited to Princeton to confer with Wilson on military matters.

Wilson Is Enthusiastic.

Wilson had fallen under the spell of a magnetic Southern congressman who had been Hay's right-hand man on the military affairs committee; he had, moreover, that day had a conference with Oswald Garrison Villard and was filled with enthusiasm over what he had heard. What Wilson knew of the Army or the rights and wrongs of the epic struggle between staff and the bureaus was naturally scant. Scott's blood froze within him as the conviction deepened that Wilson was evidently intending not only to supplant Wood as chief of staff but to appoint Hay's own vassal Secretary of War. That meant only one thing—the rejection of the whole general staff system.

Wilson pointed out that the opposition to Wood's retention as chief of staff was intense. "I always begin new policies with new people," he said; but he did not divulge what the policies were.

Scott's brother was a professor at Princeton and a friend of Wilson, and Scott felt privileged to speak his mind. "If you allow the Ainsworth element to capture you, you are lost. By throwing the weight of your power with the political element of the Army you will cause it to gain such a victory over the better and more progressive elements as to set back the progress of the Army for twenty years."

House Urges Keeping Word.

Wilson did not commit himself, but he gave Scott the impression that he was eager to do the best. Col. House, Wilson's astute adviser, urged him to keep Wood. War with Mexico, he pointed out, was among the probabilities, and Wood had made his plans for the emergency and would be valuable.

Wood watched the Republican administration go out with a sinking of the heart.

"It is rather tragic," he said, "when you think of the sixteen years of accomplishment and the changes which have taken place in our country and policies, to realize that the party which has had more or less steady control is going out."

But political parties did not matter greatly with him. He was interested in an intelligent solution of the problem of the national defense, and any man who furthered that had his devotion.

"We know no man in public life who has kept himself freer from political bias or color than Gen. Wood," ran an editorial in the Army and Navy Journal.

"Everything he has done has been done from a conscientious belief that he was furthering the interests of the Army and adding to its efficiency. He has advocated reforms, changing methods and systems brought about through Republican control of the Government, but he has not hesitated to point out palpable weaknesses just because this or that party fathered them. As a purely nonpartisan official of the Government Gen. Wood has no superior."

The day after Wilson's inauguration, Wood was told by the new Secretary of War, Lindley M. Garrison, that, for the time being, he would continue at his post.

Apprehensions Dispelled.

If Wood had any apprehensions regarding his relations with him, Garrison promptly dispelled them. He was, like Dickinson and Stimson, a level-headed lawyer and man of affairs; self-reliant, realistic and practical, with an intelligent regard for history; deeply interested in the Army and determined to carry forward the reforms which Wood had inaugurated. He looked with Wood's own eyes on the flirtation of the Democratic majority with the bureaucratic elements in the War Department.

The actions of that majority were already bearing fruit. Enlistments were falling off, no reserve was being created. Wood, conscious of clouds over the Orient and Mexico, turned elsewhere to create the nucleus for that army of citizen-soldiers which, he was convinced, the Nation would sometime again require. Speaking at colleges and universities here and there, he had never failed to evoke an eager response to his presentation of the Nation's needs.

Young men such as these, he knew, had fought and largely led the armies of both sides in the Civil War. When again war came, it would be from the institutions of learning that, to a great extent, the officers would be drawn. If a few at least of the high-spirited young men who cheered his words could be persuaded to help translate those words into action in training camps in the summer, a beginning might be made toward creating a reserve of officers and men.

Wood had a sure instinct in finding minds to supplement his own. Frederic L. Huidekoper, a retired officer, living in Washington, at work on a book on "The Military Unpreparedness of the United States," was one of the few men in the Army or out of it who felt as keenly as Wood himself the inadequacy of the Nation's defenses. He developed Wood's rough draft for students' training camps and together they labored over the details and evolved a definite plan. Garrison approved it with enthusiasm.

The response from the heads of educational institutions was spirited. There was a moral vigor about Wood, a single-minded devotion to duty which appealed to men who bore a responsibility for the training of youth. For he was himself the embodiment of wholesome homilies and gave educators a comfortable sense that with him their young men would be in safe hands.

Efficient Aid Is Found.

"Wood organized two camps in 1913; one at Gettysburg, the other at Monterey, where 24 years previous Shafter had presided over the Monkey War of Jack-Rabbit Flat.

"We do not expect, of course, to accomplish much in the way of detailed military instruction in so short a time," he wrote Gen. Barry, "but we do believe a great deal can be done in the implanting of a sound military policy, and that this year will be only a beginning of the real work."

He took great care in selecting the commanders of the camps. He was standing on a high (and lonely) peak that spring of 1913, looking toward a distant horizon. More was involved in these camps than the mere drilling of a few hundred young men in the manual of arms and fours right and fours left. He was seeking to train not private soldiers merely, or officers even, but ambassadors from those charged with the responsibility for the national defense to the youth who, if war came, would bear the burden and the heat.

Early in July the camps were organized, with 63 students from 29 institutions at Monterey and 159 students from 61 institutions at Gettysburg. Wood had chosen Gettysburg for the practical reason that the veterans of the battle were celebrating its fiftieth anniversary in the early days of July, and tents and equipment would be ready. But there was a deeper reason behind this. He was seeking to develop missionaries in the cause of patriotic service, and he knew that at Gettysburg he would have unseen collaborators.

Training Is Severe.

The students who attended the camps paid for their own transportation, uniforms, board. The training, which lasted five weeks, was severe, but the young men were in a mood to rejoice in physical weariness and a touch of hardship, as Wood had known they would be. They learned the use and care of the rifle, the manual of arms, close formation and open order, the use of cover and intrenchments, outposts and patrols, the estimation of range, the function of cavalry, artillery, signal corps, engineers, hospital corps, the theory and the practice of camp sanitation. There were maneuvers on the Gettysburg battlefield, a week on the rifle range, a week on the march, with enemies in wait, attack and defense, rear guard and advance guard actions.

A battalion of regular infantry, a troop of cavalry, a company of engineers and a battery of field artillery provided the professional touch and kept the students on their mettle. For those who wanted them, there were voluntary cavalry drill, artillery drill, fencing, broadsword practice. The students at the Gettysburg camp wanted them so strenuously that the commandant had to call a halt.

Stimulated by Maneuvers.

There was, indeed, a zest about "this hard disciplinary experience in obedience and regular, clean living," as one observer described it, which Wood remembered as the high emotion of his own youth. The maneuvers stimulated body and mind; imparted the essentials of military tactics and of the soldier's life; gave to youth the thrill of companionship in an enterprise in which the rewards were impersonal, intangible, yet somehow poignantly real. But there was more. On the battlefield there were "tactical walks" and lectures echoing with ghostly bugle calls and distant cannonades; around the campfires at night, talks about the problem of national defense in a democracy, the difference between militarism and reasonable preparedness for defense, the value and necessity of preparation. College presidents and Army officers spoke of the duty of citizenship, the folly of national helplessness. Wood came up from Washington to tell of the Army as a constructive force, the benefit of military training, the need of a reserve.

The results at Gettysburg as at Monterey justified triumphantly Wood's contention that military training was a matter less of time than of the intelligence on the part of the instructor as well as that of the recruit.

The training ended with a 65-mile march. Enthusiasm ran high. The seed Wood had planted had thrown out roots. The young men, thrilled to the marrow, recognized consciously that henceforth they had a mission. At a meeting held one night on the march, the students organized the Society of the National Reserve Corps of the United States, pledged "without hope of reward and without fear of favor" to fit themselves for future service, to promote the system of students' military training camps and to establish and support a sound, national military policy.

"The most satisfactory thing and one of the principal objects of these camps," Wood wrote Roosevelt, "is the planting in every university and college a true knowledge of what our military policy has been and what it should be, an understanding of a system of reserves, &c. * * * I think we have opened up a field of wonderful possibilities and brought our military situation and needs to the attention of the universities and colleges in a way which will in the end be far reaching and result in a far better understanding than has ever before existed of what the country needs and what the true purposes of the Army are."

Wood's dream had, indeed, been fulfilled to the letter. A beginning had been made. President Wilson indorsed the camps. The presidents of colleges and universities agreed to further them, the newspapers showed an increasing interest in the establishment of a sound military policy. The advocates of peace at any price sniffed the fragrant air of combat and attacked Wood as a militarist, but the more intelligent advocates of peace applauded.

"I come of Quaker stock and all my instincts are for peace," wrote H. S. Drinker, president of Lehigh University, whom the students had elected head of their society, "but I believe that peace will be the more assured to our beloved Nation if, with prudence, we learn to know our strength and to conserve it for our good and the good of the world, rather than rely on the present existence of a millennium that we pray will come in time but that today is not with us."

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

THE PLAY SPIRIT.

There are all sorts of duties which children must perform every day of their lives which may be made either difficult or easy, according to the attitude the adult takes toward them.

If you call to your child that it is time to wash for dinner, to put away toys, or to go to bed, and use a tone that implies that these are deadly boring duties which, nevertheless, have to be done, your child naturally takes a negative, uncooperative attitude.

If, on the other hand, you tell him to do these things in a tone of voice that suggests that they are good fun, part of a pleasant life in a pleasant world, even though you use the same words as in the first instance, your child will respond with interest and eagerness.

It is perhaps not easy to summon this gay, playful spirit about acts which must be repeated day after day, and which must be boring to the average adult, but it is certainly worth trying.

It helps if you try to see these activities in their significance to a happy, well-ordered life for him.

When a child has already developed a negative attitude toward something which it is necessary for him to do, it helps to approach the situation in an entirely new way—through his own play interests.

Instead of telling him, as usual, simply that he must go for his nap, suggest that the toys with which he is playing are tired now, and want to go to sleep.

Help him put them away one by one. When they are all safely tucked in, he will permit himself to be led off to bed in a serene bedtime mood.

Modern Laundry System Excels Home Methods

Manhattan Expert Explains Net Bag System

ACTUALLY SAVES MONEY BY SAVING CLOTHES

Makes Them Look Better And Wear Longer

Present-day laundry methods, which preserve clothes as well as clean them, are far superior to the old home method of rubbing and scrubbing, according to Mr. E. F. Wesely, chief of the Research Department of Manhattan Laundry. Mr. Wesely attributes a large part of the Manhattan Laundry's success to their Net Bag System of washing.

Manhattan Laundry, long a pioneer in developing better laundering methods, adopted the Net Bag for washing clothes six years ago. Clothes, they agreed, could be washed just as clean in net bags and would wear longer if rubbing and scrubbing were eliminated. Today, Manhattan still features the Net Bag System, and the activities of the Laundry's Research Department are constantly directed toward the perfection of cleaner and safer methods of washing clothes. Manhattan Laundry justly deserves the slogan: "We Save You Money by Saving Your Clothes."

Manhattan famous Net Bag System f washing, as described by Mr. Wesely, follows: First, the clothes are assorted according to their color and material into individual net bags which bear the customer's name and contain only that customer's articles. Safe in the nets and protected from all metal or other hard surfaces, the clothes go into the washers. Here they are subject to the gentle cleansing action of swirling hot suds which penetrates every single thread of each garment and loosens every particle of dirt. Only the purest of Palm Oil soaps and soft, filtered water are used in washing, after first having been inspected and tested by the Research Department. Many rinsings of fresh, clear water follow, removing every speck of dirt from the clothes and leaving the fabrics refreshed and clean. They are then dried, starched where necessary and ironed by the most modern methods.

That clothes wear longer and look better when washed in Net Bags has been proven by test after test. For instance, two shirts, exactly the same, are washed fifty times each, one in a net bag, the other by hand. At the end of the test the net-bag washed shirt showed absolutely no signs of wear, while the hand-washed shirt had become a sad combination of rough edges, torn seams and broken buttons. Other tests on all sorts of wearing apparel are being carried on regularly and in every case show the Net Bag System to be far superior in preserving the original sheen of the cloth. At Manhattan, the Nets Get the Wear and the Clothes Get the Wash.

THREE-DAY COLLECTION DELIVERY

Manhattan Renders This Additional Service With No Extra Charge

Quite another Manhattan feature which has found great favor with Washington housewives is their 3-Day Collection and Delivery Service. In this highly developed system your clothes are collected one day, laundered to your order the next and delivered to you promptly the afternoon of the third day. For instance, if your clothes are collected Monday morning they are delivered Wednesday afternoon; called for Tuesday, back home Thursday, and so on. No delay. No worry. You know when you'll get your clothes when Manhattan has them. And there is no additional charge for this extra service.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

ANGINA PECTORIS.

ONE of the greatest physicians of all time was Dr. John Hunter. Dr. Hunter became subject to angina pectoris when in the midst of his most useful years. He had work to do and he wanted to live to do it. He knew the power of the emotions to bring on an attack of his disorder. He once said, "My life is in the hands of any rascal that chooses to worry me." Pretty good words for a man, or woman, either, subject to angina pectoris to remember. If he will use them to keep himself emotionally stable, free from excitement, anger, worry, and anxiety, he may live to complete some of his undertakings, just as did John Hunter.

Angina pectoris is a neuralgia of the heart. It comes on because, for the moment, and for one cause or another, the heart muscle does not get as much blood as it needs. It cries out in protest and the cry takes the form of three symptoms, of which all may be present in a given case, or any one may be absent. These are: Pain starting behind the breast bone and often shooting down the arm, a feeling of constriction and weight on the chest, and a sense of impending catastrophe.

It may be confused with pains around the heart due to rheumatism of the chest wall, or to neuralgia, or to introspection. It may also be confused with an even more serious related disease, coronary embolus, concerning which there will be a paragraph further down this column.

A man who is subject to angina must cut his cloth accordingly. Above all, he must avoid indulgence in emotions. Such are too rich for his blood. Henceforth, emotionally, he must sing a slender song. Likewise, he must live within his muscle strength, and within his wind and his endurance. Heavy meals, slow digestion, reverse peristalsis, flatulence, and belching contribute to his life hazards and should be treated accordingly.

A man subject to angina pectoris should be taught by his physician how to treat himself for relief from pain, and he should never go anywhere without being equipped to give himself quick relief.

In coronary thrombus and embolus there is a clot in a branch of a coronary artery. This a more serious condition than its kinsman, angina pectoris. Up to recent years it was regarded as invariably fatal, but physicians now know how to diagnose it, how to treat it, how to cure some cases, and some things that can be done to prevent it.

It is highly important that the pulse and other symptoms be studied to discover whether a given heart case is one of angina pectoris or of coronary thrombosis.

SCARLET FEVER.

Mrs. W. J. B. writes:

1. How long is the period of contagion for scarlet fever?

2. Should a child be released from quarantine before all peeling has ceased?

3. Would a discharging ear, from the disease, keep them in quarantine?

REPLY.

1. Four weeks, in most cases; five weeks, in many; much longer, in a few.

2. Follow your State law. Laws usually specify a five-week period.

3. It might. Discharging ears after scarlet fever should not be neglected.

STEADY PROGRESS MADE IN BUSINESS

Week's Substantial Rally May Prove to Be Merely Seasonal in Nature.

VIEWS URGING CAUTION

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Business approached the end of January during the past week with substantial progress to its credit in the climb which is a regular event of the first month of the year.

Naturally, business finds itself none too husky after the trying experiences of last year, and opinion varies as to whether the acceleration since the year-end shutdowns is more or less than the normal seasonal trend would require.

With confidence that the bottom of the depression has been reached steadily growing, however, and with a more general recognition that the early stages of recuperation have in the past been rather trying to patience, business sentiment is generally reported as having taken a decided turn for the better.

Baker's Statement Cheering.

Many observers regarded as significant the fact that George F. Baker, venerable head of Wall street's First National Bank, yielded from his long-standing rule of silence to permit the guarded statement that he saw "some slight indications" of improvement. There has been no lack of opinion from men in high places, including several who have had little to say for a long time, that the worst has been seen. President Farrell, of United States Steel, goes so far as to say that recovery has been under way for a month.

The Guaranty Trust Co., in its monthly survey to be published tomorrow, says, "It is impossible to escape the feeling that the recent expansion may be a sign of the approach of better times." It regards as particularly favorable the volume of holiday buying, and the public response to the annual automobile shows.

Survey Counsels Caution.

This survey adds, however, that it is not yet possible to judge whether the upturn has any permanent significance, and recalls the false hopes engendered by the sharper seasonal upturns of a year ago. "In spite of all that has been said in favor of fearless enterprise, confidence, &c., on the part of the business man," it says, "the fact remains that the groundwork for recovery must be laid slowly and carefully, and that all but the most soundly conceived and conservatively financed projects had better be deferred until the possibility of unforeseen setbacks is more remote than it is at present."

The week's business statistics indicated the rebound for the low levels of year-end had lost some of its vitality. Most encouraging, in the main, were the reports of the volume of retail trade.

Steel Operations Gain.

Steel operations have gained a little more, Iron Age placing ingot output at 46 per cent of capacity, against 44 a week previously, while American Metal Market says there has been little change. The demand from the automobile industry, as well as from the railroads, has been a little disappointing. The firmer price structure, however, seems to hold well.

Motor manufacturers are watching sales closely. General Motor's Oakland-Pontiac division reported a substantial gain over a year ago. Ford Motor Co., however, was operating at only about half the rate of a year ago.

Building operations, as indicated by F. M. Dodge Corporation's figures for contracts let, fell off a little in the second week of January, to around the lowest levels in recent years, but the aggregate for the first half of the month is but slightly under the December level. Freight car loadings showed a gain for the week of January 10, but somewhat less than seasonal.

Swifts Will Sell Preserved Fruit

Change in Packers' Consent Decree Paves Way for Expansion.

Chicago, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Swift & Co., packers, announce they will add complete lines of canned fruits and vegetables to their products soon. This is the first indication any of the four larger packers have given of a change brought about by the recent modificaton of the packers' consent decree.

A statement today from G. F. Swift, president, said distribution of canned fruit and vegetables under the Swift brands would be made to retail dealers through branch houses of Swift & Co. by the present force of salesmen.

That a salesman could sell a complete additional line rather than merely meats, would mean savings effected on distributive costs, it was said.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The municipal financing scheduled for this week totals $19,021,247, compared with offerings of $11,193,000 last week, the Bond Buyer reports. The largest single award scheduled is that of $5,639,000 Rochester, N. Y., 4 per cent improvement bonds set for Thursday. On Monday, Atlantic City, N. J., will award a new issue of $3,000,000 improvement bonds. Issues of $1,000,000 each will be placed by the States of South Dakota and Illinois.

The early part of February will bring about redemption of $16,875,000 Kingdom of Belgium external loan 20-year 8 per cent sinking fund gold bonds. Since the bonds under the terms of the contract were noncallable except for sinking fund for a period of ten years, it was pointed out that the operation is being undertaken at the earliest available opportunity.

At the outset the company will specialize in the distribution of public utility securities through a dealer clientele. Mr. Caldwell is a director of C. W. McNear & Co., of Chicago, and for three years was president of Caldwell, Mosser & Williamson, Inc., an investment banking house in Chicago and New York.

A stockholders' protective committee representing preferred stockholders of the Richfield Oil Co., of California, was announced today.

STOCKS' PRICE INDEX CLIMBS 5½ POINTS

STEEL RECOVERY LAGS

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—The security markets sauntered quietly up to new high levels for 1931 during the past week.

Although the year is a mere infant of three weeks, such conduct at so early an age gave its nurses considerable cheer.

The share market, as measured by the price index of 90 shares, recovered about 5½ points, reaching the best levels since early December. Bonds enjoyed a good investment demand, and reached new high levels since September, despite new offerings of more than $100,000,000.

The ability of the share market to break out of the stagnation of the previous week with a fair advance took some of the bear element by surprise. Bears sought to depress this list by prodding at selected issues at various times, but found the list entirely sold out. Short covering developed in large volume on Friday, resulting in a turnover of over 2,800,000 shares in the stock exchange, the largest of the month.

Said to Be Technical Rally.

The market's action was acknowledged in most quarters to have been primarily a technical correction of a sold out condition, leaving its future course about as uncertain as ever.

With expressions of opinion that the business recession has touched bottom appearing in impressive numbers from high places rarely yielding public utterances, however, bears lost their boldness. With George F. Baker, long known as dean of the Wall street bankers, permitting the statement that he felt it was poor judgment to go short of the market at this time, bears saw signs which suggested belated hibernation.

Business statistics, however, failed to provide a basis for any dynamic bull market, and most investment advistory services indicated that there need be no hurry to accumulate equity shares. The recovery of the steel industry appeared to have lost much of its vitality, with aggregate ingot output still falling to reach 50 per cent of capacity. Retail trade reports, however, were mildly encouraging.

Bankers Acceptance Rates Cut.

The continued decline in credit rates was one of the week's significant developments. For the fourth time this month, bankers acceptance rates were cut one-eighth of 1 per cent, bringing the rate down to 1½ per cent bid for 30 to 90 days, a new low in the history of dollar acceptances. With short-time credit still cheapening, Wall street wondered if clearing house banks might not be forced to make another reduction in rates paid on deposits. The low rates appeared to be forcing the placing of investment funds into high-grade bonds, with some turnover into preferred and high grade dividend-paying common stocks.

Heaviness of sterling exchange, which touched the lowest levels since September, 1929, was viewed as an adverse development, but although it dipped beneath the gold point, there were no takings from London, which has already been embarrassed by the drain of its yellow metal to Paris. With Paris now taking standard gold bars, however, it is hoped that its needs will be satisfied and the movement checked.

Heads of important London banks, in their annual reports, stressed the maldistribution of monetary gold as a serious factor in the current economic unsettlement, and one which is still threatening. The action of the Bank for International Settlements in considering gold transfers is felt in some quarters to hold promise of gradually restoring a more normal condition.

BOND PRICES REACH NEW PEAK OF YEAR

Past Week Closes Month of Uninterrupted Rise From 1930 Bottom Prices.

INCREASE IN FLOTATIONS

New York, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A revitalized bond market has put behind it the fourth successive week of recovery from the 1930 bottom price level.

Nurtured by the further relaxation in the price of credit bonds made a new high for the year in the week just closed, and narrowed that gap between the present prices and the two-year peak reached last September.

The recovery in a month has been as strong as the reaction last fall was violent, and while the volume of business has not attained unusual proportions, the demand for the best grade investment issues has enabled several score bonds to eclipse their 1930 maximums. Some of the United States Governments which were unaffected by the decline in the final quarter last year have attained record high prices, and the yield on some is less than on time money.

Some indication of what has happened to bonds in the last month is given by the standard statistics advances. The composite for 30 issues at the 1930 low stood at 92.6, and since that time has risen to 98.6, which compares with 101.9, the two-year peak touched last September.

Conditions in the credit markets continue to favor bank buying, call money was abundant last week. With rates outside at 1 per cent millions went begging. A virtual famine exists in the bankers' acceptance market, and two rate cuts by dealers during the week failed to attract offerings.

The yields on the very liquid United States Governments are gradually being diminished by advancing prices. Bankers view the outlook for the markets as very promising, with new financing probably the dominant factor. Many new issues are contemplated, but investment bankers anticipate that care will be exercised as to the rapidity with which offerings are marketed.

If the past fortnight is any criterion, loans will appear spasmodically, with intervals that will allow time for distribution. In the first full week of January $253,000,000 in new issues were offered in three days, then a full week elapsed before an additional $101,000,000 in bonds appeared, without disturbing seasoned issues.

Pretty Close to Vacuum.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A new condensation pump creates an almost perfect vacuum in a quart-size bulb in two seconds. If air were dipped from the bulb at the rate of a million molecules a second it would take about 750,000,000 years to create the same degree of vacuum.

Open New Air Service.

Douglas, Isle of Man, Jan. 24 (A.P.). The Isle of Man is to have its first regular air service next spring when the Manchester-Manxland Airway opens. It brings Manchester within an hour's trip, London within five hours. Manxmen hope to increase tourist traffic to this quaint island.

CONCORD BEATS MARLBORO FOR SOCCER TITLE, 4-0

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The old theory that the wide open spaces are open to one and all and that healthful recreation in God's great outdoors is free does not stand up very well any more. It seems much cheaper to spend ten nights in a barroom than ten days in the open, and not only that, but, in the large cities, where the very thought of wooded hills and gurgling brooks arouses a pathetic wistfulness, there is much less danger of molestation.

The caretakers and game wardens in the territory beyond the city line are much more active and officious than the prohibition agents are in town. Moreover, the idea that recreation in the great outdoors is altogether healthful is not supported by the realities. I saw, not long ago, in some insurance statistics, evidence that various forms of outdoor play were exacting a large toll of life and limb, the game of golf being, strangely enough, one of the most hazardous due to the unnatural stress imposed on the spine by the pivoting movement. Hunters shoot one another, unintentionally, but often seriously, and, in many cases, conclusively, and there is a large mortality from pneumonia in the duck season.

Shooting in the speakeasies is forbidden by law, however, and infractions are dealt with with the utmost severity by the officers. And, unlike the duck blinds, they are all comfortably heated.

SPEAKEASY IS WELL HEATED

Skaters fall through the ice, but it is practically impossible to fall through the dance floor of a night club. Equestrians, too, in pursuit of the elusive and often purely hypothetical fox, sometimes fall off their horses, but the danger of falling out of a taxicab is negligible.

I am not insensible to the thrill of a 2-pound bass on a line, but the law imposes a good deal of bother. If I am in the country I must look up a town clerk who is generally away somewhere hauling sand for a contractor, and wait a long time for him to come back and sell me a license without which I am not permitted to fish for the bass. But the license does not guarantee that I will catch a bass.

On the other hand, I am not insensible to the quiet exhilaration which comes of drinking ale. In fact, as between the two sensations, I would much rather have relations with Bass' than with bass. But I do not need a license to buy ale and I always know I can get it. To be sure, it is sometimes inferior ale, but I have seen times, out bass fishing, when I would have compromised on a two-ounce squidge or dingbat or whatever the local name might be for those little apprentice fish that nibble the bait away, sending tiny impulses up the line, and serve as cappers to keep the fishermen out in boats costing a dollar an hour. I take what I can get.

TAKES EVEN INFERIOR ALE

Admittedly, the recreations of the speakeasy are not without some perils, being dangerous to the arteries and liver, but they have been grossly exaggerated. And nobody can tell me that it doesn't do something just as bad to the brain to go walking around in the sun for hours chasing a golf ball.

But feasibility and convenience are entirely on the side of the barroom. Living in New York, for instance, if one wishes to go fishing, the first step is to write to some department of the State government inquiring where to apply for a fishing license. One week later there comes a reply referring one to the wrong department, but after a day or two the correct department is found and the license is obtained. Under the rules, the department, once discovered, must sell the license. In the meantime one will have bought a steel

Limit of Auto Speed Not Reached

Campbell Says Mark Could Be Raised Indefinitely.

Believes 280 to 300 Miles Peak Under Present Conditions.

By TED GILL.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Given a properly designed car and an ideal course, land speed can be raised indefinitely, Capt. Malcolm Campbell, of England, said today as he began final preparations for his proposed assault on the world's automobile speed record here.

The 46-year-old speed veteran believes, however, that there is no known course in the world where a land speed of more than 280 or possibly 300 miles an hour can be attained.

No Speed Limit on Perfect Course With Proper Car.

"If it were possible to obtain a perfect course and a man had sufficient money to build a proper car, with tires made to stand the pace," he said, "I say there is no limit to the speed he could make.

The slender, soft spoken Englishman, who has held the world's automobile straightaway record three times, declined to make any estimate of the speed he hopes to attain during his trials starting February 2. The present record is 231 miles per hour, established here two years ago by the late Sir Henry Segrave, also of England.

Campbell's new car, the Bluebird II, similar in design, but more powerful than the machine with which he established a former record of 206.96 miles per hour here in 1928, is expected to arrive from New York next Thursday.

New Record Will Satisfy Campbell Until Broken.

Campbell said that should he establish a new record satisfactory to him, he would make no more high speed trials until some one exceeded his mark.

The English racer arrived here late last night from New York with his aunt, niece and six mechanics.

Guldahl Beats Manero, 1 Up, in Movie Finals

Los Angeles, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Ralph Guldahl, 19-year-old Dallas, Tex., professional, today won the $3,200 motion picture match play golf tournament by defeating Tony Manero, New York professional, one up over 36 holes. Guldahl had led one up at the end of the first eighteen holes.

Going to the thirty-sixth hole even, Manero pulled his second shot and the ball rolled dead at the fairway under an embedded tree limb. It took two more shots to reach the green which Guldahl had made in two. Guldahl's approach putt was 1 foot short and Manero conceded the victory.

Guldahl had 38—37—75 for the morning 18, and 34—39—73 for the final 18.

Manero's card was 36—40—76 in the morning and 33—40—73 for the afternoon round.

POTOMAC BOAT FIVE BUSY.

Three games have been carded this week for the Potomac Boat Club five. Tomorrow it meets the Marines at Quantico at 6 p. m., an athletic show being scheduled to follow the game. Players will leave the District Building at 4:30. The Clovers will be met Thursday at Central at 9 o'clock in a Community Center game, while a Washington Amateur Athletic Association contest with an unnamed opponent is listed at the Boys Club Saturday.

Nat Rookie One of Two British-Born in League

No longer can Jimmy Austin, the peppery coach of the St. Louis Browns, claim the honor of being the only American League player who was born in Great Britain, for the Washington Club has signed a pitcher who was born in Blackburn, England. The young athlete in question is Arthur Fidler, who now resides on Blackfriars street, London, Ont.

Arthur is some upstanding youth as he confesses to being 6 feet 5 inches tall in his stocking feet. What a basket ball center he would make. Because of his batting ability, he also has played first base, but, perhaps, his height also had something to do with his being assigned to the initial sack. Incidentally, Fidler is a right-hander and weighs 190 pounds.

EAGLES BEAT BALTIMORE QUINTET

Bennie in Star Role as Wencelaus Five Bows, 37-33.

By JOHN V. HINKEL.

RALPH BENNIE was the whole show in the 37-to-33 defeat the Skinker Eagles plastered on the St. Wencelaus Quintet, 1930 champions of Baltimore, in a bitterly waged contest played yesterday afternoon at the Silver Spring Armory before more than 500 persons.

It was Bennie who sank a pretty field goal from near midfloor in the last three minutes of play to break a 33-to-33 tie and send his team into the lead. It was Bennie who carried off high-scoring honors with eight double-deckers, all told, many of them from difficult angles. And finally, it was Bennie whose marvelous all-around play served as a steadying influence on his teammates throughout the contest.

Baltimoreans Extend Skinkers.

The visitors presented a fast-breaking, smooth-working combination which forced the Skinkers to the utmost. A quartet of two-pointers by Bennie, a couple by Goldblatt, and a single one by Radice greatly helped the locals to run up a 17-to-5 lead at one time midway in the first half. This advantage dwindled rapidly, however, as the Saints' sharpshooters got to work, the half ending with the Skinkers on the long end of an 18 to 12 count.

It was fortunate for the Eagles that they piled up this lead as their guests outscored them by two points in the second half. With the count standing 33 to 29 in favor of the locals, and with the end of the game but a matter of several minutes, three successive field goals by Kelly, Fayman and Dreisch deadlocked the score and set the stage for Bennie to come to the rescue of his team. Two successful foul conversions by Radice just before the final gun increased the Skinker advantage to four points.

Goldblatt and Streeks Aid Cause.

The sharpshooting of Jakie Goldblatt and the guarding and passing of Dick Streeks also featured for the Eagles. Fayman and Dreisch were the mainstays for the Baltimoreans.

Stewart Brother Photographers handed the Anacostia Eagles a 32-to-10 defeat in an Independent League contest played as a preliminary to the Skinker-St. Wenceleus clash. The losing team was held to four field goals.

Each of the eight players who saw action for the Stewarts took a hand in the scoring, while Diehl topped the efforts of the losers with two double-deckers and one foul.

Savoldi Star Of Charity Grid Fray

Former Notre Dame Ace Leads in 13-0 Win on Coast.

25,000 See Struggle Staged by K. of C. at Frisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A group of former football stars led by "Jumping" Joe Savoldi, of Notre Dame, defeated an eleven composed principally of former St. Mary's gridders, 13 to 0, in a Knights of Columbus charity football game at Kezar Stadium here today. Twenty-five thousand spectators were present.

After battling through three scoreless periods, the Savoldi all-stars scored both touchdowns in the fourth quarter. Don Moses, former University of Southern California player, intercepted a forward pass and dashed 35 yards over the goal line for the first counter. Benny Lom, former California back, added the extra point.

Paves Way for Score.

A few minutes later Savoldi, on a reverse, broke away through left guard and rambled 21 yards, to scoring territory, with most of the St. Mary's team trailing him. Russ Saunders, sub for Lom, missed the try for point.

Savoldi put on a great show. His scoring play was but one of several long gallops which included a 20-yard canter in the first quarter and one for 29 yards in the second.

Ernie Nevers, all-American full back for Stanford in 1925, was the outstanding player for the Gael all-stars, kicking and passing well and doing some effective running against the powerful Savoldi defense. One of his rambles was for 43 yards in returning a kick-off.

Northern Preps List Grid Banquet Feb. 4

Twenty-four members of the 1930 Northern Prep Football Team, together with Coaches Arthur Wondrack and Charlie Fenwick and Manager Ted Otte, will hold their annual gridiron banquet at the Olmstead Grill on Wednesday, February 4, starting at 7:30 p. m.

The following members of the team are asked to communicate with Manager Otte immediately with reference to attending the affair: R. Marks, Thomas, Perry, A. Marks, Grant, White, Cash, Street, Lawson, Pitts, Hargett, Hoy, Harris, Williams, E. Reed, Snoots, Sorrell, Marshall, Kessler, King, Houston, Phillips, Fox and Charles. Fitzgerald, Soldans, Hale, Jordan, Durkin, J. Kessler, Lowe and Bill Fiester also are requested either to write Manager Otte at 5213 Georgia avenue, or phone him at Georgia 0407.

The Northerns last fall experienced one of their most successful seasons on the gridiron, winning six, tying four and losing only one contest. They finished in a tie for second place in the 150-pound section of The Post's Capital City Football League.

Guards and De Molay Win in Laurel Gym

Special to The Washington Post.

Laurel, Md., Jan. 25.—After being held to a close score during the first half of their Intercity League game here this afternoon with the Laurel Independents, the Laurel Guards walked away from their home town opponents in the second half, winning, 33 to 19.

The McLean Five, of McLean, Va., barely was nosed out by the De Molay quintet, of Washington, 20 to 22, in a preliminary attraction staged on the same floor. Smith, of the Washingtonians, and Hileman, of the Virginians, looked best for their respective teams.

Two Intercity League clashes will be staged at the National Guard Armory here tomorrow night between Western Electric and Black Pirates, who replaced the Brentwood Hawks in the circuit, and the De Molays and the Laurel Jundependents. The first battle will get under way at 7:30 o'clock and the second one hour later.

Reiselt and Hall Top In 3-Cushion Tourney

Chicago, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, and Arthur Thurnblad, of Chicago, both unbeaten, are tied for the lead in the three-cushion billiard championship event. Allen Hall and Johnny Layton, defending champion, are tied for second.

In afternoon matches, Dave Jacobs, of St. Louis, scored his first victory in five starts by defeating Charles Jordan, Los Angeles, 50 to 49, in 71 innings, while Allen Hall, Chicago, suffered his first defeat by bowing to Tiff Denton, Kansas City, 50 to 47, in 53 innings.

Jordan, taking his fifth straight beating, led Jacobs, 45 to 39 one time, and again, 48 to 44, but made the mistake of refusing to play safe in tight spots—mistakes which Jacobs turned into winning points.

TRACK STARS AWAIT BIG MEETS

Foreigners Compete in Newark A. C., Prout Meets.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—After dragging through a series of comparatively unimportant early-season meets, the indoor track season hits its stride with two big gatherings of stars this week. On Wednesday the Newark Athletic Club meet is scheduled to start off the international competitions for the year, while most of the famous performers will move on from there to Boston for the Prout memorial games Saturday.

Dr. Paul Martin, the speedy Swiss surgeon, who has just returned to the United States, where he won the national 1,000-yard championship last winter, has selected the Newark A. C. thousand for his 1931 debut. He is slated to oppose Ray Conger, Illinois A. C. ace, and a number of lesser stars. It was in this race a year ago that Dr. Martin scored a stirring triumph over Conger.

"Thousand" Feature Event.

The international touch to the thousand makes it the leading event on the big program of races, most of which have attracted entries from outstanding competitors. A number of national interscholastic championship events also are to be decided.

The Prout Memorial games, with a half dozen or more outstanding events scheduled, each with its select entry list, is rated as one of the winter season's Big Five invitation meets. The others, to follow later, are the Millrose and Meadowbrook Club games, the Boston A. A. meet and the New York A. C. meet. These meets are considered as conclusive tests for the grand finale of the season in the National A. A. U. championships and intercollegiates.

BROWNS DROP SPRINGFIELD.

The St. Louis Browns have surrendered their Western Association franchise at Springfield, Mo. It is expected another major league club will take over control of the team.

Betty Robinson, 1928 Olympic Star, Injured

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Betty Robinson, dash star on America's 1928 olympic track team, sprained her ankle during a track workout last night and will be forced out of all indoor competition this winter.

Miss Robinson was training for her invitational contest with Stella Walsh, of Cleveland, when the accident occurred.

George Young, Racing Driver, Killed in Crash

Los Angeles, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—George Young, racing driver, of Milwaukee, Wis., was killed today when three automobiles crashed during a race at the American Legion Automobile Speedway.

The crash occurred on the twenty-ninth lap of the 100-lap feature race when a machine driven by Leslie Strangler, Los Angeles, skidded into a spin on a curve.

Young's car crashed into Strangler's machine and Curley Grandel, Ohio race driver, piled his car into the others.

Young suffered a fractured skull and died at a hospital. Grandel also was hurt. Strangler escaped uninjured.

Indiana Names Hayes Varsity Grid Coach

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Indiana University has hired a new football coach and apparently will dispute the claim of H. O. (Pat) Page that he has a contract calling for another year's salary for filling that position.

The faculty athletic committee held a lengthy session last night for the announced purpose of acting on Page's resignation tendered January 14. At the conclusion of the meeting it was stated that E. C. Hayes, track and freshman football coach at the university since 1924, had been selected as Page's successor and that a resolution had been adopted declaring that Page's contract expires April 1, 1931.

Page said today he had received no word from the committee.

Lucas, With Queer Dribble, Is Mighty Atom of Series

Diminutive Business High Flash Earns High Ranking.

THE high school basket ball series will lose its most dynamic figure Tuesday when Bobby Lucas, Business High's mightly atom and high scorer of the series, plays his last high school game against Western at 3:30 o'clock. He will be graduated Friday when marks for the first semester are released.

Lucas' play in the first half of the series, just ended, bids fair to send him down among the great high school players of all time. Almost single handedly he is responsible for the condition of the high school series at the present time—all five teams deadlocked with a .500 batting average.

Winners Gain Post Trophy By Victory

1,200 See Maryland Team Surprised at Silver Spring.

Washington Club Led by Burton; Mitchell Star for Losers.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

A STARTLING first-minute charge by the Washington-Concord soccer eleven gave it the championship of the Washington and Southeastern District and a 4 to 0 victory over a gallant Marlboro team yesterday. For its victory, the Concords will have possession of The Washington Post Cup for a one-year period.

The 4 to 0 score fails to indicate the bitter struggle that was waged before 1,200 or more paid customers on the Silver Spring Field. At the opening whistle, the Independents began a furious attack entirely different in its execution than was expected by the Marlboro players, who were as much surprised as the onlookers. Instead of the short passing combination play that was anticipated, the ultimate winners kicked and rushed as vigorously as any American team has ever played this style, which is termed peculiar to the type of maneuver employed on this side of the water.

Five minutes of the game had not passed before Jack Turner and Carl Beyerlin had dented the Marylanders' goal. Marlboro was bewildered, and at this early stage of the game it looked like a runaway for the Independents, but the sturdy Prince Georges County lads braced after this early disaster and held the champs until the final ten minutes, when two more goals were scored.

Marlboro Fights Back.

A team with less fighting spirit than Marlboro would have accepted the inevitable after failing to crash through the Concord defense as often as the losers did. Jess Burton, George Faulds and Heine Heise formed a barracade at the Concord goal that made it seem impossible for any attack to crash through, but nevertheless Louis Mitchell, Vance and Dick Bowie stormed the victor's goal with a determination that kept the interest in the game at a high pitch to the final whistle.

The crowd was still swarming into Brooke Grubb's inclosure and the game was not a minute old when the Concords had the leather in Marlboro's territory. After a short scramble Jack Turner broke away and tricked M. Buck, who attempted to block him. Turner then sent a speedy low shot past Binger for the first goal of the game.

Not more than two minutes later George Faulds sent the ball past midfield with a terrific boot and the ever-alert Johnny Malloch trapped it and dribbled about 20 yards before he made a beautiful cross to the waiting Beyerlin, who crashed the second marker through.

Maryland Boosters Puzzled.

The Marlboro gamesters were then thoroughly puzzled, and it is to their credit that they managed to gather themselves at this juncture and carry the game to the W-C goal. It was noticeable in the success of the winners that Marlboro sorely missed its outside left, A. W. Wells, who is confined to his bed. Most of the Independents' attacks came up the side of the pitch that Wells has so ably cared for in the heretofore clean record of the Maryland kickers.

The last 30 minutes of the first half found Marlboro fighting back at Washington-Concord on even terms. Whenever the Independents threatened, the hard-working Binger, at goal, and Deck, at center half, sent them back to midfield or their own territory. Charlie and Mike Wyvil did their share in the comeback, but both on the offense and defense Louis Mitchell took most of the honors for Marlboro at this period, and in fact throughout the tilt.

During a great part of the second half Marlboro had the advantage, due to the clever work of Charlie Wyvil and Louis Mitchell, but whenever the Maryland forwards were in a position to score the Heise, Burton, Faulds trio blocked. The final ten minutes of play found the vanquished eleven in a good position to score, but the overanxious Bowie made a poor shot.

Faulds and Burton Shine.

In the closing minutes, Faulds and Burton repulsed the Marlboro attacks with repeated long boots to Marlboro territory, and about ten minutes before the final whistle the plodding Jack Turner dribbled around that Maryland defense and passed to Beyerlin, the latter converting with a neat shot past Binger.

Still the losers were not downed, launching one of its best organized attacks on the Concord goal, but experience and all-round ability was too much for the coming Maryland team, and this offense was stopped as effectively as the earlier ones. With but a few minutes to go, the victors were given a penalty and John Malloch topped off a great day for himself by crashing the leather through for the final goal.

BERG AGAIN TO BATTLE PERLICK

British Lightweight in Feature at Garden on Friday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (A.P.).—Jack (Kid) Berg, busy leather-swinger from England, comes back to Madison Square Garden this week for his third clash with Herman Perlick, one of the Kalamazoo (Mich.) twins.

The Berg-Perlick bout tops the Garden's regular Friday night card. Although Perlick rates only as a trial horse among the lightweights, he has been able to give Berg all kinds of trouble in their two previous meetings. They battled it out at the Queensboro Stadium here last summer and Berg was hard-pushed to punch out a decision. Three other ten-round bouts are on the Garden card.

Loughran-Gross Meet At Philadelphia.

Tomorrow night Tommy Loughran, retired king of the light-heavyweights, takes another shot at the heavyweights, tackling Jack Gross, of Salem, N. J., in the ten-round windup of the Philadelphia Arena's card.

At Boston at the same time, Ernie Schaaf, rugged Boston heavyweight, makes his second start in four days, battling Dick Daniels, of Minneapolis. Schaaf outpointed Jimmy Braddock at the Garden here Friday night.

Tommy Freeman, of Cleveland, welterweight champion, takes on Eddie Murdock, of Tulsa, in a non-title ten-rounder at Oklahoma City tomorrow night.

Bouts on the national schedule include:

MONDAY—At Philadelphia, Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, vs. Jack Gross, Salem, N. J., and Paul Pantaleo, Chicago, vs. Frankie Cawley, Pittston, Pa., heavyweights, each 10 rounds; at Boston, Ernie Schaaf, Boston, vs. Dick Daniels, Minneapolis, heavyweights, 10; at Oklahoma City, Tommy Freeman, Cleveland, vs. Eddie Murdock, Tulsa, welterweights, 10; at Ponca City, Okla., Babe Hunt, Ponca City, vs. George Trenkle, Edmond, Okla., heavyweights, 10; at Detroit, Tommy Grosan, Omaha, vs. Harry Dublinsky, Chicago, lightweights, 10.

TUESDAY—At Indianapolis, Lou Bloom, Columbus, Ohio, vs. Tommy Cello, Chicago, and Benny Duke, Grand Rapids, Mich., vs. Henry Fa Legano, Chicago, all lightweights, each 10.

WEDNESDAY—At Oakland, Calif., Wesley Ketchell, Salt Lake City, vs. Young Johnny Burns, Oakland, middleweights, 10.

FRIDAY—At New York, Madison Square Garden, Jack (Kid) Berg, England, vs. Herman Perlick, Kalamazoo, Mich., and Sammy Dorfman, New York, vs. Tony Herrera, Mexico, all lightweights; Kid Francis, Italy, vs. Pete de Grasse, New York, and Joe Scalfaro, New York, vs. Lew Feldman, New York, all featherweights, each 10 rounds; at San Francisco, Bobby Vincent, Tulsa, vs. Sammy Jackson, Santa Monica, Negro, welterweights, 10.

J. C. C. Sextet Finds Baltimoreans Easy

Outclassing their guests in all departments of play, Jewish Community Center girl tossers inaugurated their 1931 season last night by walking rough shod over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Sextet to the tune of 32 to 9. More than 150 persons witnessed the contest, which was staged in the Community Center gymnasium.

The keen eye of Frances Teplitz accounted for 18 of the points registered by the Center outfit, while the passing and guarding of Pauline Banner also stood out. Prominent in the play of the Marylanders were Jeppi and Barton.

Knute Rockne Here On Auto Business

Knute Rockne, director of athletics and football coach at the University of Notre Dame, will address a dealers' meeting of the Studebaker Corporation of America here next Thursday night at the Mayflower Hotel. His address, which will be in the nature of a pep talk, will start at 8:30 o'clock.

TRIBE WOULD MAKE DEAL WITH RED SOX FOR RUEL

Indians Need Seasoned Catcher

Ruel Sought as Aid in Development of Pitchers.

Griffith Cuts Players List to 32; Brown Superstitious.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

SOME time ago, President Bob Quinn, of the Red Sox, announced that he was good and peeved at reports to the effect that he had obtained Catcher Herold (Muddy) Ruel with a view toward making him manager in case John Collins failed. He further added that, in fairness to his newly named leader, in view of these reports he felt that there was nothing else for him to do but to get rid of the former National.

If Quinn was not talking merely to hear himself talk, he will have no trouble getting a sale for Ruel, according to reports coming from Cleveland. The Indians made the Nationals an offer for Ruel last year and Manager Roger Peckinpaugh is quoted as saying that he still would like to have Herold on his team.

Luke Sewell is the only good catcher on the Cleveland payroll and Peck, a great friend of Muddy's, is convinced that this veteran is far from through. Not only does the chief of the tribe believe that Ruel could do his bit behind the plate, but he rates him as a smart player and believes that he would prove to be of particular value as a coach of pitchers.

Need Experienced Catchers.

"We are counting heavily on some inexperienced moundmen," said Peckinpaugh recently, "and believe that a man of Ruel's ability and baseball knowledge would prove very valuable in polishing the wares of such flingers as Belve Bean, Mel Harder, Clint Brown, Thornton Lee, Fay Thomas, Howard Craghead, Roxie Lawson, Oral Hildebrand and Mel Schoffner. If Quinn really wants to get rid of Ruel, the Indians will make him a worth-while offer."

The Indians also want Willie Kamm, of the White Sox, and have offered Lou Fonseca for him. Kamm, whom the Nationals were after last season, is said to be discontented with the Windy Cityans, and the Cleveland Club is confident that this deal will be closed in the near future.

Reports coming from the Chisox camp are to the effect that Manager Donie Bush favors this trade, but can not convince his superiors that the Portugese slugger would be of more value than Kamm to the team. With Bud Clancy sold to Jersey City, the Sox must develop a youngster to take his place or bring Johnny Watwood in from the outfield—an experiment which was tried out last season with only indifferent results.

Griffith Cuts List Of Players to 32.

President Clark Griffith is now busily engaged in pruning his Washington Club player list and he now has it down to 32, including Coach Patsy Gharrity. Since the 1930 season closed, he has sent no less than

NATIVES OF ASSAM, INDIA, CATCH FISH BY WHISTLING TO THEM!

FRED NEWTON swam all the way from the headwaters of the Mississippi to its mouth—but not all in one swim. It took him five months and required many cans of grease to keep him warm. This is probably a record for long distance, but there's still a chance for somebody to swim around the world.

When a native goes fishing in Assam, India, he does just what most fishermen would consider the last thing that should be done. He sits and whistles! Lured by the sound, the fish come swimming right into the fisherman's hands. However, it is not just anybody that can make the fish respond. It's all in knowing how to whistle!

THE Visitor's Claiming Handicap, a dash over the six-furling sprint distance for 3-year-olds and upward, which has attracted a field of seven of the leading speedsters in training, will serve as the feature event on a rather ordinary card today.

SUNNY MORN, a 4-year-old gelding, in the W. L. Hernstadt string, appears to have the edge over the opposition he meets here. The unsexed son of Sunference-Sabotie, in his previous effort gained an impressive victory, defeating Germaine Chauvelot and a field of seven other sprinters, in the fast time of 1:11 4-5. BEGORRA, a fast stepping son of The Finn, from the Bud Fisher stable, will favor the slow track condition and may prove dangerous at the short distance. COOTS, carrying the colors of Mrs. H. S. Hart, ran a disappointing race in his last outing on opening day. After a brief rest the Hart sprinter is favored to save the show award.

The secondary feature, the Rune Time Purse, another sprint over the three-quarters distance will bring together six of the older horses to contest the purse. SCATTER, from the G. D. Widener stable, was the victim of a poorly judged ride in his last effort. With a nine-pound advantage in the weights, Sir Galahad III, gelding, should show the way to this field. MURKY CLOUD, a clever filly in the C. V. Whitney barn, has trained well and freshened up since her last appearance at Bowie and should furnish the contention. EIL WEIR weakened in his last start at a mile and a sixteenth but figures to get into the picture at the shorter route.

FIRST RACE—In the opening dash, a field of twelve platers will match strides over the 6-furlong ground for 4-year-olds and upward. McTINKLE, a double winner at this track, has the best recent form and is selected to make it three in a row. The C. A. Coyle 8-year-old favors a drying-out track and will appreciate the conditions. POINCIANA, from the P. Finmore Stable, has trained briskly since his last race at Empire City in the fall and should save the play. EMULATOR, a recent graduate from the maiden ranks, appears best of the others.

SECOND RACE—Another limit field of twelve will parade to the post in the 2-furlong dash for 2-year-old colts and geldings, which will be run as the second race. SUN PLEASURE, owned by Mrs. M. Koerner, gained an impressive victory in his initial start and with the benefit of that experience should lead the way to the judges' stand. CRAIGCO, another promising juvenile, has been selected for the place.

THIRD RACE—In the third race, nine 3-year-old routers will be dispatched over the mile and 70 yards distance. CYNIC, the How Stable racer, an easy winner of his last effort, has reached the peak of his form and should hold this band of platers in check. LADY EBONY, a consistent filly in the Sunlight Stable string, has raced in better company and may prove troublesome to the top one. LITTLE COVENTRY came close to getting into the winner's circle in her last attempt. After leading for practically the entire distance, the Weque Stable entry faltered in the final strides and finished third, beaten two short heads. With that race as a conditioner, she may finish better than third.

SIXTH RACE—Another route race has been carded for the sixth event, in which six of the older horses will travel a mile and a sixteenth for the major portion of the purse. CROYDEN, an 8-year-old gelding in the S. Ryan string, appears the best bet of the entire card. The Petsr Pan gelding won his last race in impressive style and should account for the lion's share of the purse. BROTHER RANK showed early speed in his previous outing, and figures to improve over that effort.

SEVENTH RACE—In the closing number, ten 3-year-old claimers will battle it out over the mile-and-70-yard route. SIS LARGO, a recent graduate, has shown rare courage over a distance of ground, and figures best of a poor lot. WATCH GIRL, from the Loma Stable, is favored for the place with SUN PORTER given the show call.

"I Am Gratified to See You Openly Using the Word 'Spit'" Says
DR. JAMES A. DUMAS
Commissioner of Public Health, Lynn, Mass.

...one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

CITY OF LYNN DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH
JAMES A. DUMAS, M.D., COMMISSIONER

July 8, 1930.

American Cigar Company,
111 Fifth Avenue,
New York City.

Gentlemen:-

Spit is one of the words which we have learned to avoid in polite parlance. But in our distaste for the use of an unpleasant word, there is a likelihood of minimizing the dangers of contamination which this word connotes.

I am, therefore, gratified to see you openly using the word spit in your advertising of cigars.

The ever-present possibility of infection from heedless spitting habits is most vital in any consideration of health maintenance. You may, of course, publish this letter if it will help.

Yours very truly,
James A. Dumas M.D.
James A. Dumas, M.D.
Commissioner of Public Health

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Dumas' letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Dumas writes: "The ever-present possibility of infection from heedless spitting habits is most vital in any consideration of health maintenance."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it...Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

In this period of cold weather and cracked lips, above all insist on a cigar—free of the spit germ.

MARYLAND U. IN 2 GAMES THIS WEEK

V. M. I., V. P. I. Fives to Be Met; Records Good So Far.

UNIVERSITY of Maryland's basketeers, both Varsity and Freshmen, are having a respite from competition, but they are struggling hard with the books while in the throes of the mid-year exams. The Varsity has two games the latter part of the week, entertaining V. M. I. on Friday and V. P. I. on Saturday in Southern Conference tilts. The Freshmen do not play again until February 3, when they engage Emerson Institute of Washington.

The Old Line tossers have set a fast pace so far this campaign, the Varsity having won five of six games and the freshmen cleaning up in their half-dozen tilts.

Varsity Has Outscored Foes, 204 to 145.

In their six games, a third of the schedule, Burton Shipley's Varsity men have scored 204 points to 145 for their foes, while the yearlings have compiled 234 to 111 for their opponents.

Five men—Chalmers, Ronkin, Norris, Berger and May—have played practically all the Varsity basket ball, with Wilson and Pitzer the only others to break in at all, and then only for a short time. Berger leads the Varsity point-getters with 59, but all the others, except May, who plays back guard, have figured strongly on the offensive.

Jack Faber has six tossers who play most of the basket ball for the freshmen, although he has 11 on the squad. Vincent, husky and tall center, has set the pace in the scoring with 63 points in the six tilts, but the other five of the well-balanced and powerful combination all have counted rather heavily.

The figures on the two teams follow:

Maryland, 29; Gallaudet, 29.
Maryland, 35; V. M. I., 18.
Maryland, 36; Washington and Lee, 21.
Maryland, 32; Duke, 24.
Maryland, 32; Loyola (Baltimore), 33.
Maryland, 33; Johns Hopkins, 20.

LEADING SCORERS—Berger, guard, 59; Chalmers, forward, 51; Norris, center, 42; Ronkin, forward, 41; May, guard, 9.

INDIANHEAD MARINES WIN.

Indianhead Marines handed Company A, of Fort Humphries, its first defeat of the season yesterday afternoon, trouncing the Soldiers by a 21-to-18 score in a nip-and-tuck game played on the Fort Humphries floor. Burton and Sherman led the Leathernecks' play, while Dorsey and Allen were the mainstays for the losing team.

GUARDS WIN THRILLER.

In a thriller which saw the lead change hands on five occasions, Battery C, National Guard, defeated the Comets in an extra-period game, 27-26. The regular game ended 23 all, but Gheen and Smith shot baskets to put the Soldiers ahead. The team work of the winners showed well, with Daniels leading the way. LUCAS STEALS SHOW IN SCHOOL SERIES

Western and Business vs. Central—was the most noticeable thing about his team, he did not reach the realm of potentially legendary figures until out of a clear sky he sent the highly touted Eastern High team down to a 28-to-24 defeat, and in doing so displayed a brand of competitive fury hardly thought possible of a person of his heft and otherwise gentle demeanor.

Sensational Play Not Anticipated.

Business loomed as a threat after that performance but it was almost totally unlooked for last Friday when the Stenogs went on to defeat Tech, Lucas responding to the situation in sensational fashion.

Now with Business' championship hopes rising high it must suffer the loss of one who is its sparkplug and motor both.

Tuesday's game will bring to a close a notable high school basket ball career begun two seasons ago when he entered Business' two-year business course. Already well known as a playground star, Lucas' rough edges were taken care of by Lynn Woodworth, Stenog athletic director. He advanced rapidly, although his work never received the notoriety which was its due because of the inferior caliber of Business' teams.

Lucas is a natural basket ball player of the diminutive school if ever there was one. Fleet beyond the dreams of avarice he can run circles around the majority of the present crop of players like a rabbit in a turtle store. He is adept at a phase of dribbling of which little is seen here, the alternate hand variety, and he capitalizes his isolation in this phase to great lengths.

By far the most deceptive mode of advancing the ball, the alternate hand style enables Lucas to give the impression that he is traveling several ways at the same time.

Keen Mind Marks His Play.

His passing is crisp; he goes far into the air with legs outstretched on his short snowbirds; seems never to miss an important shot; and his ears are separated by as keen a head as high school sports have ever seen.

He has been offered what is known as an athletic scholarship at a local college, but has turned it down in favor of a job offered by a local newspaper to learn the trade of printing.

It is doubtful if he will regret the passing of the vista of 3,000 frenzied people cheering his performances. An amazingly shy young man he gives a genuine appearance of being terrified by his skill.

Lyceum Five Wins From St. Martins

Deadlocked at 14-14 last night at the end of the third quarter, St. Mary's Lyceum cagers, of Alexandria, and St. Martin's, of Washington, battled nip and tuck through the fourth period, the end of the game finding the Virginians on top by the narrow margin of 20 to 19. The battle was staged in the St. Martin's gym before several hundred fans.

High-scoring honors went to Hunt, of the losers, who pocketed three field goals and the same number of fouls. Sinclair's three double-deckers and two successful charity tosses played a prominent part in the St. Mary's victory.

TRIBE SEEKS RUEL IN DEAL WITH SOX

fourteen to his Chattanooga farm. Here's the record of his donations to Lookouts: Pitchers Mike Meola, James Boswell, Harry Child and Carles Moore, Catcher Zach Almond, Outfielders Alvin Powell, Gordon Phelps, Jimmy Wallace, Thomas Banks and Tommy Thompson, and Infielders Ray Treadway, Walter Kazen, Dick Goldberg and Harley Boss.

Among this group are the names of two players known well locally. Almond played here several times with the Quantico Marines, while Wallace was one of William and Mary's star fly-hawks.

The Boston Braves seem to be having their troubles deciding whether or not fans want home runs in clusters. In the past, club officials have spent approximately $50,000 building barriers here and there at Braves Field to try ot make four-base clouts something out of the ordinary. This season they plan to take down all of these barriers and screens and homers may be looked for in bunches—like bananas.

Lloyd Brown Proves Superstitious.

Pitcher Lloyd Brown, like many ball players, is superstitious. Last spring he went to the Nats' Biloxi training camp around February 1 and did a little work between fishing expeditions. As he had his best season, winning sixteen games, he plans to do the same thing this spring and has written Washington headquarters that he is leaving shortly for the Mississippi camp.

Carl Fischer, high-priced purchase from Newark, had quite a good season in the International, according to official averages just released. The southpaw pitcher, whom the Nats rate as most promising, ranked eighth in the league in effectiveness, granting an average of 3.91 runs per game. He took part in 24 games, going the route twelve times, and had a record of 9 victories and 11 defeats. In 147 innings, he walked 66 and struck out 92.

SAYS PEGLER

rod, a jeweled reel, some silk line, some hooks with feathers on them like the hocks of a Clydesdale stallion, a creel, a pair of rubber boots, a fore-and-aft gorblimey cap, a pipe which will bite the tongue like cyanide and a tweed jacket.

And, arriving at last at the lake, 40 miles from Times Square, and threading the line and twizzling the rod in happy anticipation, one will hear a crashing in the bushes near by and be confronted by a watchman with a badge.

FUTILE HUNT FOR FISHING GROUNDS

"No fishing here," the watchman will state. "This is a State reservoir."

At the next lake another watchman will appear and state: "This is a private lake; no fishing here."

"But who owns the lake?" one asks.

"Mr. Harrison Tomlinson-Tomlinson, jr., the exclusive society millionaire, owns the lake," says the watchman.

"Well, where is he? I will ask his permission to fish."

"Oh, he lives in Europe," says the watchman. "Anyway he never comes up here. He just owns the lake so that nobody else can fish."

Similarly, though, one hears hiking extolled as good for the nerves, the body and the soul. When one does go hiking, everywhere along both sides of all the roads, save at the dumps where the old automobiles are abandoned, are signs reading "Keep off the grass," or "Private grounds, treapassers will be arrested."

There is no activity short of a Vanderbilt wedding which is quite as exacting in the matter of proper and expensive costume and equipment as informal out-of-door life. I called up one of the winter resorts lately to inquire whether a common overcoat and tar-pot or derby hat, suitable for barroom wear, would be approved there.

"Well, not exactly," I was told. "The best things to wear here are a suede or leather jacket, riding breeches, fur gloves, field boots or ski boots, a beret or stocking cap and, of course, a polo coat."

This came to about $350 aside from the skates and skis, but need I point out that the utmost requirements for barroom wear are a ready-made dinner jacket and, for swank, a top hat?

So I know where I am going for my vacation: I am going to Duffy's.

WORK ON REPTILE BUILDING AT ZOO WILL BE RUSHED

Additional Laborers Will Start Work Today to Complete Structure.

COLLECTION DECLARED AMONG WORLD'S BEST

Crowded Condition of Lion House to Be Relieved During February.

Additional glaziers will start to work this morning on the reptile house at the National Zoo, rushing to completion construction which will provide Washington with one of the finest zoological buildings in the world. The contractors have agreed to speed the work so that Dr. William M. Mann, director of the Zoo, may open the new building the latter part of February.

Painters, too, will rush their work, adding the coats of battleship gray and cream which lend so much to the harmony of the beautiful building's color scheme.

The opening of the reptile house will give the zoo more room for the public viewing the exhibits than any other zoo in the world with the single exception of the one at Antwerp, Belgium. It will also allow Dr. Mann to move out some of the exhibits which have been kept in the lion house for want of a better space for them.

District Reptiles Included.

Among the interesting collections to form a part of the reptile house attractions will be one of various snakes, lizards, tortoises and even insects of the District of Columbia. The District group will be collected from territory within a radius of 40 miles of Washington, and the background will be formed of rock formations and plants found in this area.

Dr. Mann will soon be able to bring from New York several specimens which have been kept as "guests" at the Bronx Park Zoo. Among these is a king cobra measing 14½ feet, which is expected to be one of the "stars" of the zoo's collection.

The green mamba, which is at present hidden from the public, will also be presented to the public when the house is opened. The mamba is a very poisonous snake from Sierra Leone which attains a length of 9 feet. The one at the National Zoo is 6 feet long.

While naturally the live reptiles will be the main attraction, Dr. Mann has overlooked no details in planning the structure. In the walls of the building he has planned museum cabinets, one of which will show skeleton heads of the various poison snakes, showing the workings of the deadly fangs, while the other will show the various measures man has devised to combat the poisons.

Skeletons of the rattlesnake, the cobra and other poisonous snakes will be shown in the first cabinet. The other cabinet will exhibit serums and devices collected from over the world to combat the venom. The Anti-Venine Institute of America has contributed various forms of serum, while Dr. Mann has obtained from Dr. Vital Brazil, in Brazil, and from the snake farm at Point Elizabeth, Africa, other combative serums.

Special Department Constructed.

Just at present Dr. Mann is growing various plants which will be used to form the background for the reptile exhibits. These will be transplanted to the glass cages when the reptile house is opened.

In addition to the snakes, the reptile house will show various frogs, lizards and turtles. One of the specimens which will be placed on exhibition for the first time will be a 97-pound alligator snapping turtle, one of the largest in any American zoo.

A special department has been provided for various types of bright-colored insects. Another department will show small, gaudy tropical fishes, which can be kept in private aquariums.

When the snakes now on exhibit at the lion house are moved to their new quarters, space will be provided for animals which up to now have not been shown to the public. Among these are the genet, a type of civet cat from East Africa, and the bamboo rat.

The bamboo rat is a very rare animal, and the specimen at the National Zoo is the only one alive in America. The rat was captured by the Kelly-Roosevelt expedition to French-Indo China and has been a guest at the National Zoo for two years.

WITNESS LIST IS LONG

The Seat Pleasant bombing case, for which two brothers, Herman and Leroy Brady, will be tried for murder, will be aired today in Anne Arundel Circuit Court in Annapolis.

The brothers are accused of murdering three persons by means of a bomb sent to the house of John Hall, in Seat Pleasant, on New Year's Day, 1930. Today will be the second time Leroy Brady has faced a jury in the case. He was brought to trial in Rockville last summer after a change of venue had been requested by the defense. A mistrial resulted when the jury failed to reach an agreement after several days.

A long list of witnesses has been summoned by the defense and prosecution. J. Frank Parran will remain in the case on the side of the State. He was State's attorney of Prince Georges County at the time of the first trial. Alan Bowie, State's attorney, who has taken office since the Rockville hearing, will appear for the State with J. Wilson Ryon, special prosecutor, and Theodore Brady, State's attorney in Anne Arundel County.

Naomi Hall Brady, young bride of Herman, a younger brother and sister were killed in the explosion of the concealed bomb.

Police Wary Of Calls for Ghost Hunts

Police and members of the fire rescue squad are becoming tired of searching for dead men under bridges over Rock Creek.

Either ghosts are jumping from abutments and wraiths floating in the placid waters of the stream or a person with a phobia for deceiving the minions of the law is at work.

Twice within the last few days officers have been called to search the gorge for a dead man. Yesterday a call was received by telephone in which the speaker stated he had seen a body floating under ahe Pennsylvania avenue bridge. Police and firemen waded in mud and water but found nothing.

Early one morning last week some person phoned headquarters saying he had observed a man clamber to the rail of the P street bridge and, with a wave of his hand, throw himself backward into the void. Speeding to the scene, police and firemen searched the area below, but in vain.

Press Pharmacy Looted Of $230 and Liquor

Jimmying a rear window in the National Press Pharmacy early yesterday morning, thieves entered and rifled 6 cash registers and a liquor safe of $230 and 8 pints of prescription whisky, Jack Nance, manager, told police.

The money was in change and was taken after the locked registers were forced open. Police found no clews.

MILITARY TRAINING IN SCHOOLS OPPOSED

Friends Forum Speaker Hits Cadet Drills and R.O.T.C. Units as Useless.

URGES GAMES INSTEAD

Abolition of high school cadets and of the R. O. T. C. in all colleges, and the substitution of physical training with emphasis on games, was advocated by Dr. Tucker P. Smith, executive chairman of the committee on militarism in education, in a talk last night at the Friends Forum in the Friends Meeting House.

Dr. Smith held that military training is a waste of time and harmful to the participants, and pointed out that the methods of warfare taught the R. O. T. C. are absolute. Public opinion, he said, will eventually awaken to the futility of boys spending so many hours a week, carrying a gun and doing squads right and left. He cited that cadets in some places have been abolished at the persuasion of the public.

Dr. Smith observed that after a boy leave high school or college he usually relinquishes all connection with military drilling. If boys were taught games in schools, they would continue to play games after entering the business world, he contended.

Aims of his committee, Dr. Smith said, are to abolish all military training in high schools, abolish the compulsory features of military training in colleges, withdraw War Department training in civil institutions, promote modern physical education as a substitute for military drill and promote courses in the causes and prevention of war. In this latter connection Dr. Smith advocated studying the economic causes of war.

The next war, he said, will demand physical stamina, technical skill in the understanding of the machinery of war and scientific knowledge of the laboratory work in preparing chemical instruments to kill.

Keep On Courting, Preacher Counsels

Dr. Stockdale Regards Sex as Gateway to Spiritual Communion.

"Never stop courting" should be the motto for all married couples, said the Rev. Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, supply preacher at the First Congregational Church, in his sermon last night.

"The spirit of courtship must prevail throughout married life," he counselled. "Pursuit must never change to the enslavements of possessions. There must not be complete surrender of personality on the part of either, rather mutual cooperation of personalities. Open-mindedness is better than arrogant toleration."

"The first five years are the hardest because they call for the changes from the ideal lover and sweetheart to the ideal husband and wife. Sex must be understood and mutually enjoyed instead of vaguely worshipped and foolishly feared. Sex is not the garden of roses, but it is only the gateway to the joys of deep spiritual communion. Romantic imagination must continue to create inner patterns of thinking."

Boy Is Cut About Head As Auto Hits Pillars

Arthur Leo Lansdale, jr., 13 years old, of Irving street northeast near Fourteenth street, received cuts on the head when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into pillars under the viaduct at Eighth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast, yesterday afternoon.

Police say the car, which was driven by the boy's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Lansdale, got out of control. The youth was treated at Sibley Hospital.

Lobby Furniture Stolen At Apartment House

Thieves, evidently with an automobile truck, looted the lobby and office of the St. Nicholas apartment house, California street northwest near Twenty-second street, of 11 pieces of furniture worth $315 early yesterday morning.

The robbery was reported by Frank J. O'Connor, manager, who discovered the furniture missing at 8 o'clock yesterday morning.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A LETTER TO THE PRINCE OF WALES.

("Prince of Wales says he would like to be a newspaperman."—News item.)

DEAR PRINCE: Take a tip from me and never think of becoming a newspaperman. You will find more falls there than you ever found as a steeplechase rider and far less attention paid to them. It is a very hazardous profession, Eddie, and a little thing like a broken collarbone isn't even recognized.

• • • •

As a prince you can start out in the morning, and when word comes back that you have fallen off a horse nobody gets very angry about it. Sentiment is limited to a concern for your welfare. You can take a couple of months off while you get back to normal. But you have no idea the difference it would be if you left a newspaper office on a story and no more was heard from you until somebody phoned in the news that you were out in the great open spaces lying upside down in a ditch wondering what had become of your horse.

• • • •

Managing editors are very impatient in such cases. They fly off the handle something terrible at the slightest indication that a reporter sent out to cover a big story is lying in a ditch anywhere under any circumstances. And your explanation that you had busted a collarbone wouldn't temper his fury. Speaking as a man who has had years of experience with managing editors, I can assure you he would tell you it was a matter of great personal regret to him that you had not broken every bone in your body.

• • • •

AND explanations would make no difference. All the boss would consider was that he had sent you out to get a story and that you hadn't got it. You could never get off by blaming it on a horse. It is a matter of record in American journalism that no newspaperman ever returned to the office without a story and was excused by the city or managing editor on the strength of a story that he had fallen off a pony.

• • • •

No, Eddie, you would never make a successful newspaperman. You might make good as the author of a "What the Well-Dressed Man Will Wear" column or a "How to Keep Swell" department, or you could probably go big as a humorous column conductor, because the general feeling is that a daily fall off a horse would do column conductors a lot of good. There are even people who think this type of accident too good for them. But you can realize how it would be if you were a regular reporter.

• • • •

Just about the time the city editor wanted to rush you out on a big murder story or love-nest scandal he would find that you were on an ocean liner about to leave port, and when he got you on the phone and gave you the assignment you would reply, "Awfully sorry, Mr. Swinkle, but I can't cover that story today. I am off to Africa to hunt lions."

• • • •

And I am telling you straight, Eddie, these editors won't take lions for an excuse. So you had better stick to being a prince, no matter how dull it may seem at times. At least, nobody can fire you for spelling a name wrong.

Yours sincerely,
ELMER TWITCHELL.

A DANGEROUS REPORT.

FOURTEEN congressmen were injured the other day trying to lift the Wickersham report.

In the interests of neutrality it is understood Mr. Wickersham, in presenting the report, entered the White House whistling "The Old Oaken Bucket" and departed whistling the Stein Song.

Anyhow, the mere fact that the Wickersham Commission at last submitted a report explains why Niagara caved in.

Probably President Hoover would like to write on the report the words he had written on the whole dry question, "Opened by mistake."

ALFRED McCANN.

ONE of the curious twists in the enthusiasms of Alfred W. McCann, noted food expert who died the other day, was that there was one subject on which he could become more agitated than even the matter of inferior food products. This was the subject of—believe it or not—portrayals of Hamlet. Whenever a new actor appeared in Hamlet in New York the incident would keep "Mac" agog for days. Fiery as he could become over an improperly iced bluefish or an adulterated catsup, he was never more outspokenly severe than in his discovery of a Shakespearean actor who didn't come up to the laboratory specifications in the portrayal of the melancholy Dane.

• • • •

Once, in connection with his book, "God or Gorilla," he had a human skeleton on the top floor of the New York Globe Building. This writer stumbled upon it in the dusk one evening and has been highly nervous ever since.

"What the devil is that thing?" he demanded of old Jim Tole later.

"Oh, that!" replied Tole, "that's some actor who didn't strike McCann as a pure Hamlet."

What the stock market needs more than anything else is a slumber song.

Elmer Twitchell called up his broker yesterday, and the telephone operator replied, "He's sleeping now. Is it important enough to disturb him during business hours?"

Body to Consider Testimony Involving Four Held as Suspects.

CALL NINE WITNESSES FOR OPENING SESSION

Few New Facts to Be Told Which Were Not Disclosed at Inquest.

The grand jury today will hear the first presentation of evidence against the four prisoners held in connection with the mysterious slaying of Beulah Limerick, 19-year-old usherette, on December 31.

Assistant United States Attorney Julian I. Richards has summoned nine witnesses to be heard today. Doctor Will Testify.

Witnesses to be heard today are: Deputy Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, who performed the autopsy and recovered the .25-caliber bullet from the girl's brain, after discovery of a bullet hole by an undertaker; J. Lyman Greene, a Casualty Hospital interne, who pronounced the girl dead.

Detective Sergt. Fred Sandberg and Ira M. Cullickson, of the Metropolitan Police Department, who will show pictures taken at the murder scene. Patrolmen R. L. Eubanks, J. D. Bennett and B. R. White, of the Fifth Precinct, who arrived at the mystery house shortly after the murder had been discovered.

To Hear 60 Witnesses.

Lieut. Alben C. Kefauver and Sherwood Perry, of the Fire Rescue Squad, who were called to the Limerick home on the morning of December 30, will appear to testify regarding conditions in the place at the time.

Mr. Richards will begin the presentation soon after noon. It will probably take from one week to ten days to complete the testimony of nearly 60 witnesses who will be summoned.

Good Samaritan Cited In Funds Drive Appeal

Dr. Albert J. McCartney Makes Strong Plea for Charities.

Taking as his text the parable of the Good Samaritan, the Rev. Dr. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, in his morning sermon yesterday made a vigorous appeal for the Red Cross-Community Chest campaign.

His sermon in part follows:

"And who is my neighbor?"—Luke 10:29.

In the presence of Jesus Christ men always ask big questions; all petty and insignificant interests go down before the larger and more pressing claims of the soul when we stand in the presence of that Man of Galilee. The man in our text was ostensibly concerned about his claim to a place in heaven. In answering him Jesus counseled him to establish his claim to a place upon the earth. "Thou shalt love the Lord with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself." "This do," said Jesus, "and thou shalt live." How true it is to the end of time that never until we have learned to love the Lord our God first of all, with all the heart and all the soul and all the mind, can we know how to love our neighbor as ourselves. Not until we stand upon that high ground can we know the real meaning of the larger Christian brotherhood.

Asked for Definition.

"This do," said Jesus, but that was exactly what he did not want to do and so he did what you and I have done—he asked for a definition. To avoid a personal appeal we ask a question. So many of us try to sidestep the claims of Christ and the church by calling for a definition. First of all he tells me, "Explain to me about the virgin birth." Or, "I do not believe the Bible to be inspired." Or, "I don't believe in the resurrection of the body." Even so, my friend, that does not shift the responsibility from your heart of finding your own relationship to God. Don't try to parry the personal appeal in the matter of committing your heart to God but hiding behind some theological question. That is what this man did; he tried to hide behind the definition, "And who is my neighbor?" "Yes," said Jesus, "that is a good question and we shall answer it once for all."

Neighborhood is not a question of geography; it is a question of humanity. You can not choose your neighbor. Providence chooses your neighbor for you. It was by chance that first the priest and then the Levite and then the Samaritan came along this way. Providence puts opportunities in our way and opportunity makes neighborhood. Man becomes our neighbor by reason of the ability we have to meet the present needs in the soul of another man. You can not choose your own neighbor, God does that for you.

The Samaritans had stoned the disciples out of a certain village. In a spirit of vengeance His disciples wanted to retort, but Jesus would not permit it. Upon the heels of this treatment, while anger was still in their hearts toward the Samaritan race, the Master took a Samaritan as an example of brotherhood.

Scorned by Master.

Will you note how Jesus directs the force of—His parable against the man who did the cruelty but against the men who did nothing—the priest and the Levite. Poor, innocent, unoffending preachers and choristers of their day—what had they done to deserve all this? That was just it—they had done nothing. They had the chance to do something and did not do it and all the scorn of the Master was aimed directly at the heart of the man who, with power in His hands and opptrtunities before Him and human need crying out to Him, does nothing with them.

When we read of the thousands upon thousands shivering in the breadlines in New York or here in Washington, or yonder in Oklahoma or Arkansas, when we think of the thousands upon thousands who are homeless, who accost us on the street for the price of a sandwich there rises up in our hearts the irrepressible question, "What have these, our fellow men, done or not done that they must suffer thus?"

It is a fine thing to see the Christian spirit in action these days, organizing the country to answer the claims of suffering and want and playing the role of a Good Samaritan up and down the highways of life. But the spirit of Christ in action must be something more than a Good Samaritan to the world, building asylums for the poor, disinherited, degraded children of the earth, rearing her hospitals and all that—it must organize itself to put an end to injustice. It is the business of the church to seek to redeem those broken upon the grinding wheel of intemperance, but the spirit of Christ in action must go on and on until the end of time fighting the liquor traffic that lays its blight upon our fair humanity.

Sends Angels of Mercy.

The spirit of Christ in action must continue to establish its Red Cross Societies in every city and village, ever ready to send forth its angels of mercy upon the field of battle, but far beyond that the spirit of Christ must seek to put an end to the havoc and disaster wrought by war. It is a splendid thing for the Christian spirit in action to play the part of a Good Samaritan, but it must go back of the present needs and seek to deal with the forces that are inimical to society.

The priest and the Levite—these are typical of the organized conventional forces of religion. Was Jesus angered and annoyed at them in his day? I wonder would he be angered and annoyed at them in our day? What he was striking at and what we strike at in every age is this: a mechanical conventional view of religion, at the men and women who persist in that belief that religion consists in the performances of certain services, rites and conventionalities.

These two men were both on their way to church. The priest did not stop because he was afraid he would be late for the evening sacrifice; members of his congregation would never forgive him for that. Maybe he was going to a luncheon to hear someone speak on the Community Chest, and if he was not there to report for his team he would never hear the last of it. The Levite would fain have stopped, but he dared not be late for choir practice. It is all a picture of the thousand and one secondary things of life which you and I allow to shunt us aside from the great and immediate needs of our fellowmen.

Sheds Light On Problem.

There is one line in the parable that we are likely to overlook: "And a certain Samaritan as he journeyed came where he was." That line sheds a great deal of light upon the whole problem of constructive charity and human reclamation efforts. The priest saw him, the Levite looked at him, the Samaritan came just where the man was. He came right up to him and handled him—the personal touch in social reconstruction. How exquisitely Christ-like is that touch in the parable. It is a picture of the incarnation in action, the Son of God seeing the needs of man, comes to him, not speaking as by a trumpet from high heaven, not casting down a scroll out of eternity, not sending Gabriel or any of the angels to proclaim the fatherhood of God, but humbling himself he became a man and came just where he was. That is the distinctive thing about Christ, he was genial, kind, accessible, a lover of the haunts of men, the friend of publicans and sinners. He came just where men suffer, where they toil, where they weep. He hath born our griefs and carried our sorrows. Good Samaritan that he was, he came just where he was.

Now I wonder if in our charitable work we are missing just that personal touch. It is a long time since I have sat all night by the bedside of a sick man. It is a rare thing for a pastor to be summoned to the hospital for spiritual consolation. It is a great help for you to send your subscription to the Community Chest or the Red Cross, but you really don't know what it is all about until you do what the good Samaritan did—come right where he was, have an actual personal part in relieving some suffering.

Himself, his hungering neighbor and Me."

Answer Cries of Suffering.

Now the spirit of the Good Samaritan must baptize this whole community afresh as we go forth to answer the annual appeal for the Community Chest and the exigent one of the Red Cross. Human sympathy has organized itself into various groups to answer the cries of those who make some special appeal, and common sense has organized itself into the Community Chest so that the whole needs of the whole community may be answered by the whole citizenry at one and the same time. The claims of 62 separate and distinct eleemosynary and social institutions are presented to you this week. The total amount asked for by the Community Chest is $1,850,154.40.

This year there is added to the budget $100,000 for the emergency Red Cross drive. The merging of the two drives into one is a token of the common sense of our Chest leaders, and yet, the injection of this Red Cross item of $100,000 is liable to confuse the issue and the whole project suffer in a manner altogether out of proportion to this one item of the budget.

Now Is Time to Act.

There is a feeling that if the Federal Government is going to undertake the provision of funds for the Red Cross on a large scale why should one contribute to the drive? This situation which has developed within the last few days brings the Red Cross to the crossing of the ways. Are the people of the country going to rise to the appeal 100 per cent or are they going to let it fall by the wayside in the uncertain hope that the Government will provide? Considered nationally, nothing is more significant of social and economic trends in our country than the disposition to refuse the burden of human relief as a voluntary task and condone the doing of it by the Government. Shall the American people shirk private responsibility and accept the alternative of Federal charity? This is not the place nor the time for us to venture into a discussion of the economic and political issues involved in such a policy. We have no wish to enter upon a discussion of the merits of paternalism in government. But it is the time and place to summons the American people to hear the challenge of the Red Cross. To open the doors of the Federal Treasury before the last dollar is available for relief has been secured is to cut the nerve of all the splendid effort that through half a century has given the American people a good name here and abroad in the time of trouble. Our answer to this gesture toward paternalism should be an oversubscription of the Red Cross demands.

Man, 74, Survives Traffic Accidents

Good Luck Follows Bad in Case of Pedestrian on Downtown Street.

Ill luck yesterday dogged the path of Jeremiah Crilly, 74, but good luck was not far behind. He was knocked down by a mail truck at Twelfth and Pennsylvania avenue. When he arrived at the hospital he had suffered only a laceration of the head.

William Frye, colored, 19, of I street near Twenty-fourth street northwest, the driver of the truck was aided in placing the man in the truck by John E. Nevins, of Clarendon, Va., and John Walker, 18, of East Falls Church, Va.

Walker was slightly injured when the automobile struck a car driven by Capt. Glenn C. Cole, of Arlington Ridge, Va., at Fourteenth and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.
